KIDNAP GANG GIVES UP BOY AFTER WEEK

Youth and Father Blindfolded for Night Ride.

FARED WELL, LAD DECLARES

Family Fails to State Whether Ransom Paid in Ohio.

Warren, Ohio, March 26 (A.P.). Fifteen-year-old Peter Meyers, jr., kidnaped March 18 from his home in Masury, near here, was returned safely to his father early today.

The boy's father received a telephone call last night to meet a man in Youngstown, Sheriff Roy S. Hardman said. Keeping the appointment, Meyers was driven in his own automobile outside the city, then he was blindfolded.

Other men joined Meyers and his companion later. They drove for hours, the blindfolded man uncertain of the directions.

Boy Also Blindfolded.

Finally another automobile met them, bringing the boy, who also was blindfolded. There was a halt in the darkness along a lonely road, and a moment later, the boy was safe in his father's arms again.

Still unreleased, however, the father and son were driven several hours longer, while Mrs. Meyers, at home, worried for fear her husband also had become a victim of the kidnapers.

Shortly before daybreak, Mrs. Meyers with her brother and the Sheriff started out in another automobile to find her husband. Within a short time, they met the returning father and son in their own neighborhood.

Give Brief Statements.

After brief statements to the sheriff, the members of the Meyers family retired to recover from their exhausting experience.

The boy told Sheriff Hardman he never saw any of the kidnapers after the first moment when he was stolen, but believed there were six or seven of them. He said they treated him well, but told him they would kill him if he tried to escape.

Three of the kidnapers stole the boy a week ago last night. Two of the men carried revolvers and one had a submachine gun.

Note Given Chauffeur.

By the threat of these weapons, the men took the lad away from Mike Stevens, also known as Winkle, who was the Meyers' chauffeur. They thrust a note into Stevens' hand, ordering him to "keep his mouth shut" and wait for instructions.

The motive of the kidnaping had not been made public late today, and whether any ransom was paid was undisclosed. The elder Meyers several days ago said he had no money for a ransom, but offered a $200 reward for capture and conviction of the kidnapers.

JEWS' MISTREATING ABATED, U.S. IS TOLD

Embassy and Consulates in Germany Report After Protests Here.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department last night reported that an official investigation of conditions in Germany indicated that "whereas there was for a short time considerable physical mistreatment of Jews, this phase may be considered virtually terminated."

This finding, based on reports from the Berlin Embassy and American consulates throughout Germany, was telegraphed by the State Department last night to leading American Jews who had requested the Government to verify the reported mistreatment of members of their race at the hands of Hitlerites and to take appropriate action.

While State Department officials did not amplify the telegram, it was understood authoritatively that no official protest to the Hitler government is planned in view of the embassy's report.

Secretary of State Hull said the embassy felt "a stabilization appears to have been reached in the field of personal mistreatment, and there are indications that in other phases the situation is improving."

American Jewry had been aroused to a high pitch of indignation by the reports of harsh measures against members of their race by brown-shirted followers of Adolf Hitler, chancellor and now dictator. Protest meetings have been called in various part of the Nation. The State Department has been flooded with telegrams asking appropriate diplomatic action.

Following is the Secretary's telegram, addressed to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York; Bernard Deutsch, New York, president of the American Jewish Congress; and Cyrus Adler, Philadelphia:

"You will remember that at the time of your recent call at the department I informed you that in view

Big Explosion Jars Nervous Mountain

Dense Smoke Pours From Carbon Peak in Colorado as Tourists Watch.

Durango, Colo., March 26 (A.P.).—A mighty explosion deep underground shook restless Carbon Mountain and caused clouds of dense black smoke to roll from rifts in its rocky peak today.

There was a strong odor of coal gas as the mountain continued its slow disintegration. Several hundred Sunday visitors watched the volcano-like exhibition.

Today's show was the first external evidence of the fire which some geologists says has been going on under the mountain for months. They hold a huge vein of coal has been ignited deep under the surface and that this has been responsible for vapor and strong coal gas odors discernible about the mountain.

Soviet War Commissar Injured in Plane Crash

Warsaw, March 26 (A.P.).—The Polish newspaper Kurjer Poranny said today that Klementi E. Voroshiloff, Soviet Russia commissar for war and marine, had been injured when an airplane in which he was a passenger made a forced landing near Minsk, Russia.

OIL MEN BOLT TALK PLANNING ICKES' PARLEY

Stormy All-Day Session Behind Closed Doors Brings Walkout.

COAST DELEGATION QUITS CONFERENCE

Action Precedes Regulation Conference Called Today by White House.

(Associated Press.)

Gathering privately a day in advance of an oil regulation conference called by the administration for today, representatives of independent petroleum producers reported last night they had howled down a proposal by the American Petroleum Institute to agree to a program of Federal curtailment of production below the level of present requirements.

Those present behind the closed doors reported that approximately 200 men took part in a stormy all-day session that became so heated at one point that a delegation from California walked out of the meeting.

The conference for today was called by the White House through Secretary Ickes. At it the administration declared it hoped for an iron-clad agreement among the oil producing States to curtail sharply a daily overflow of some 200,000 barrels.

Effort for Agreement.

The unscheduled meeting of yesterday, it was said by those taking part, represented an effort by the American Petroleum Institute to gain an agreement that could be placed before today's conference, pledging the producers and representatives of governors to a set program.

J. Edward Jones, of New York, listed as the representative of Gov. Laffoon of Kentucky, declared a majority of those present refused to sanction such a program, put forward by representatives of the major oil companies.

He said it would have provided for production under the level of ordinary consumption in order to use up present surpluses.

Opposed to Plan.

Jones said the Texas representatives, including J. R. Partin, president of the Independent Petroleum Producers of that State, and C. V. Terrell and E. O. Thompson, of the Texas Railroad Commission, had opposed the plan.

John B. Elliott, of Los Angeles, who bolted the oil producers' meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, late last night said in a statement:

"The meeting was packed in the interest of the major oil companies."

Elliott, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of California, when he walked out of the assembly room was joined by E. B. Howard,

Parachute Leaps Fatal To Two Men and Girl

Los Angeles, March 26 (U.P.).—Slade Hulbert, veteran Los Angeles pilot, and Andy C. Carr, his 25-year-old student, were killed today when their parachutes failed to open after they jumped from a crippled plane.

Hulbert won fame as pilot of the refueling ship when the Army monoplane, Question Mark, set a world-endurance record here.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 26 (A.P.). Mamie Rhea, 22, former University of Tennessee student, who had planned a career of aerial stunting, fell into the Tennessee River late today on her first parachute jump and a search for her body was being conducted tonight.

Building Wrecked In Mystery Blast

Ohio Fire and Explosion Cause $50,000 Loss; Nobody Hurt.

Newark, Ohio, March 26 (A.P.).—With a roar that was heard all over the city, an explosion of undetermined origin wrecked a four-story downtown building here today. Fire, which followed the blast, damaged an adjoining structure. The combined loss was estimated at $50,000. No one was injured.

The blast occurred in the basement of the Roberts & Harpster Building, farm implement dealers. The other building was occupied by the Fleek & Son wholesale grocery.

Debris was hurled 100 feet in the air by the blast, windows in nearby structures were shattered and the walls of the building were cracked. Authorities started an investigation.

Tokyo Privy Council Votes to Quit League

Approves Action Which Climaxes Long Row Over Manchuria.

Tokyo (Monday), March 27 (A.P.). The privy council unanimously approved today a communication to the League of Nations announcing Japan's formal resignation from the league. The document will be telegraphed to Geneva this afternoon.

The action is the climax of an eighteen months' dispute regarding Japanese activities in Manchuria, for which Japan was condemned by the league in February.

The announcement of the withdrawal, drawn up at a meeting this morning in the imperial palace, said "the Japanese government has come to the conclusion that it can no longer cooperate with the league."

Notice of the resignation was in accordance with provisions of paragraph 3, Article 1, of the league convenant.

This provides that "any member of the league may, after two years' notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the league, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal."

The communication, which said that Japan hopes to continue cooperating with other nations in world peace movements, echoed the words of Yosuke Matsuoka, the senior member of Japan's league delegation, when he walked out of the league meeting after the report censoring Japan had been adopted on February 24.

Emperor Hirohito and Premier Saito planned to issue statements advising the nation of the privy council's action.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS PICK STEERING UNIT

Snell Says Committee of Seven Will Help Fix Party Policy on Bills.

(Associated Press.)

Selection of a seven-member steering committee, chosen to represent "a cross section of the Republican thought from the Atlantic to the Pacific," was announced yesterday by Representative Snell, House minority leader.

The committee comprised Representatives Darrow, of Pennsylvania; Treadway, of Massachusetts; Cooper, of Ohio; Britten, of Illinois; Thurston, of Iowa; Hope, of Kansas, and Carter, of Wyoming.

"The Steering Committee," Snell said, "together with the Republican whip and the Republican members of the Rules Committee, will carefully consider the attitude to be taken by Republicans on the various controversial questions to come before Congress."

Snell is a New Yorker, while the Republican whip is Englebright, of California. Republican members of the Rules Committee are Ransley, of Pennsylvania; Martin, of Massachusetts; Mapes, of Michigan, and Lehibach, of New Jersey.

The Steering Committee is an established Republican institution in the House. This session, for the first time, Democrats organized a corresponding group under the chairmanship of Crosser, of Ohio.

In the combined Steering and Rules Committee groups, which will meet with Snell and Englebright on party policies, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts boast two members each. Four of the thirteen representatives come from west of the Mississippi River.

Just a few days before the Steering Committee was announced, Representative McGugin, of Kansas, resigned from his assignment on the Postoffice Committee in protest against a lack of Western Republican representation on the Rules and Banking Committees.

HARRIMAN EXAMINER DEFENDED BY AWALT

Says That Delay in Report Obviously Was in Public Interest.

(Associated Press.)

F. G. Awalt, acting Comptroller of the Currency, last night issued a statement defending the action of L. K. Roberts, chief National Bank examiner in New York, for withholding "temporarily" the original of a report showing "irregularities" in the affairs of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co. in New York.

Awalt asserted that the delay, resulting in retarded action to prosecute J. W. Harriman, former president of the bank, was "obviously in the public interest and for the protection of the creditors of the bank."

Roberts was reported by Awalt to have submitted last July carbon copies of a report from a bank examiner, showing the Harriman bank "irregularities," but to have stated at the time that the original was being withheld "in order to adjust any and all of the problems with which the bank was confronted."

Awalt said that the original of the report was submitted in December and first came to his own attention at that time. He said he immediately transmitted it to the Department of Justice, but added that had his "department" felt the original should have come in sooner "unques-

$1,000 Genius Prize Goes To Obscure Scientist, 30

Frank H. Spedding, Who Reveals Invisible Structure of Solids, Announced as Winner by American Chemical Society on Eve of Meeting Here.

(Associated Press.)

Frank H. Spedding, Ph. D., a little-known, 30-year-old scientist, who has fashioned a new method of seeing into the invisible fine structure of solid matter, last night was awarded the youthful genius prize of $1,000 by the American Chemical Society.

The award was announced on the eve of the society's eighty-fifth annual meeting, opening at the Willard Hotel at 2 p. m. today, at which more than 2,000 chemists and industrial leaders are expected to gather to tell in a four-day session both of new discoveries and the big industrial developments by which chemistry may help in a business upturn.

The prize given Dr. Spedding is the Langmuir award "in recognition of accomplishment in North America of outstanding research in pure chemistry by a young man or woman." The age limit for the award is 31 years.

Dr. Spedding is an instructor at the University of California, personally unknown to all except one of the members of the award committee. Even his work was unknown, but its nature was so remarkable that a description sufficed to win.

Dr. Spedding uses the light which can be reflected or otherwise emitted by solids, such as rocks and minerals, to reveal what scientists call their "lattice" structure. This lattice is the spacing of atoms in the solid, including the spinning and other antics of these tiny particles. He reads the messages of these light beams after they have been passed through a spectroscope, a glass prism which

GROSS, MOTHER AND 2 CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTO

Father of War Hero and Former Diplomat Is Seriously Hurt.

4 LIVES SNUFFED OUT ON FLORIDA HIGHWAY

Captain's Divorced Wife Is Daughter of Francis Burton Harrison.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 26 (A.P.).—Christian Channing Gross, soldier, author and colorful figure of the American diplomatic service, was killed here today in an automobile accident which also claimed the lives of his two small children and his mother, Mrs. Natalie Gross, of Chicago.

His father, Charles W. Gross, was injured seriously and was brought to a hospital here. Doctors said he had a broken arm, was severely cut and bruised and possibly had received internal injuries.

Christian Gross, who was 37 years old, was identified by papers in his pocket and his father confirmed the identification.

The children killed were Peter, about 11, and Barbara, 10.

A car in which they were en route from Palm Beach to Miami skidded off the Federal highway north of Fort Lauderdale and overturned, crushing the occupants.

Child Said to Be Driver.

Authorities who investigated said Peter Gross was driving the car at the time, but H. W. Fannin, undertaker, said Charles Gross told him his son, Christian, was driving.

An inquest was ordered. A coroner's jury viewed the bodies this afternoon, but said a verdict would not be returned until tomorrow or later.

Christian Gross gave his address as Washington when he registered last night at a Palm Beach hotel. His parents and his children had been spending the winter in Bradenton.

An aunt of Christian Gross, Mrs. Emma Gross, lives in Tampa, Fla., and another aunt, Mrs. Mary Dooer, and an uncle, William A. Gross, live in West Philadelphia.

Mrs. Effie Horner, a sister of Mrs. Natalie Gross, is a school teacher in Chicago, Charles W. Gross said.

Won Bravery Medals.

Christian Gross, graduating from the University of Illinois in 1916, later studied law in Paris and Algeria and served with the American forces in France and Siberia as a

Peiping, March 26 (A.P.).—Despite Tokyo's assurance that the Japanese have no intention of proceeding south of the Great Wall, the possibility of an attempt to occupy the Peiping-Tientsin area can not yet be precluded, Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese minister of war, said tonight.

Ho now is commanding Chinese troops in North China following the recent resignation of Chang Hsiao-Liang as military overlord of the territory.

Argentine U. S. Consul Robbed of $2,500 Gems

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—The apartment of Edwardo Grunning Rosas, consul general of the Republic of Argentina, was robbed of jewelry Rosas valued at $2,500 while he and his wife were absent today, he told police.

They discovered the loss when they returned home and found burglars had entered through a transom.

Skyscraper Fires Attack Two Floors

$20,000 Damage Is Done by Flames in Ashland Building, Chicago.

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—Fires that broke out on two floors of the sixteen-story Ashland Building in downtown Chicago tonight, were brought under control after causing damage estimated by firemen at about $20,000.

The blaze—on the fifth and in the attick above the sixteenth floor—followed a series of explosions in the main flue. The blasts shook the entire building. A portion of a wall was caved in on the fifth floor where most of the damage, both fire and water, occurred.

Offices of the Associated Press and the City News Bureau are on the seventh floor of the building.

REVENUE AND TRADE FLOWING FROM BEER

Business Leaders Report on Orders Already Given; Treasury Benefits.

(Associated Press.)

The beginning of the stream of gold which sponsors of legalized beer predicted would result from its sale was reported yesterday in statements from industry in various parts of the country and from the Federal Treasury itself.

Tying in with Federal estimates that millions of dollars in tax revenue would accrue to the Government even before the sale of the new brew begins on April 7, representatives of the lumber, bottling and other industries reported revived activity.

A close adviser to President Roosevelt, who declined to permit use of his name, described the developments in this manner:

"We have been on a dead center for months economically. It is too early to judge definitely, for after all the money that will flow in the beer trade is but a small fraction of our national spending, but it may be the factor necessary to start business up anew."

Dr. Wilson Compton, manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, reported formally yesterday in a statement that box lumber demand, both of softwoods and hardwoods, had increased appreciably in the Midwest, due partly to demand for beer bottle

Col. Edgerton Sees Repealists Beaten

Announces He Will Become Active in Campaign to Keep Prohibition.

(Associated Press.)

Col. John E. Edgerton, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, yesterday announced he would become active in the national prohibition emergency committee and asserted: "We are going to beat repeal."

"The Nation has been shocked," Edgerton said, "by the lack of a constructive program on the part of the opponents of the eighteenth amendment and the country is immediately faced by the return of the saloon and the certain reestablishment of the vicious evils which plagued the Nation before prohibition.

"Not one thing is being said or done to serve the cause of temperance. It is a condition which menaces business and strikes at the very foundation of morality and social stability."

Arkansas Yeggs Steal Bank Safe and $2,000

Fayetteville, Ark., March 26 (A.P.). The Bank of Elkins, at Elkins, near here, was robbed early today by two men who carted away the bank's three-and-a-half-ton safe.

Bank officials said only $2,000 was in the safe as reserve deposits were carried in Fayetteville and St. Louis banks.

Morgenthau Seen Heading Credit Combine.

TAKES EFFECT AFTER 61 DAYS

Plan Drawn to Save $2,000,000 Will Go to Congress Today.

President Roosevelt yesterday drafted an executive order for the consolidation of the several Government agricultural credit agencies as the first step in his plan for a wholesale Federal reorganization.

This sudden move came as a preliminary to a program for refinancing the debt-burdened holders of farm mortgages which will be submitted to Congress this week, probably to be followed by a program for reviving the National transportation system.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., chairman of the Farm Board, is expected to head the unified agricultural credit agency which will encompass a wide range of activities now supervised by several departments.

Saving of $2,000,000.

The President reserved announcement of the deails of his executive order until he puts it before Congress today. There are now about eight separate credit agencies in the Government, including the Farm Board, the Farm Loan Bureau with its intermediate credit banks, the Joint Stock Land Banks, the Agricultural Credit Corporation, the Crop Production Seed Loan Agency in the Department of Agriculture and another Agriculture Department agency for subscriptions to local agricultural credit corporations.

A saving of $2,000,000 is estimated by the President to result from the unification plan. Also, he expects increased efficiency and a strengthening of the present Federal credit organizations.

Through this new gigantic credit organization the President will negotiate the far-reaching refinancing of farm mortgages. This latter plan probably will go to Capitol Hill by midweek.

Effective in 61 Days.

Meanwhile, the President is leaving entirely in the hands of a special committee headed by Secretary Roper the formulation of a railroad plan. Several proposals are pending, and he wants a general agreement upon one program before going forward on this.

Negotiation of the railroad revision scheme is expected before the end of the week. Mr. Roosevelt then will lay it before Congress.

The President's reorganization of the farm credit structure becomes effective in 61 days after submission to Congress. He acted under the power given him in the reorganization clause of the Treasury-Postoffice bill passed last session.

Text of Announcement.

His announcement yesterday follows:

"President Roosevelt announced today that he would send to Congress tomorrow an executive order for the consolidation and reorganization of all agricultural credit agencies of the United States Government.

"The order will become effective 61 days after its delivery to Congress and will bring about a net saving to the Government of $2,000,000.

"This is the first of a series of executive orders which will be issued by the President to put into effect his economy program by consolidation of governmental agencies.

"This order will be sent to Congress in accordance with provisions of the Postoffice-Treasury appropriation bill."

ROOSEVELT POWER MEETS TEST TODAY

Bill to Put 250,000 Idle Men to Work in Woods to Have Hard Path.

(United Press.)

President Roosevelt has come to the end of his "happy days" of prompt and unquestioned congressional support and henceforward must exert strong leadership to get the rest of his program enacted.

The first test will come this week on his project to put 250,000 now idle men to work in the forests, which the Senate probably will take up today. Organized labor still looks dubiously on this project despite redraft of the original bill to meet some of its objections.

Chairman David I. Walsh, of the Senate Labor Committee, said last night that the revised measure would be reported formally today, in which case Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson said it probably would be called up immediately for consideration.

Connery Fights Bill.

"I think the Senate should pass it very quickly," Walsh said.

The real, outspoken foe of the bill is on the other side of the Capitol in the wiry, determined person of Chairman William P. Connery, jr., of the House Labor Committee. When his committee meets today for the first time to consider the bill, he will propose his substitute which would fix an $80 monthly wage for married persons and single persons with dependents and $50 for single persons without dependents. The enlistment period in the conservation army is limited to 30 days also in his substitute.

Connery is not satisfied with the Senate's revised bill in which the specific one dollar a day wage was eliminated. The President is authorized to fix the wage and also to arrange other details in a redrafted measure that gives him wide powers.

Nothing Vital Lost.

Despite protests over the legislation, the measure probably will go through both House and Senate without any vital changes. The President gave a clew to his methods with Congress in permitting redrafting of the bill, in which nothing essential was lost. He refuses to yield on important points.

This and other phases of the Roosevelt economic program have been retarded in a natural reaction against the speed with which the earlier legislative proposals were enacted. Leaders have yielded to the resentment expressed and have agreed to slow down the pace, though still keeping a tight rein on their forces.

As a result, the probable date of adjournment now is being moved from May 1 to June 1.

First Lady Backs Home Economics

Mrs. Roosevelt of Opinion Scientific Study Is Aid to Housewives.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was quoted yesterday as believing that homemaking should have "a background of scientific training" and as urging a wider use of courses in home economics.

Miss Florence Hall, president of the local Home Economics Association, made public the following statement as coming from the First Lady:

"It seems to me that the training given any girl in home economics is valuable in many ways. Homemaking today should have a background of scientific training, because only in this way can real efficiency be achieved. The average girl wants to be able to keep her house with the least possible strain, and in order to do this she must have good training. This can best be achieved by taking a good course in home economics."

Adjutant General Sends Orders to Aid Army Day

The Adjutant General of the Army has issued a memorandum to the commanding generals of all corps areas, commanding officers of exempted stations, and commanding generals of the Philippines, Panama and Hawaiian departments, calling their attention to Army Day to be celebrated April 6. The memorandum reads as follows:

"This celebration, which was originally sponsored by the Military Order of the World War, will be conducted under civilian auspices. It should, however, be given cordial Army support and you are accordingly authorized to provide for the celebration of the day and to participate in the celebration arranged by the various civilian patriotic orders in any manner which may be appropriate to the special circumstances existing within your command."

another oil producer and a former representative in Congress; W. M. Keck, also of the California association, who is a delegate to the governors' conference, and by Jones.

Campaign Official.

Elliott was manager of the Roosevelt-McAdoo campaign in California last fall, and came to Washington especially to represent the California association during the Washington oil meeting.

The meeting yesterday was called by Wirt Franklin, of New York and Oklahoma, president of the Independent Petroleum Association. Eighteen individual associations in the oil producing States attended.

In his statement, issued after he left the meeting, Elliott declared:

"As one who had something to do with bringing about the election of President Roosevelt, I could not participate in an action which would deceive the new administration."

No Expression of View.

Previous administrations of recent years, Mr. Elliott contended, have had no expression of the attitude of the real independents in the oil industry. He added, "I shall not permit that deception to continue if I can prevent it."

"The meeting today was packed in the interest of the major oil companies and the action proposed would have revealed the attitude of the majors, not of the real independents," he said.

Several States Considering Sales Tax to Boost Revenue

Legislators Are Sharply Divided Over Question; Some Commonwealths Have Already Enacted Measures, in One Form or Another.

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—Amid a welter of controversy, the sales tax is the chief legislative conduit the Nation's State Assemblies are installing to obtain much-needed revenue.

Generally recognized as an extraordinary method born of extraordinary conditions, legislators are sharply divided as to whether the means is justified by the existing situation.

Sales tax proposals died in several Assemblies in deference to other measures. In others the proposals are being debated amid shouts of "unconstitutional" and "the only way."

In still other Commonwealths measures have been enacted, in some form or other, and the problem is one of equitable application.

The current status of the sales tax in many of the States is shown in the following tabulation:

Alabama: On Assembly's adverse calendar is sales tax bill proposing 10 per cent on amusement, 5 per cent on retail sales. Proponents will attempt this week to place in position for House passage.

Tennessee: Bill in House proposing 2 per cent sales tax, revenue for school purposes. Author estimates will net $7,000,000 annually.

South Carolina: The House voted down sales tax proposal; sent substitute bill to Senate calling for income tax increases.

Vermont: Legislature passed gross sales tax—a graduated levy from ⅛ of 1 per cent to 4 per cent per dollar.

New Hampshire: Bill to be introduced in lower branch Tuesday proposing graduated tax on sales from ½ of 1 per cent up. There is some question concerning its constitutionality.

Maine: Before House is divided committee report on 1 per cent sales tax proponents say will bring in $3,000,000 annually.

Ohio: Sales tax bills proposing 1 per cent levy on gross sales in committee. Estimated revenue about $50,000,000 a year.

Michigan: Graduated tax from 3-10 of 1 per cent to 3 per cent in committee with public hearing scheduled for Tuesday. Estimated revenue $35,000,000 annually.

Illinois: Three per cent sales tax passed and method of applying it April 1 being worked out.

North Dakota: Graduated sales tax becomes effective July 1, but movement under way for referendum.

California: Bills introduced proposing luxury sales taxes, with estimated revenue approximately $51,400,000 biennially.

Missouri: "Luxury" sales tax bill up for final House passage this week. Proposes 1 per cent tax on "nonessentials." Among things considered nonessential are tooth paste and airplanes. Estimated annual revenue $6,000,000.

Arizona: Sales tax effective April 30, but litigation started on basis of an alleged illegal clause prohibiting referendum on the measure.

Utah: Sales tax passed levying three-fourths of 1 per cent, estimated will yield $500,000 to $600,000 a year.

Idaho: Legislature adjourned after defeating all sales tax proposals.

Oregon: Two per cent gross sales tax, which expected to raise $6,000,000 annually passed by Assembly and referred to voters at a special election in July.

EAST TEXAS FIELDS WAIT OIL STOPPAGE

Operators Uncertain About Shutdown as Officials Are Contradictory.

Longview, Tex., March 26 (A.P.).—A feeling of uncertainty hung over the huge east Texas oil field tonight, as operators waited to see what action State officials would take to enforce a proposed shutdown of the 10,000 wells in the field.

Conflicting statements from members of the Texas Railroad Commission, conservation agency, added to the uncertainty.

Reports from Fort Worth said five Texas Rangers had left there for the oil field, but Adjt. Gen. Henry Hutchings denied that any special Ranger concentration was planned. Four Rangers are stationed in the field.

James E. Ferguson, husband of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, said at Austin he had not been advised of any unusual incidents in the field and expected normal conditions to prevail.

Texas Asks Intervention.

The Kilgore and Longview Chambers of Commerce have dispatched telegrams to Secretary of the Interior Harold V. Ickes at Washington, on the eve of the oil States' conference he has called for tomorrow, requesting Federal intervention in the east Texas field.

The Texas Railroad Commission issued an order last Friday that all wells in the field should close at 9 a. m. tomorrow for an indefinite shutdown after a two-hour period of open flow preceding the closing, in order to gauge the field potential.

This order raised a storm of protest among operators and J. F. Lucey, of Dallas, a director of the American Petroleum Institute and east Texas oil operator, began preparation of a petition for a Federal injunction to halt the shutdown.

Commissioner Lon A. Smith, at Houston, announced yesterday the shutdown and potential gauging order had been rescinded.

Test Is Delayed.

In Washington Commissioners C. V. Terrell and Ernest O. Thompson, who had gone there to attend Secretary Ickes' conference, were quoted as saying they constituted a majority of the commission and that the shutdown order would stand.

They added, however, that the proposed two-hour test flow would be delayed until Thursday, with the shutdown to follow. They said the test had been delayed at the request of operators, who reported that tanks on most of the lease wells were filled and they needed the additional three days to empty them. The present flow of the field is limited to 400,000 barrels daily.

Capt. E. N. Stanley, chief railroad commission inspector in the field, said conditions there were quiet and he had received no reports of violence.

Roosevelt Studies Farm Aid Program

President Also to Press for Early Action on Transportation.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt will put before Congress this week his proposals for refinancing the heavily debt-burdened farmers and for reviving the national transportation systems.

Both measures are highly complicated. Mr. Roosevelt with his aids spent the week-end in study of them. Confident that Congress will give him his farm and unemployment relief bills before the end of the present week, the President is determined to speed the fashioning of other planks in his new program, with a view to winding things up by late May.

The problem of giving the farmers the desired low interest rate on their new mortgages and also of making sure of the sale at par value of the new bonds to finance the deal has proved the stumbling block on the agriculture measure.

Courthouse Lights Out Because of Unpaid Bills

Cheyenne, Okla., March 26 (A.P.).—It's back to kerosene lamps for the Roger Mills County Courthouse until July 1. Delinquent in paying its electric bills, the county has been denied further service by the light company. New funds will be available July 1.

SURPLUS SUPPLANTS PHILIPPINE DEFICIT

Theodore Roosevelt Reports Duty-Free U. S. Market Was Great Help.

Manila, P. I., March 26 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt today reported that the Philippine government had managed in 1932 to convert a yawning deficit into a $1,000,000 surplus, but coupled with this a warning that had the islands not enjoyed a duty-free market with the United States a heavily unfavorable balance of trade would have resulted.

Roosevelt, now en route to the United States, included figures to this effect in his annual report to the Secretary of War, made public today. He refrained, however, from expressing directly an opinion as to whether the Philippines should accept the Hawes-Cutting bill to provide independence for the islands.

On matters general to his stewardship, Roosevelt reported that despite the world economic crisis the Philippines in 1933 "will have a balanced budget."

He paid high tribute to the insular cabinet and Legislature for managing this in the face of $3,500,000 deficit for 1931, the general shrinkage of revenues and the disappearance of markets.

Outright Currency Expansion Urged

Commodity Broker Contends Direct Step Needed to Restore Values.

(Associated Press.)

Direct currency expansion was urged in a statement here yesterday by Robert Harriss, of New York, a commodity broker, who contended such a step was necessary to restore the values of commodities and raw materials.

Declaring the currency policy of the last administration "fallacious and deflationary" and as tending to create "more debts and taxes," Harriss asserted "we now have a wonderful opportunity to put this direct currency expansion into effect while we have an embargo against the exportation and payment of gold."

With direct currency expansion, he said, Congress could permit the issuance of a larger number of dollars against the ounce of gold. The "excessive buying power of the present dollar," he declared, had blocked economic recovery, adding his belief that there could be no "semblance of prosperity in our country until the price of commodities, raw materials and other values are restored to the approximate level where the existing stupendously inflated debts and taxes were incurred."

Meteor's Landing Place Located in New Mexico

Denver, March 26 (A.P.).—The approximate landing place of the giant meteor which flashed across six western States early Friday morning has been located by H. H. Nininger, curator of meteors of the Colorado Museum of Natural History, in a desolate area of southeastern New Mexico.

Pensioned Printer Is Heir to Fortune

Kentuckian and Four of Kin to Split $5,000,000 Left by Magnate.

Covington, Ky., March 26 (A.P.).—Michael E. Maloney, a pensioned printer, was advised today that he and four other relatives are to share in the bulk of a $5,000,000 estate left by Thomas J. Maloney, tobacco magnate.

Thomas Maloney, a director of the Lorillard Tobacco Co. and a member of the board of the company that built the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson River, died January 19 in Teaneck, N. J. He was 73. He was a brother of Michael Maloney, who formerly worked for the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The other relatives, all residents of Covington, are: James W., Edward J., Stephen and Kate Maloney, and Mrs. Marie Haas.

TWO BILLION POURED BY R.F.C. INTO TRADE

Figures Reveal Less Than One-Fifth of Amount Has Been Repaid.

(Associated Press.)

Two billions of dollars have been poured into the business system of the country through the Reconstruction Corporation since its formation thirteen and one-half months ago.

Credit unions, $492,001.

Federal intermediate credit banks, $9,250,000.

For financing orderly marketing, $56,495,723.

Stolen Checks' Return Brings Suspect's Arrest

Oakland, Calif., March 26 (A.P.).—Harold Lutes, ?0, was in jail today charged with robbery, because, police said, a receipt bearing his name came back with a group of stolen checks. A robbery last week netted $600 in cash and checks and later the checks came back by mail. In the envelope was a receipt bearing Lutes' name.

Lutes was arrested two years ago on a charge of holding up a police judge. He was held for hearing on the charge.

Spanish Official Probes Fascist Bloc Formation

Madrid, Spain, March 26 (A.P.).—Director of Public Safety Andres said today he was continuing investigations into the organization of groups he described as being of a Fascist type in Spain.

It appears, he affirmed, that three or four bands of like nationalistic aims have been formed and are loosely allied, although they have not yet perfected a closely-knit organization.

Gold Cellar

Treasure Hunters Tell Los Angeles It Is Under Hall of Justice.

Los Angeles, March 26 (A.P.).—With mingled doubt and concern, the county board of supervisors heard today that there are catacombs under the Hall of Justice and that at least 16 sites in the 1,900-foot labyrinth of tunnels contain ancient Spanish doubloons and gold bullion, buried or concealed in vaults.

The statements came from three Los Angeles treasure hunters who dug for a month under old Fort Moore Hill in the downtown district in the hope of locating the hoarded wealth.

The county gave the men a 30-day contract, but their excavations availed nothing but several deep holes and numerous piles of dirt. Now, still convinced they are right, they want the county to renew their license, promising a 50 per cent royalty on anything they find.

The board promised to report tomorrow to the gold seekers, Rex I. McCreery, G. Warren Shufelt and Roy Martin.

Shufelt owns an electrial device which he asserts has located gold deposits on the county property. Martin possesses an old Spanish map which he says indicates the presence of the treasure.

ARMS EMBARGO ACT RAPPED BY TINKHAM

Holds Pending Plan Would Lead U. S. Toward War With Japanese.

(Associated Press.)

With the House Foreign Affairs Committee expected to act on President Roosevelt's arms embargo resolution within the next few days, Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, a committee member, yesterday denounced the proposal as "a war move, not a peace move."

Chairman McReynolds has indicated he would ask the Foreign Affairs Committee tomorrow to consider the resolution, put forward by both the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations. Passed by the last House, it was killed by the Senate in the waning hours of the last session. McReynolds added that "I think we can get it through when the time comes."

"Would Lead Toward War."

Representative Tinkham, in a formal statement, interpreted the proposal as meaning that "the present resolution apparently wishes war in Asia with Japan, as its proposed policy leads only in that direction."

"This resolution," he continued, "is at this time aimed particularly at Japan, and indicates that the present administration has adopted the whole foreign policy of the last administration, which was completely dominated by the British foreign office and alien interests.

"Impartiality is the keynote of neutrality. An arms embargo violates neutrality, and in international law the country against which the embargo is placed can regard it as an unfriendly and hostile act, and as a cause of war.

"National Dementia."

"If an embargo were placed against Japan, Japan would have the right in international law to take measures of reprisals, which might involve the seizure of American ships, the occupation of the Philippines, and ultimately even the engagement of the American fleet if it came within any region which Japan desired to conquer or to protect; in fact, the making of war."

Mr. Tinkham declared that the United States refused to join the League of Nations particularly because of articles 10 and 16 of the covenant, the former guaranteeing the territory of members and the latter providing for the use of armed forces to protect members. The league, he said, is contemplating the use of either or both of these articles against Japan.

"For the United States now to take part in the enforcement of article 10 or article 16 would be national dementia," he said.

CAPT. GROSS, TWO CHILDREN AND HIS MOTHER DIE IN AUTO

lieutenant of Infantry. He was discharged as a captain in August, 1921.

For his military service he received the Distinguished Service Cross from the United States, the Military Cross from Great Britain, and the Croix de Guerre from France, among other decorations.

Appointed to the Diplomatic Service after his discharge from the Army, Gross served as a secretary of the American Embassy in Paris, and later was charge d'affaires of the United States to the Republic of Haiti.

Under the name of Fairfax Channing, he wrote "Siberia's Untouched Treasure," which was published in 1923.

Gross Warred With Wife Over Custody of Child

Just a year ago, at his home in Georgetown, Capt. Gross summoned reporters to deny ever taking "French leave" from the American diplomatic service. Following his alleged disappearance in Chicago and the subsequent investigation as to his whereabouts, Capt. Gross said he came directly to his home here—3236 R street northwest—and remained there under orders of the then Secretary of State Stimson.

The State Department a short time later announced his "separation" from diplomatic service. At that time he held the rank of second secretary of legation at Ottawa. He had been ten years in the service.

Capt. Gross first gained the limelight during the battle for custody of his two children. He divorced Virginia Harrison Gross on grounds of desertion in 1930. His wife was the daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor General of the Philippines.

Capt. Gross, during the interview at his home, said he planned to remain in Washington and educate his children here.

Peter, who died with his father in the crash, was once the object of an international search. Shortly after Gross divorced his wife the boy dropped from sight and his father searched throughout America and Europe. The hunt ended in Staatsburg, N. Y.

Justice of the Peace James Burke, of Staatsburg, appeared before Supreme Court Justice Graham Witschief on January 7, 1931, and revealed he had had custody of the child since 1929. Peter, he said, was given into his care by his daughter, Mary, who at one time attended Mrs. Gross as a trained nurse.

Burke said he learned the child's identity through newspaper stories. Under terms of his divorce, Gross was given custody of both children. Justice Witschief awarded the boy to his mother eight months and his father four months of each year.

Housewife's Body Found in Her Car

Robbery and Assault Are Theories of Police in Columbus Death.

Columbus, Ohio, March 26 (A.P.).—Robbery and criminal assault were advanced by police tonight as probable motives for the murder of Mrs. Eunice Haggard, pretty 25-year-old mother, whose body was found in her automobile in a westside residential section. Discovery of the body, shot four times and bearing bruises and scratches, ended a 24-hour search last night.

Coroner Edward E. Smith said the woman was killed during an attempt at criminal assault. The robbery theory was given when police learned Mrs. Haggard's pocketbook, containing $10 and her hat were missing.

The woman's husband, Dwight Haggard, 26, a salesman, said she had been missing since Friday night when she left a hospital where she visited her grandfather.

MICHIGAN TO LEAD WET VOTE PARADE

Wisconsin Is to Ballot Next on April 4, Only One Day Behind.

Michigan seems certain to be the first State to vote on repeal of the eighteenth amendment, with Wisconsin only one day behind, Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said yesterday after surveying last week's efforts by the repeal forces to bring the issue to an early conclusion in the States.

States of repeal and retention delegates have been chosen in 100 legislative districts in Michigan, Mr. Shouse said, and will be voted upon April 3 for a convention to be held April 10. The method of nominating delegates was challenged in the Michigan Supreme Court, but the petition was denied.

The Wisconsin election will be held April 4, and the convention is scheduled for April 25. In Wisconsin, the delegates will be elected by the State at large, slates of 15 delegates favoring and 15 opposing ratification of the repeal amendment being on the ballot. The Legislature provided that the delegates should be nominated by petition, the secretary of state of Wisconsin placing on the ballot those having the greatest number of names on the petitions.

Mr. Shouse said:

"A significant development in connection with the set-up of these conventions has been the determination of a growing number of Southern States to provide for truly representative State-wide votes. Alabama and Arkansas provided for State-wide referends to bind delegates. One branch of both the Texas and Tennessee Legislatures has approved bills for election of delegates by the State at large."

The situation as to voting and convention date follows:

"Pussyfoot" Sees Era of Debauchery

Johnson Predicts Reaction After Return of Legal Beer.

Billings, Mont., March 26 (A.P.).—"It's the same old stuff they used to drink before the eighteenth amendment was passed," says W. E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson.

"The beer they used to have is a little bit milder than that allowed by the new law just passed. The old-time beer was only 3 per cent, while this is 4 per cent by volume."

Accompanied by Thomas W. Gales, former superintendent of the Anti-saloon League in North Dakota and now assistant to the superintendent of the national organization, the dry worker came here for a State speaking tour. He foresees a reaction from the swing to beer.

"They have gone too far," he said. "We are going to have a period of debauchery and drunkenness. We have a whole generation that has never seen a saloon, and they've got to be shown."

of numerous press statements indicating wide-spread mistreatment of the Jews in Germany, I would request the American Embassy at Berlin in consultation with the principal consulates in Germany to investigate the situation and submit a report.

"A reply has now been received indicating that whereas there was for a short time considerable physical mistreatment of Jews, this phase may be considered virtually terminated. There was also some picketing of Jewish merchandising stores and instances of professional discrimination.

Hitler's Order Cited.

"These manifestations were viewed with serious concern by the German government.

"Hitler in his capacity as leader of the Nazi party issued an order calling upon his followers to maintain law and order, to avoid molesting foreigners, disrupting trade, and to avoid the creation of possibly embarrassing international incidents.

"Later, (Vice Chancellor) von Papen delivered a speech at Breslau in which he not only reiterated Hitler's appeals for discipline but adjured the victors of the last election not to spoil their triumph by unworthy acts of revenge and violence which could only bring discredit upon the new regime in foreign countries.

"As a result, the embassy reports that the authority of the regular police has been reenforced.

Will Watch Situation.

"The feeling has been widespread in Germany that following so far-reaching a political readjustment as has recently taken place, some time must elapse before a state of equilibrium could be reestablished.

"In the opinion of the embassy such a stabilization appears to have been reached in the field of personal mistreatment, and there are indications that in other phases the situation is improving.

"I feel hopeful in view of the reported attitude of high German officials and the evidences of amelioration already indicated, that the situation, which has caused such wide-spread concern throughout this country, will soon revert to normal. Meanwhile I shall continue to watch the situation closely, with a sympathetic interest and with a desire to be helpful in whatever way possible.

MASS MEETING ASKS COUNTY BE KEPT DRY

500 Join in Protest at Rockville Against Beer Bill at Annapolis.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4305.

Exemption of Montgomery County from the State-wide beer bill now pending in the State Legislature at Annapolis is proposed in a resolution adopted yesterday by a mass meeting held at the Rockville Courthouse under the auspices of the combined dry forces of Montgomery County. The resolution also opposes the method of convening a constitutional convention proposed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and asked that it be convoked in the usual manner.

W. I. Cleveland, of Kensington, presided at the meeting, which was attended by more than 500 persons. The Rev. Edwin S. Sheppe, jr., of Rockville, was general chairman of the committee, and addressed the gathering.

Pastor Ridicules Wets.

The Rev. Francis D. Nichol, of the American Temperance Society of Seventh Day Adventists, told the meeting that the wets are themselves exhibiting the hypocrisy that they have charged against the drys in their "ludicrous" attempt to conceal the "gruesome lines of the old-time saloon under a high-sounding collection of words." He said that the wets, "who have so fervently shouted with the drys the past decade that the saloon must not come back, apparently are opposed only to a large, shiny slab of mahogany and a long tubular piece of brass."

He charged that liquor interests have no respect for county, State or township lines, that their only interest is in the sale of liquor and that in the old days they willingly supplied the bootlegger in dry States and dry counties. He said that the wets now must assume the onus for the problem of liquor even as they have thrust responsibility for all of the evils of prohibition on the drys.

Charges Against Wets.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, president of the National Democratic Women's Law Enforcement League, declared that liquor had been abolished to strengthen the Nation in war and that it will weaken the Nation now in its struggles with "the greatest depression of all ages." She charged that the wet forces had contributed large sums of money in elections and had attempted to subsidize the press and coerced and boycotted commercial organizations opposed to liquor interests.

Other speakers were the Rev. Charles S. Longacre, of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination at Takoma Park, Md.; the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, rector of the All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase; Miss Byrd Belt, of Chevy Chase; George H. Lamar, Rockville attorney; Harry M. Martin, Kensington real estate dealer; Mrs. J. J. Thompson, of Burtonsville, president of the county Women's Christian Temperance Union; the Rev. M. E. Lederer, of Burtonsville; the Rev. Ralph D. Smith, of Silver Spring; the Rev. Fred Kuilman, of Kensington, who offered the opening prayer, and the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, of Rockville, who led the group in singing.

Woodring Talked For Manila Post

Former Governor of Kansas Also Discussed for War Assistant.

(Associated Press.)

Busy with his legislative program, President Roosevelt is finding little time for decisions on appointments for "the Little Cabinet" and other important offices.

Several names, however, continue to be mentioned prominently for some of these posts. Among these are Harry Woodring, former Governor of Kansas, who is regarded as a possible Assistant Secretary of War or Governor General of the Philippines in event Mr. Roosevelt decides to keep Homer Cummings as his Attorney General. Cummings originally was slated for the Philippines.

Considerable interest is developing in the President's choices for governors of Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The name of Ben Lindsey, former Denver judge and now a resident of California, is heard for the Pacific Island post.

Judge Bert Fish, of Deland, Fla., has been mentioned prominently for Puerto Rico.

Mexico Will Send Train Of President to Fair

Mexico City, March 26 (A.P.).—Officials of the National Railways tonight said Mexico would send the presidential train to Chicago for the world exposition this summer.

The train, called "the Olive Train" because of its color, will carry an extensive Mexican exhibit, and may also take the famous Monte Alban jewels found last year in Oaxaca, although this point has not yet been decided. It consists of five cars and was built in the United States six years ago.

7 MEN DRIFT TO SEA ON ATLANTIC FLOES

Five Other Seal Hunters Are Saved Off Coast of Nova Scotia.

Aberdeen, Cape Breton, N. S., March 26 (U.P.).—Seven seal hunters, ranging in age from 12 to 18 years, were being tossed about on three ice floes in the Atlantic Ocean tonight as efforts were made to rescue them.

Five other hunters were rescued by William McKinnon and Neil Kelly, of Aberdeen, who took them off in a dory as they were drifting a half mile from shore.

It was feared that the floes bearing the other seven might break up quickly if the sea became choppy tonight. The Canadian government ice cutter Montcalm was en route here from North Sydney, 30 miles away, to attempt a rescue.

Two thousand frantic Cape Breton residents lined the shore this afternoon as McKinnon and Kelly succeeded in rescuing Henry Nicholson, Raymond Burke, Dan McNeil, Neil J. McDonald and Stephen Boland. The dory would hold no more than these five and their rescurers. Nicholson, aged 14, nearly lost his life when he slipped into the water from the ice floe as the dory neared it.

While the rescue was being effected the other seven seal hunters could be seen from shore, the three ice floes on which they were captive slowly receding into the dusk. Three were on one floe and two each were on two other chunks of ice.

The hunters were carried out to sea when a large section of ice broke away from the shore. They did not notice their plight until several minutes after this occurred.

Technologists to Seek Employment Insurance

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—Permanent insurance against unemployment and industrial chaos is the aim of the newly organized All-American Technological Society, its sponsors said today.

The organization, formed here last week, intends to embrace as its membership the Nation's leading technologists—the men who conceive, make, and utilize machines.

WITNESS IS MISSING IN SCOTTSBORO CASE

Procedure Today Is in Doubt Because of Disappearance of Alabama Girl.

Decatur, Ala., March 26 (A.P.).—Disappearance of one of the State's principal witnesses cast some doubt here tonight on the probable course to be followed tomorrow when seven Negroes indicted in the "Scottsboro attack case" are to go on trial for the second time.

Speculation over the absence of Ruby Bates, one of the two alleged victims of the attack aboard a Southern Railway freight train on March 25, 1931, overshadowed a pending motion to quash the indictments.

Missing Since February 27.

The girl, who also is the alleged author of a letter repudiating her testimony in the first trials two years ago, has been missing from her home in Huntsville, Ala., since February 27, and officers thus far have been unable to find her.

Mrs. Mary Bates told officers she believed her daughter had been kidnaped.

The letter the Bates girl is alleged to have written and which she swore in an affidavit was false, was delivered to attorneys employed by the International Labor Defense at Birmingham recently, when efforts to gain the release of Roy Wright, one of the Negroes named in the original indictments, on a habeas corpus writ, failed.

Denial Reported.

In this letter, addressed to Earl Streetman, the girl purportedly denied that the attacks took place and asserted that she was forced to "swear a lie" by officers.

The day following its discovery on the person of Miron Pearlman, a pugilist who fought under the name of Danny Dundee, both Pearlman and the girl signed affidavits setting forth that the letter was written when the girl "was so drunk she did not know what she was doing."

Meanwhile, Victoria Price, other victim of the alleged attack, has repeatedly asserted that her testimony in the first trial was true.

Polish Jews Suspend Business in Protest

Warsaw, March 26 (A.P.).—Polish Jews today decided to close their shops and factories tomorrow in a universal protest against the treatment of co-religionaries in Germany.

People Are More Honest Nowadays, Says Justice

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—Justice Joseph Morschauser of the Supreme Court, who reaches his three score and ten years next Thursday, finds people in general more human, more honest, more decent and more trusting than they used to be.

Most of the world's troubles, he said in an interview today, are caused by envy and jealousy. He believes these cardinal sins not only are at the bottom of much wrongdoing, but often form the basis for the spread of divorce.

Justice Morschauser does not believe in divorce, but many of the most notorious divorce suits have been tried before him, including the Stillman case.

"The increase of divorce is the major calamity of American life," the pink-cheeked, blue-eyed jurist remarked. "Hasty marriage is responsible for some of them, a loss of wealth on the husband's part for others and a loss of the old-fashioned virtue of stick-to-it-iveness on the part of wives for many more.

"In nine cases out of ten the man is to blame for unhappy marriages. There are three things the American husband should learn. One is that you can't lick your wife. The second is that you can't make her love you. The third is that her capacity to forgive philandering is limited."

Justice Morschauser, a lifelong neighbor of President Roosevelt's at Hyde Park, will be honored Thursday night with a dinner given by young lawyers of Westchester County.

He plans to retire next December to loaf, travel and pursue one hobby —the reading of the decisions of the United States Supreme Court.

RIVER SURRENDERS BODY OF LOST GIRL

Search Renewed for Friend Who Vanished at Same Time.

Boston, March 26 (A.P.).—Muddy River, which had been dragged, bombed and dynamited in a vain search for the bodies of June Bolduc, 8, and Helen Lindenman, 9, Roxbury girls missing since February 21, today gave up one of them and immediately was searched thoroughly for the other.

The body of the Lindenman girl was found today by young men walking along the bank of the river, a quarter of a mile from Prentiss street, where both children lived.

Police immediately renewed dragging operations, which had been conducted for two weeks previously without a letup.

Thirty-three days ago the two girls, playmates reported, announced their intention of going over to the river to "see the ducks." Various reports placed them as sliding on the ice, and as talking to an elderly man who might have taken them away.

Throughout the search, police were of the belief the children had drowned, but every report of foul play or kidnaping was investigated. Cellars in the vicinity of their homes were dug up and every vacant factory and tenement in the neighborhood was searched.

An examination was ordered to determine if drowning were the cause of the death of the Lindenman girl.

Man Drowned as Boat Capsizes in Flood Area

Cincinnati, March 26 (A.P.).—Flood waters today claimed another victim —the thirteenth in eight days—when Eugene Lever, 23, of Newton, Ohio, drowned as a rowboat capsized in the Little Miami River near here. Three other men and a woman in the boat were rescued by William Simonton, caretaker at a camp.

The Ohio River today continued to recede slowly, falling 1.7 feet in 15 hours. The stage tonight was 57.2 feet, still 5.2 above flood stage.

NEW MINERS' UNION BEARDS OLD RIVALS

Mass Meeting at Ziegler Is Held Under Guard of Officials.

Ziegler, Ill., March 26 (A.P.).—Leaders of the Progressive Miners Union today shifted to Franklin County, stronghold of the United Mine Workers, their fight for supremacy in the Illinois coal fields.

Approximately 1,200 men and women, supporters of the Progressive Union, attended a mass meeting here this afternoon at which plans were made for calling strikes at all mines in the county tomorrow and for picketing of the mines, if necessary.

The mass meeting, held under protection of Zeigler city officials, was the first gathering of Progressives of any size which had been held in Franklin County. Previous attempts to hold mass meetings were frustrated by Sheriff Browning Robinson and his deputies.

Rivalry between the United Mine Workers and the Progressive Miners Union has resulted in the deaths of 9 persons and injuries to more than 100 in clashes between members of the two unions in recent months.

Tonight Sheriff Robinson prepared to have forces of deputies at all mines scheduled to work tomorrow morning. In Benton, county seat, crowds of armed men milled about the county jail.

During the trouble several months ago, citizen volunteers were deputized by the sheriff to prevent a march of outside miners into Franklin County.

Horseback Rider Killed; Reins Cut

Owner of Mount Is Grilled by Detectives in Death of Girl.

Norristown, Pa., March 26 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Golden, 23-year-old Norristown telephone operator, was killed today in a fall from a horse and police afterward said one rein of the harness had been cut almost through in two places.

Charles L. A. Eller, Montgomery County detective, reported he found the right rein broken after the accident at a riding academy in Fairview. He said a sharp knife apparently had been used "very recently" on the rein.

Robert Grover, 19, who has been living at the academy for the last four months, since he was employed by the owner, Eugene Kindlan, was brought to Norristown by Eller for questioning. Grover owns the horse which Miss Golden was riding. The detective said the youth formerly was employed as a trick rider with a rodeo. Miss Golden's neck was broken and her skull fractured.

Black Watch Claim Made by Prisoner

Man Held on Bad-Check Charge Says He Was Major in Regiment.

New York, March 26 (U.P.).—A man who gave his name as Alexander Wells, claiming to have been a major in the famous English Black Watch Regiment during the World War, was in jail here tonight charged with grand larceny in connection with passing alleged bad checks.

He was arrested at Albany charged with giving a bad check for $100, but the charge was dismissed when he made the check good. However, local officers had traced to him several checks issued here during the banking holiday and went to Albany and arrested him.

Police said Wells had a record as a forger and confidence game man in the West and had served terms in San Quentin, Folsom and Colorado State prisons.

35 Sand Carloads Ordered.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., March 26 (Special).—Pennsylvania Glass Sand Co., operating extensive sand mines in this section, has received orders for 35 carloads of sand from a Pennsylvania glass factory, it was announced. The order is the largest it has recorded in some months.

STORM IS BLAMED IN PLANE TRAGEDY

Varney Officials Think Poor Visibility Caused Crash Costing 12 Lives.

Oakland, Calif., March 26 (A.P.).—Rainstorms, causing poor visibility, were blamed today by Varney Speed Lines officials for the crash of their transport plane which took twelve lives, injured two persons and reduced two dwellings to smoking ruins.

A triple investigation of the crash was undertaken by Federal, State and county authorities.

The plane, piloted by Noel Evans, former war flier, and carrying as passengers Herman L. Brown, Hollywood builder, and Miss Lavele Miller, of Los Angeles, hurtled out of a rainstorm near here last night, carried away the tops of two houses and crashed into the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arisa, with an explosion that was heard for miles.

The Arisa home and an adjoining dwelling, sprayed with burning gasoline, roared into flame, trapping Mrs. Arisa, her four children and four friends, all of whom died swiftly. Joseph Arisa, the father, leaped through a window so critically burned he was expected to die.

Victims, besides occupants of the plane, were Mrs. Arisa, her children, Anna, 10; Joseph, Jr., 6; Michael, 4, and Juanita, 1 year 6 months, and four neighbors, Tony Serrano, 20; Joseph Serrano, 18, his brother; George Jeannott, 18, and Flores Fuentes, 17.

Milk Farmers Plan To Speed Blockade

Pennsylvania Producers to Extend Activity After Victory in York.

York, Pa., March 26 (A.P.).—Seeking new fields to conquer in their "milk war," officials of the York County farmers' organization declared today they aim to extend to other counties their fight for higher milk prices.

Four dealers capitulated yesterday and signed contracts with farmers, after pickets had prevented milk from reaching the holdout distributors.

About 800 farmers, in groups of 40 and 50, watched all roads leading into York. They turned back some trucks, knocked milk cans off one whose driver broke the blockade, and removed cans from other vehicles.

The agreement to which York district dealers have bound themselves with the farmers' organization calls for a price to producers of $1.40 per hundred pounds, with sliding scale provisions on butter fat content and retail price to consumers.

Chinese Appeals For America's Aid

Chen Asks U. S. to Support Treaties Protecting Against Invasion.

Shanghai, China, March 26 (U.P.).—An appeal to the United States to support the treaties protecting China from aggression was issued in a statement today by Eugene Chen, former foreign minister in the National government.

Chen's statement, published throughout the country, declared that the nine-power treaty, the Kellogg pact against war and the "open door" policy in China were all American-inspired documents and asks what measures the United States intends to take to assist China in obtaining Japan's observance of these pacts.

He declared also that it is the duty of the United States in return for cancellation of the war debts to demand the cooperation of France and Great Britain in forcing Japan to live up to the nine-power treaty signed in Washington, guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China.

Doctor Hides Youth Lynch Mob Hunts

Fugitive Accused of Attacking Girl Finally Lodged in Carolina Jail.

Lowell, N. C., March 26 (U.P.).—A young Negro accused of attempting criminal assault upon a 16-year-old white girl here was saved from lynching early today when a local physician secreted him in the basement of his home while a mob of several hundred persons searched vainly in another part of town.

Dr. James W. Reid hid Kirk Reid, 20, in his cellar after the youth had been accused. He kept him there until the mob moved away, then notified sheriff's officers, who took the Negro to Mecklenburg County Jail at Charlotte.

Dr. Reid said the youth stealthily approached his home, told him of the alleged crime and asked the physician to save him. The mob still searched for Reid after he had been safely lodged in the Charlotte Jail.

Socialists Denounce Labor Camp Program

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—Socialists made a double attack today on President Roosevelt's labor camp proposal, the Socialist and labor conference on unemployment making public a denunciatory resolution and the national party headquarters criticizing the plan as inadequate.

The party's view was expressed in a statement by Morris Hillquit, national chairman, announcing Socialist support for a "continental congress for economic reconstruction" which farm and labor leaders have called for May 6 and 7 in Washington.

National Socialists Gain Austrian Seats

Gmuend, Austria, March 26 (A.P.). In municipal elections here today, the National Socialists increased their mandates from four to nine. Socialists, who previously had 11 seats, won 10, and the Christian Social party dropped from 8 to 5.

Gmuend is on the Czechoslovakian border.

NUNGESSER FINDING STORY INVESTIGATED

Paris Asks Newfoundland Inquiry Into Reported Bones Discovery.

Paris, March 26 (U.P.).—The nation tonight awaited further details of reports that skeletons said to have been found in the woods of Newfoundland solved the mystery of the fate of Francois Coli and Charles Nungesser, French aviators who vanished in an effort to fly from Paris to New York in 1927.

The ministries of air and of colonies ordered an official inquiry into the reports which said that a resident of St. Pierre and Miquelon, French islands off Newfoundland, had found the skeletons of the famous aviators.

The order was sent to the Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon, asking he attempt to communicate with the authorities in Newfoundland and seek to verify the reports. Officials were skeptical, but at the colonial ministry it was admitted that the skeletons might be those of the men who sought to fly from France to New York, covering the route flown later the same month by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Meanwhile, the popular imagination was stirred by the dispatches published in the newspaper Petit Marseillais, at Marseilles.

Nungesser's mother, spending the week-end in the country far from any telephone or newspapers, knew nothing about the possible final ending of her six-year vigil. She continually has insisted that her son was alive and made the crossing.

U. S. Fleet Stages Battle Tomorrow

Giant Maneuvers to Take Place in Area About San Nicolas.

San Pedro, Calif., March 26 (A.P.). The United States fleet will put to sea from its San Pedro and San Diego bases tomorrow in preparation for force battle practice to be fired just before noon Tuesday in the drill area of San Nicolas Island.

Tomorrow will be given over to rehearsal for the highly—involved exercise, in which more than 100 combatant ships and some 250 aircraft will simultaneously participate in close simulation of a major fleet action. At the climax ten superdreadnaughts will loose combined main batteries against the "enemy" line of target rafts speeding along the horizon. More than a million pounds of steel projectiles will be hurled by battleship turret guns alone.

The senior officer in command will be Admiral Richard H. Leigh, who will observe the great show from aboard his flagship Pennsylvania.

President Reviews Peruvian Recruits

17,000 New Troops March Before Sanchez-Cerro at Capital.

Lima, Peru, March 26 (A.P.).—Seventeen thousand army recruits, between the ages of 21 and 25, paraded in front of the palace today after attending solemn high mass.

President Luis M. Sanchez-Cerro, members of the cabinet and other government officials reviewed the marchers from a balcony of the palace while a large crowd cheered the recruits. Army regiments garrisoned in Lima and Callao also attended the mass.

Peru and Colombia have been in conflict several months over the Leticia territory in the upper Amazon Valley. Several classes of recruits recently were called out for periods of training.

Crisis Is Soluble, Says Paul-Boncour

Surely Peace or War Is at Stake, Avers French Foreign Minister.

Paris, March 26 (A.P.).—Joseph Paul-Boncour, foreign minister, speaking tonight at an international press banquet, asserted "surely peace or war is at stake in the months in which we are living."

The foreign minister prefaced his assertions by saying that the present difficulties are "grave but not insoluble."

He stressed the necessity for success of the disarmament conference, saying "its setback would be a signal for an armaments race of which we know too well what would result."

NEW MOONEY TRIAL PLANS IN ABEYANCE

Prosecutor Awaits Official Notice Noted Prisoner Will Face Court.

San Francisco, March 26 (A.P.).—U. S. Webb, State's attorney general, today awaited official notification of the granting of a new trial to Thomas J. Mooney before beginning to map plans for prosecution.

Mooney, who was convicted of murder following the 1916 preparedness day bombing which killed 10 and injured 40 persons, won yesterday the right to be tried April 26 on an unused murder indictment.

A decision by Superior Judge Louis H. Ward gave him the trial. Mooney has been in San Quentin Prison sixteen years.

"Until the matter is brought officially before me I will have nothing to say," Webb said. "All I know of the matter is what I have read in the morning papers."

Judge Ward's decision was followed by withdrawal from prosecution of the old indictment of District Attorney Matthew A. Brady, and the designation by the court of the State attorney general's office to handle the coming trial.

Gov. James Rolph, jr., who denied a pardon to Mooney last year, following a hearing in which former Mayor James J. Walker of New York represented the prisoner, was not available for comment.

Brady in withdrawing from the case asserted "such a make-believe trial" would not benefit Mooney and that even acquittal would leave his status unchanged.

Attorneys representing Mooney argued in yesterday's proceedings that acquittal now would strengthen Mooney's long fight for a pardon.

Walker for Speed In Trying Mooney

Former Mayor Confident Trial Will Result in Acquittal.

Cannes, France, March 26 (A.P.).—"Mooney free could be an asset to society instead of a symbol for the enemies of law and order," said former Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, today. He was commenting on the decision to grant a new trial to Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life sentence in California in connection with the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco.

Walker, recalling the transcontinental trip he made in Mooney's behalf several months ago, called the decision a splendid one.

"It had to come," he said, "and it can only result in acquittal and complete vindication. I hope there will be no delay."

Steel Off for Coast By All-Water Route

Industry Makes Shipment as Part of Fight for Lower Rail Rate.

Pittsburgh, March 26 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Steel Co. is dispatching its first shipment to the Pacific Coast via an all-water route tomorrow—in the latest move in the industry's battle for reduced railroad freight rates.

Two barges loaded with 1,200 tons of nails, wire and pipe will start floating down the Ohio for New Orleans to be reshipped through the Panama Canal by steamer.

Officials claim they will save $3 a ton net over the usual rail route to the Atlantic seaboard and reshipment by steamer.

D'Annunzio Recuperates From Arthritis Attack

Rome, March 26 (U.P.).—Gabriele D'Annunzio, the poet, was reported recuperating today from an attack of arthritis which he suffered two weeks ago.

An attendant, reached at the writer's mansion at Gardone, said reports he was dying were "wholly false." The 69-year-old writer, it was said, instead is improving.

HARRIMAN EXAMINER DEFENDED BY AWALT

tionably it could have ordered the report sent in at once."

The full text of Awalt's statement follows:

"I understand that some of the New York papers have carried items to the effect that Chief National Bank Examiner Roberts held up the report on criminal violations in connection with the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co., of New York City, and that these items are based upon verbal statements made to newspaper representatives in Washington. In justice to Mr. Roberts, I feel that I should issue a written statement in order that the facts, as shown by the files of this office, are clear.

"On July 25, 1932, Mr. Roberts reported by letter addressed to the comptroller's office that irregularities had been discovered by the examiner in making an examination of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co., inclosing with his letter three carbon copies of the report of the examiner with respect to the alleged irregularities.

"Mr. Roberts also stated in his letter that the original of the report was being withheld temporarily in order to adjust any and all of the problems with which the bank was confronted and in order to avoid any disturbance to the bank until its affairs might be placed in better shape. Another examination and investigation was shortly thereafter ordered and the affairs of the bank again subjected to close scrutiny.

"The original of the report was submitted to the office by letter on December 21, 1932, and received in the comptroller's office December 23, 1932, first coming to my attention at that time, and on that date being transmitted to the Department of Justice.

"The course pursued was obviously in the public interest and for the protection of the creditors of the bank and, had the department felt otherwise, unquestionably it could have ordered the report sent in at once."

3-FAITH MANIFESTO ASKS HELP FOR POOR

Catholics, Protestants and Jews Unite in Demand for Social Justice.

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—Prominent Catholics, Protestants and Jews joined in issuing a manifesto today through the National Conference of Jews and Christians calling for tax reforms, more adequate provision for the unemployed and legislation to "check a breaking down of our hardly won enlightened standards of labor."

The manifesto was signed by 160 clergymen and laymen. It resulted from a series of informal discussions during the past several months as to the possibility of members of the three faiths being able to agree on a joint utterance.

Roger W. Straus, one of the co-chairmen of the conference, issued a supplementary statement calling the declaration "a striking example of how in this country the various groups cooperate in the interest of the national welfare, while at the same time in Germany one group attempts to blot out minorities."

The other cochairmen are Newton D. Baker, representing Protestants, and Prof. Carlton J. H. Hayes, representing Catholics.

The statement deplores "the present cruel and unnecessary inequalities in men's opportunity to obtain and enjoy's earth's material blessings" and calls for "courageous governmental action," "a national planning board to lay down far-sighted lines of industrial control for human welfare" and methods of taxation which "shall place the major burden on those best able to bear it."

"The present organization of society," the manifesto declares, "fails in tragic measure to reflect the principles of justice and brotherhood which our religious teachings share in common when it allows untold numbers of men, women and children to suffer in the midst of plenty.

"We are convinced that the common will to mitigate mass poverty can best be realized through orderly social action, inspired by divine teaching."

The signers include the Rev. Peter Ainslie, president of the Christian Unity League, Baltimore; the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, of Washington, D. C.; the Rev. Albert Edward Day, of Baltimore; Rabbi Morris Lazaron, of Baltimore; Bishop William Fraser McDowell, of Washington; the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins, the Rev. Samuel Judson Porter and the Rev. Carl C. U. S. Jews Frame German Demands

2,200 in New York Cheer Four Points to Be Laid Before Prittwitz.

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—While 2,200 Jews applauded and cheered, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, honorary president of the American Jewish Congress, announced today during a sermon that the congress tomorrow will transmit to the German government, through Ambassador Wilhelm von Prittwitz, four vital "demands." They are:

1. "There must be an immediate cessation of all antisemitic activities and propaganda in Germany. * * *

2. "The abandonment of the policy of racial discrimination against and of economic exclusion of Jews from the life of Germany. * * *

3. "The protection of Jewish life and property.

4. "There shall not be an expulsion of 'Ost Juden' Jews who have come into Germany since 1914."

Baronet of Nova Scotia Dies at Yorkshire Home

Rudston, Yorkshire, England, March 26 (A.P.).—Sir Alexander MacDonald, holder of the title Bosville MacDonald of the Isles and the Premier Baronetcy of Nova Scotia, died at his home, Thorpe Hall, today at the age of 67.

Sir Alexander held several county offices, among them high sheriff of Yorkshire. His son, Godfrey MacDonald, succeeds to the title as fifteenth baronet. Sir Alexander assumed the title in 1910.

BARON VON NEURATH SEES HATE REVIVAL

Minister Says Atrocity Tales Have Similar Basis to War Propaganda.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, March 26.—Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, ordinarily the Hitler cabinet's silent man who virtually never receives journalists, broke his silence today to throw the entire weight of his internationally known personality against what he considers "the deliberate, sudden rebirth of the villification campaign conducted during the World War against the German government."

Speaking quietly, but with an inner emotion that even his composed attitude of a man of the world could not hide, he declared:

"It is my duty, both because I must defend the honor of my people, and because I am a responsible statesman, to warn the world against permitting the baneful spirit of calumny in vogue during the war to flare up again."

To a general question regarding the federal government's attitude toward news published in the foreign press of alleged acts of terror committed against different-minded persons, and especially Jews, Baron von Neurath, receiving the correspondent in his office in the Wilhelmstrasse, replied in German:

"Even the best organized administrative apparatus would not suffice to go to the bottom of each and every one of these malicious tendentious false reports and deny them.

"I find no other explanation for the present propaganda unloosed against the German government than to consider it a deliberate, sudden rebirth of the villification campaign conducted during the World War."

De la Boulaye Glad Of Return to U. S.

New French Ambassador Served Here as Aid to Jusserand.

Paris, March 26 (A.P.).—A determination to work constantly for a better understanding between France and America was expressed today by Andre Lefevre de la Boulaye, new French Ambassador to the United States.

In an overseas message he told of his pleasure in returning to a country where his two children were born, where President Roosevelt is a friend, and where he spent six years as a disciple of Jean Jules Jusserand, former French Ambassador to Washington.

He abstained from a discussion of Franco-American problems, declaring that while the two countries sometimes lacked understanding, they never lacked sympathy.

Abyssinian Emperor's Second Daughter Dies

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, March 26 (A.P.).—Princess Senaba-Ouorq, second daughter of the Emperor of Abyssinia, died today at Makalla, North Abyssinia, where she lived with her husband, Dedjaz Haile Selassie, whom she married nine months ago.

The body will be brought here by airplane.

2 SLASHED, 2 JAILED AFTER HOME DANCE

Victims of Affray in Virginia Are Brought to Washington Hospitals.

Two men are in Washington hospitals and two are in the jail at Fairfax, Va., as the outcome of a dance Saturday night at the home of Lucian Reynolds at Red Hill, near Bull Run, Va.

Cecil Clingerfield, of Centerville, Va., is in Gallinger Hospital suffering from knife wounds in the face, arms, wrist and abdomen, said to have been inflicted by Archie Fisher, of Haymarket, Va., another guest, now held in the Fairfax County Jail without bond. Joseph Kerns, uncle of Fisher, is in Emergency Hospital suffering from knife cuts in the side supposedly inflicted by Clingerfield when he took up his nephew's quarrel.

According to Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax, Fisher attacked Clingerfield with a knife, cutting him severely. Clingerfield obtained a knife and started after his assailants, who ran, and Kerns stepped into the fray with a drawn knife and was cut by Clingerfield. Willie Gheen, another guest, seized a piece of wood and struck Kerns. Gheen is also held in the Fairfax Jail pending the outcome of the investigation by the police.

The injured men were taken to the hospital by friends and Fisher, and when the hospital authorities heard their story, Washington police held Fisher and notified the Fairfax County sheriff, who took him back to Virginia. Gheen was arrested at his home near Centerville yesterday morning.

James W. Stevens Reported Improved

Chairman of Illinois Life Is Rallying From Recent Stroke.

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—Physicians attending James W. Stevens, chairman of the board of the Illinois Life Insurance Co., today reported a slight improvement in his condition. He suffered an apoplectic stroke eight days ago.

Stevens is under indictment on embezzlement charges in connection with the $150,000,000 collapse of the insurance company.

The case is scheduled to be called before Judge Philip L. Sullivan in Criminal Court tomorrow, but State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney said the case would be postponed because of Stevens' illness. His son, Raymond, president of the concern, shot and killed himself last week.

Weather Influence On Slump Is Cited

Even Temperature Coincides With Poor Business, Ohioan Finds.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 26 (A.P.).—The weather, suspects Dr. Clarence A. Mills, may have had something to do with the depression.

Professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati, he explained today that five years of study of climatic conditions and their effect on mankind has led to the conclusion that the weather also has plenty to do with economic conditions.

He found that charts of temperature changeability and of business indices over a hundred years corresponded strikingly. Where temperatures fluctuated widely, business drove ahead. Where temperatures clung close to a given level, business activity slumped.

breaks them into the rainbow and records them as vertical lines on a photographic plate.

Such "lines" have been available for years, but their interpretation was lacking. Explaining what Dr. Spedding does, Prof. Raymond T. Birge, of the University of California, wrote the award committee:

"It is well known that the study of the spectra of gaseous substances gives very definite and detailed information concerning the structure of the atom in the gaseous state. It has, however, been very difficult to get definite information regarding the solid state. The sharpness and amount of detail in these spectra (of solids) are quite extraordinary and the information that they are capable of giving is therefore extensive."

Dr. Spedding was born at Hamilton, Ontario, October 22, 1902, and is an American citizen. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1926, and received his Ph.D. from the University of California in 1929.

An actual, visible confirmation of the wave motion predicted by Einstein in solid crystals, motions such as Spedding's method also is beginning to reveal, will be shown at the meeting in a discovery made at Johns Hopkins University and announced by the society last night.

Einstein said that crystal atoms would some day be found to vibrate to and fro like water waves in a tub. On top of that, Linus J. Pauling, winner of the Young genius chemistry award two years ago, said they also would be found spinning.

The model confirms both predictions. It was made by Prof. Victor Deitz. It is a framework of wood, patterned to represent enormously enlarged crystals such as solid carbon monoxide or solidified nitrogen. Within this frame the atoms are little wooden blocks, rubber bands spacing them just as X-rays reveal them in real crystals. Like a real crystal it is mostly empty space, and looks much like the skeleton of a steel building.

When this model is shaken the wooden atoms take on both the wave motion and the spin that science predicted. In nature the heat causes the atomic motions. In the model, when the energy of the shake is made proportional to a given heat energy, the resulting motions agree almost precisely with the mathematics of heat motion.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

Here is how members of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Fishing Club appear when good fellers get together for an outing at Prince Frederick, Md. Left to right—James M. Griffin (commodore), C. L. Garner, L. B. Diggins, C. C. Weidemann, G. S. White, D. L. Parkhurst, E. J. Brown, Henry Godfried Ayers and C. H. Swick. Picture of the catch is not shown, because even a picture would not be believed! It was night when they returned, anyway. And does Mrs. Capt. Hezie Elliott supply good eats?

WHEN U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Fishing Club again elects a treasurer Henry G. Avers may have to scratch hard for votes. You see, Henry Avers, who is chief statistician of the Survey, with all his ability at figures, generally has to call on the club members for "more money" after the outings are over.

Maybe it is because the boat hire was more than he had figured. Maybe it was because of this, or that, but the boys generally have to dig for a new ante after it's all over.

Nevertheless, Henry Avers is still treasurer and no one has announced as candidate against him, and will not. That's his job and he's stuck with it.

Of course, these men—and right here let it be said these men, practically all of them, are known all over the world for some phase of their work, men who have been recognized by other governments — of course, these men could buy the same fish at the store and it wouldn't cost near as much, only a fraction. But we don't live but once—unless you believe otherwise—so let's make the fun last, in this year of A. N. D., A New Deal.

"We used to go to an island for fishing and recreation," said C. C. Weidemann, secretary of the survey. "But we felt like we were buying stock in the place. Now we go to Prince Frederick, Md., and we're pleased."

AND if you didn't know James M. Griffin is a commodore you should see his seagoing cap, embellished with embroidered crab. But the crab does the commodore injustice, if you consider his happy manner.

Walking up and down halls of Government buildings one does not get to know good fellers. One must see behind the doors, one must look at the work these men do to understand these men are full of play and fun off the job, are the men who handle important problems for Uncle Sam while on the job.

As the names of the Survey Fishing Club are called, please answer "Present":

Henry G. Avers, chief statistician; Lieut. Edwin J. Brown (Brown gravity apparatus); Louis B. Diggins, copperplate engraver; Lindsey P. Disney, tide-predicting machine; Commander Clem L. Garner, assistant chief, Geodesy; James M. Griffin, commodore; Frank J. Haight; Commander J. H. Hawley, assistant director of the bureau; Lieut. Joseph P. Lushene, field work; Capt. Edwin H. Pagenhart, chief, charts division; Douglas L. Parkhurst, chief, instrument division; Capt. R. S. Patton, director of the bureau; Edward W. Raab, pressroom; Capt. A. M. Sobieralski, ship surveyor, Alaska; Clarence H. Swick, chief, section of gravity and astronomy; Clarence C. Weidemann, secretary, Survey, and Capt. Paul C. Whitney, chief, division of tides and currents.

The club may shove off most any minute now for the next fishing outing.

ONLY five more days in which to register for the Federal Diary jig-saw puzzle tournament Thursday evening at the Kennedy-Warren at 8 o'clock.

Some Government employes have been under the impression they needed to pay something to enter. That idea is incorrect. There are no strings tied to anything The Federal Diary offers its readers. When a contest or social affair is presented, it's complimentary. Your only expense is to come and go to the scene of activity.

The prizes The Diary offers will be worth while competing for. The Diary's main purpose is to provide a delightful evening, that we may assemble, know each other better and have a good time. No strings, no fees. Bring your friends.

When I read in The Post of the finding of the McEwen baby by Miss Mae Glotzback I tried to commemorate the deed by the inclosed sonnet. Although I realize that the poem itself is very mediocre, I am taking advantage of your invitation to Federal clerks and my status as such to send it to you with the hope that you will find room for it in your column because of the loveliness of the act which inspired it. On the face of it perhaps there is nothing outstanding about what Miss Glotzback did, but I wonder if many of us would not have seen the baby carriage and heard the baby and have done nothing more as we passed by than to say to ourselves, "What a careless mother, but it is no business of ours."

Let me say that I find your column one of the most interesting parts of the morning paper.

The times are hard, and hard to find that thing
That one must give for bread; but babe is dear,
And mother-love is strong, until black fear,
When babe is lost, the very soul does wring.
The night is very heavy, black and cold;
The woollen cover does not dull its bite.
And where's that milk, that's every baby's right,
And mother-arms that baby-sleep
enfolds?

Madonna heart stirred by a feeble cry
Of lost and hungry infant's heart-desire,
Like good Samaritan, could not pass by Untouched, for air was cold with all day rain;
Till mother's found, baby's quiet by the fire—
Then babe smiles—warm in mother's arms again.

THERE is a man in Government service who essays the role of a modern Noah, saving animals for mankind, who enjoys fullest confidence of Congress (that's something in itself), who, with his staff, is constantly in peacetime war, and who is peacemaker of wide repute.

Dr. J. R. Mohler.

That man is Dr. John Robbins Mohler, third and present chief, Bureau of Animal Industry, Agriculture.

There was a kosher butchers' strike, some 3,000 of them, in New York not many years ago. Speculators got to the yards ahead of the butchers daily and grabbed off choicest steers, so that when the kosher butchers arrived they found the lots had been picked over. They were forced to buy culls or pay premium for choicer animals.

The situation became serious. The butchers were suspicious of attempts to settle the strike from outside quarters.

Dr. Mohler went to New York. He appeared before the butchers to explain the Government's interest in settling the strike. The butchers would have none of it. Dr. Mohler looked too much like a rank outsider. Why should he come bearing the olive branch? What was his interest?

Those questions went unanswered while Dr. Mohler shed his coat, hat and donned work clothes. He became one of the butchers and studied their grievances from the core out. Result was that soon he gained their entire confidence. They were ready to hear his suggestions. The strike was settled. The butchers were satisfied. He was their friend.

He is friend of all who deal in meats—producer, carrier, dealer or consumer—or even animals themselves.

The 28-hour law for railroads, the time limit when cattle must be unloaded for rest and exercise, owes its existence to Dr. Mohler's studies. The net result is that, like "milk from contented cows," meat from better treated animals reaches the consumers' tables. The producer is saved the shrinkage and the animal arrives at market in better condition.

Congress may haggle over some figures. But when Dr. Mohler appears with figures and facts, the lawmakers cup their ears and hear Dr. Mohler with earnestness. He knows his full requirements to conduct his work, and there is no room left for argument when he appears with his facts. Congress knows Dr. Mohler's work.

In 1906, while making an inspection at the port of New York City of zebu cattle from India, he detected, through blood tests, the presence of surra parasites in the imported cattle the day before the quarantine period was to expire. This discovery saved the live stock industry of the United States from great damage.

"I was walking along a street traveled daily by many of Uncle Sam's faithfuls," Swarmi Fedd confides. "Ahead, I observed a man with a small roll of paper under his right arm. I approached, addressed him friendly, remarking: 'What have you under your arm—a roll of maps?' 'Oh, no;' the Federal employe answered merrily, 'it's the "new deal" pay roll. You see it's smaller.' Right away I concluded that this man was eligible for immediate enlistment in the now-growing Army of Optimists."

AT LEAST Senator Borah caught the point we tried to put over recently on Government pay reduction when he said • • • "where a person is living on $1,000 a year a reduction of his income by 15 per cent means infinite hardship and distress compared with the reduction of 15 per cent in the salary of the person drawing $10,000 or $12,000 a year.

"• • • The man getting $10,000 or $12,000 a year and who gets a 15 per cent reduction does not feel the pinch and the hardship and the distress which will inevitably be felt by the person who is getting only $1,000 a year, which barely keeps body and soul together and who must, of course, reduce his or her expenditures by 15 per cent. That is manifestly unjust. There is no reason why that kind of injustice should remain in the bill. It is indefensible in conscience; it is grossly inequitable. Such a measure can never receive my support.

"For instance, we have a number of people upon the pay roll of the Government who are receiving the small sum of $1,000 or $1,200 a year and far less. Every single red cent taken from that family's income is aggravated into torture and distress by reason of the fact that they are now living upon the lowest round which should ever prevail as the standard of living in the United States. We could infinitely better afford to increase the percentage of reduction in all salaries above $5,000 or $6,000 in order to relieve those who are receiving the very low salaries. • • • Let us cut more deeply into our own salaries. Let us cut more deeply in all the higher salaries."

COLOMBIA REPORTS CAPTURE OF TOWN

500 Peruvians Put to Rout After Eight-Hour Fight, Bulletin Says.

Bogota, Colombia, March 26 (A.P.).—The capture of Guepi, a river settlement in the disputed Leticia border area, by Colombian troops was reported in an official bulletin tonight.

The communique said Guepi was defended by 500 soldiers of the regular Peruvian army, who were "splendidly entrenched."

After an 8-hour battle, the Peruvian troops abandoned their position, leaving their arms and casualties. Several Peruvians were taken prisoner, the bulletin added, and there were several Colombian casualties.

Occupation of the sector was completed after a squadron of Colombian gunboats had bombed the position.

It was authoritatively learned that the Colombian gunboats Cartagena and Santa Marta, proceeding down the Putumayo River toward Leticia, were attacked by the Peruvian garrison at Guepi.

This, the communique said, precipitated the conflict.

Guepi is on the right bank of the Upper Putumayo River between Caucaya and Puerta Spina.

Observers said they believed the Guepi action was the first of a general offensive in the Putumayo region.

The border region of Leticia was ceded to Colombia in a treaty in 1922. Last fall Peruvian nationals seized it. Subsequently, hostilities between Colombia and Peru broke out into open warfare in February at Tarapaca.

Last week the Peruvian government announced that Peruvian and Colombian planes engaged in a battle near Tarapaca, and that Colombian troops and ships were bombed. This was said to be a counter-attack on Colombians who had advanced near Buenos Aires, on the Coluhe River, in the heart of the Leticia area.

Snow at Somerset, Pa., Brings Sleighing Parties

Somerset, Pa., March 26 (A.P.).—Sleighing parties made merry today in Somerset County on a 9-inch blanket of snow deposited by cohorts of King Winter on a springtime panorama.

The jingle of sleigh bells sounded along numerous country roads. One sleigh party of 24 young folks visited Somerset late today. Trunk highways are cleared for automobile traffic. Strangely, one day later in March last year—the 27th—Somerset County had a 14-inch snowfall.

REVENUE AND TRADE FLOWING FROM BEER

boxes. Tank stock also was said to be in demand for brewery purposes.

"For the first time this year, board feet lumber orders booked by the mills during the week ended March 18 were heavier than for the corresponding week of 1932—14 per cent heavier," Dr. Compton said.

As a part of moderate quickening of commercial and industrial activity in business generally during the last week, the bottle and bottling equipment manufacturers and some other lines reported a substantial increase in activity due to beer. Operators of trucks and railroads also reported themselves hopeful that distribution of the brew would further stimulate their business. Railroads have applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to cut their rates in order to go after the bulky business.

From Greenville, Miss., came a report of rush orders for 125,000 cottonwood beer bases, and continued activity, employing nearly 200 additional men, was forecast by officials of the plant.

In Chicago officials of the Edward Don & Co. said they had sold more steins and goblets during the last week than in any similar period in the last ten years.

A more far-reaching compilation by L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, revealed estimates that more than $65,000,000 will be spent in the next few months for new breweries and for alterations and additions to old ones.

Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, reported that large sums had reached the Internal Revenue Bureau already for beer taxes and figured millions would be paid in by April 7.

Two breweries in St. Louis ordered $1,250,000 worth of revenue stamps, calculated by them to last about three months. In New York, meanwhile, an estimate was made by brewers that 4,000,000 barrels of beer might be produced there during the first year, which would net the Federal Treasury $20,000,000.

THERE'S A FORTUNE AWAITING.

There's a fortune awaiting for the man who believes
That beyond the dark clouds that press downward today
The sun is still shining—and through faith who receives
The will to go on—and keep fighting today.

There's a fortune awaiting for the fighter who knows
That the gloom of today will pass with the years,
That the clouds 'gainst the sun make only rainbows,
That tomorrow will glisten in smiles and in cheers.

There's a fortune awaiting for the man who won't quit,
For the man who refuses to give up in defeat,
Who turns from each blow with new vim and more grit
And dares to fight on to victory sweet.

COLORED ATTORNEYS HEAR PHILADELPHIAN

R. P. Alexander Urges Plan to Create Tradesmen of Middle Class.

A lawyers' day program, sponsored by the Washington Bar Association, composed of colored attorneys, culminated in a mass meeting last night in the auditorium of the Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, where Raymond Pace Alexander, of Philadelphia, former president of the National Bar Association, was the principal speaker. He discussed the part of the Negro lawyer in a program of economic and social reconstruction.

He advocated development by the educated Negro of a program for racial growth calculated to create a virile middle class of small business men and women, and indicated the important part which the legal profession was prepared to take in guiding this movement. "The success of business enterprise," he stated, "goes back always to the legality of its beginning. I urge every attorney to get behind the colored Elks' movement, to rehabilitate the National Benefit Life Insurance Co., as the basis of a program for development of small business enterprises among colored people."

Judge James A. Cobb paid a tribute to the late Judge Robert H. Terrell, at the same time emphasizing the need for full enforcement of all the law. A lobby at the Capitol on legislation affecting the Negro was advocated by J. C. Olden. Perry W. Howard spoke in the interest of stronger organization of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People here.

Other speakers included Nathan A. Dobbins, Frank W. Adams, George E. C. Hayes, Josiah Henry, J. Flipper Derricote, John H. Wilson, Benjamin L. Gaskins, George A. Parker, Louis R. Mehlinger, Thurman L. Dodson, Emerson W. Brown and Augustus W. Gray, president of the Washington Bar Association.

Harry Bannister Unhurt When Plane Hits Light

Oklahoma City, March 26 (A.P.).—Harry Bannister, stage and screen actor and former husband of Ann Harding of the films, escaped without injury in a mishap upon landing his airplane at the Municipal Air Terminal today.

The plane struck a boundary light, damaging one wing. It was repaired quickly and Bannister took off for Wichita Falls, Tex., in continuation of a flight to Los Angeles.

Greek Monarchy's Return Probable

Paris Hears Former King George Contemplating Early Coup.

Paris, March 26 (U.P.).—The early return of the monarchy in Greece was regarded as probable in Paris today, as a result of recent events there.

One report said that former King George of Greece dispatched his aide-de-camp, Col. Levidis, to Athens to negotiate for his restoration to the throne.

His return was believed opportune at this time because of the royalist leanings of Premier Tocaldaris.

Examiner's Slayer Faces Court Friday

Officials Find Banker Is Reticent on Reasons for Shooting.

Altus, Okla., March 26 (A.P.).—A preliminary hearing for J. H. Brock, Headrick banker, charged with murdering W. C. Ernest, State bank examiner, was set today for next Friday.

State Bank Commissioner W. J. Barnett, here to conduct a personal investigation of an alleged shortage in Brock's accounts reported by Ernest shortly before he was killed Friday, and County Attorney Ross Rutherford, questioned Brock two hours today in the Jackson County Jail.

Commissioner Barnett said Brock for the most part replied: "I prefer not to answer."

Premonition Saved Wife of Air Victim

Sudden Fear Keeps Woman From Starting on Fatal Flight.

Hollywood, March 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ramona Gormley Brown said tonight a premonition caused her to refuse to accompany her husband, Herman L. Brown, on the airplane flight to Oakland on which he was killed tonight.

At the last minute, Mrs. Brown said, she experienced a sudden fear and decided not to go.

Brown, 48, a capitalist and builder, was to have conferred with business associates in San Francisco. A resident of Los Angeles and Hollywood twelve years, he lived formerly at San Francisco and Seattle and was once an Alaskan gold miner.

ANALYSIS OF PRAYER IS MADE BY PASTOR

Dr. J. H. Taylor Explains Why Christ Found It Necessary in His Life.

Declaring "prayer is a spiritual exercise and a spiritual experience," Dr. James H. Taylor, at the Central Presbyterian Church yesterday morning, said that "one difficulty we have in regard to our acceptance of prayer is that we are always trying to subject prayer to some sort of scientific analysis."

Preaching on "The Praying of Jesus," Dr. Taylor took as his text two Bible passages referring to the Saviour at prayer.

"Do we really believe in prayer?" Dr. Taylor asked. "There are certain very clear and definite promises given that prayer is answered. We are aware of certain laws, of cause and effect, of standards and of experiences in the natural world and we are often taking these over into our spiritual experience and demanding that spiritual experience shall conform to these natural laws. As a matter of fact the natural laws have no bearing upon these spiritual concepts and experiences. These things are spiritual; 'the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned.'

Why Jesus Needed Prayer.

"Why was it necessary for Christ to pray? He is the incarnate Son of God. But because He was both human and divine; because He was bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh; because He knew hunger and thirst and weariness; because He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, He needed like ourselves to pray. Jesus prayed for strength and courage, strength for every task and courage to perform. So must we pray for courage for each day, for never a day comes but demands of us the very best of courage and of strength.

"Jesus prayed that He might give a real spirit to the day. Each day has its spirit and its atmosphere and its color. There is the spirit of the day as well as the spirit of the age. There are dark days, and bright days and gray days and blue Mondays and black Fridays. The day has its spirit, the day has its color, the day has its atmosphere. He will make of the day a glorious day. If you, too, would make the day bright, and of a fine and glowing spirit, then you must pray.

Privilege of Service.

"Jesus gave thanks for the privilege of service. The day had been full of opportunities for service, for self-denial and sacrifice. He had not let these opportunities slip by. Shall we not profit by his example and seize every opportunity for good? The day often brings opportunities for sacrifice, shall we not have the willingness and the courage to deny ourselves, to see these opportunities for service and to give ourselves gladly to any work or sacrifice that the day may offer.

"Jesus prayed and gave thanks for another day of life; that He could live another day and bear witness to the infinite love and mercy of a Heavenly Father. His life was a constant proof of the love of God; His daily acts were evidence of the mercy and goodness of God. Shall we not give similar proof by our lives of the love and mercy of God. The world needs to know more of this love and mercy and we are witnesses of these facts."

CAPONE GANG PLANS FOR BEER ACTIVITY

tors or small dealers, it was learned tonight from reliable sources.

Prohibition officials admitted they have been informed of the plan, but are seeking more information before determining how to fight it.

Remaining leaders of the badly crippled Capone gang made it known a week ago they would not try to compete with legal breweries. Such an effort, they decided, would cost too much.

The plan then was to focus gang activities in gambling, but reliable reports now are that the gang will attempt to get part of the beer profits also. The fight, it is understood, will be made by that unit of the gang which has controlled union organizations and harassed legitimate businesses the last two years.

Prohibition officials have information that unless the law intervenes, Murray Humphries, gang chieftain since Capone went to Atlanta Prison, will be the leader of the movement. Humphries boasts he "brought 9-cent milk to Chicago." Among his aids are "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn and William ("Three Fingered Jack") White.

Chilean Gold Mine Report.

Santiago, Chile, March 26 (A.P.).—About 227 pounds of gold were mined the first two weeks of March in gold fields near here, it was reported today.

LECTURER EXPLAINS SOVIET FOOD SLUMP

Kunitz Says Five-Year Plan Failed to Push Farms as It Did Industry.

The Soviet Union's food shortage is due primarily to the failure of the five-year plan to develop agriculture as rapidly as it has industry, Joshua Kunitz, author and lecturer, said yesterday at a meeting in the Arlington Hotel sponsored by the Washington branch of the Friends of the Soviet Union.

He said that other causes were the transfer of great tracts of land from food crops to industrial crops and the food-raising peasants migrating to the large cities to work in the factories.

Agriculture has dropped behind its schedule because of the time consumed in increasing agriculture by introducing and producing agricultural machinery, he said. He added that a great deal of the Soviet's food production is being exported from the country to provide industrial machinery.

Mr. Kunitz, who spoke before an audience of more than 300 persons, was born in Russia and received his early education under the Czarist regime. He later was graduated from the College of the City of New York and Columbia University.

Benavides Back in Peru To Fight for Country

Lima, Peru, March 26 (A.P.).—Gen. Oscar Benavides, former president of Peru and Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived here last night to serve his country "as a Peruvian and officer" in the war with Colombia over the Leticia border area.

An aid of President Sanchez Cerro, the minister of aviation and the navy, officials in the foreign office, and other prominent persons greeted him on his arrival from London.

Mother of Hollywood Director Trio Is Dead

Portland, Me., March 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Barbara M. Feeney, 77, mother of three Hollywood motion picture directors, John Ford, Francis Ford and Edward O'Fearna, died here today. A native of Spidale, County Galway, Ireland, she came to Portland 60 years ago.

Her husband and six children survive.

London Jews Plan Germanic Boycott

Influential Semitic Body Condemns Atrocities in Resolutions.

London, March 26 (A.P.).—London Jews, disturbed at reports of Jewish mistreatment in Germany, are considering a boycott of German goods.

The Board of Deputies of British Jews, the most influential Semitic body in Great Britain, meeting today behind closed doors, passed resolutions of condemnation and calling for arrangements for a public meeting, at which the situation could be discussed and a protest made.

17 Italians Seized For Forming Party

Organizers of "Guelfs" Get Prison Terms Which Are Suspended.

Milan, Italy, March 26 (A.P.).—A recent attempt to form a new party known as "guelfs" has resulted in the arrest of 17 persons and the trial of two organizers by the special tribunal for the defense of the State.

The organizers are Francesco Scotto and Aldo Mirotti. They were sentenced last night to seven and four years imprisonment, respectively.

Mirotti was granted amnesty and the others released on probation. The 17 persons comprised former members of the dissolved popular, or Catholic party. The "guelfs" were a papal, or popular party in mediaeval Italy opposed to the Imperi l Gibelene party.

List of Candidates ToSucceedKiernan

Marquette and Oberlin Men Are Among Those Considered.

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—The Institute for Public Service made public today a list of educators it had recommended to the board of higher education from which to select a successor to James M. Kiernan as president of Hunter College.

They included Dr. E. C. Broome, of Philadelphia; Dr. E. A. Fitzpatrick, graduate dean of Marquette University and President of Mount Mary College for Women, Milwaukee; A. N. Farmer, of Cleveland; Payson Smith, Massachusetts commissioner of education; Dr. Paul Stetson, of Indianapolis, and Whiting Williams, Oberlin lecturer.

Shoe Leather

New, Self-Polishing Material Revealed by Mellon Research Institute.

Pittsburgh, March 26 (A.P.).—A new, self-polishing shoe leather was announced today by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The heat of the foot, says the announcement, activates a polish impregnated in any color in the leather so that the shoes "require only a slight rubbing to preserve the desired polished effect."

The polish is only part of "an entirely new combination of materials" impregnated in leather. These substances are said to "support and lubricate" fibers of the leather, preventing their breaking down under wear, to simplify manufacturing processes, "add to the leather's water-resisting qualities," do away with "cracking" and to produce a shoe "practically scuffproof."

The novel finish is announced as applicable to various kinds of leather, but particularly designed for the kid types.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN

Why Children Run Away Is Answered Today by Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

The Meanderer

Shops for the Big-Little Girl of the Family—and Discovers the Charm of "Sister Clothes."

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Prone, she admits, to devoting columns to the subject of full-grown feminine clothes, the Meanderer, nevertheless has important reasons (professional and private) for undertaking occasional tours into the realm of small girls' wear. Teens and twenties' clothes are discovered and exploited in the fashions, but the designers seldom make much of the big-little sister just under the teen-age. This year seems a bit of an exception in that, however, for the sub-sub-deb's things have distinct charm and variety.

The small dash and swank that misses of 10 or 12 like to display lies in some new cape and skirt and beret suits in new tweeds and flannels that one F street department store is showing. They have the lines of the older, collegiate cape costume, and the desired "right" look for the little miss as well. Navy, tan, green and other colors and mixtures are used in these suits, some of which sell for $2.95.

Sweaters in great variety for the little miss sell for $1 in the basement store of a well-known F street establishment. In attractive slip-over styles and in soft or bright colors, they are chosen by many mother-shoppers as accessories for the cape suits just mentioned.

"Pinafores," to quote from a practiced magazine shophound, "are much in the limelight." This type of small girl's dress seems as much in the limelight in Washington as in New York. They are of sturdy colored materials, often plaids, gay checks and durable prints, with blouses or guimpes of white dimity, Swiss or organdy. Mothers of small daughters will recall that the plaid or checked pinafores or jumper frocks are much like those of their own grade school days (that means days of about 30 years ago, if your grade school days are of the Meanderer's time). This pinafore type of grade schoolgirl frock sells for from $1 up in most department stores, though one dependable store dares to guarantee some for 58 cents. For less than $2, at any rate, the buyer may choose from variety and good material.

"Tomboy skirts" are seen all about. They are very straight little skirts, finished with 4-inch to 6-inch pleating at the lower edge. They are in bright colors and navy, and are sold in every girls' wear department in Washington at reasonable prices. The popular puffed sleeve blouses or sweaters are the accompaniment of the tomboy skirt.

Wardrobe for young sisters, using identical patterns, are possible and most attractive. Even if big sister is 12 and little sister is 6, similar lines and materials, though the colors are different, create a pleasing effect. If the shopper studies the smart fashion book that the Meanderer found setting forth this sister-clothes idea, she will see the potential charm. Brother-sister clothes have long been featured, as of course have clothes for sisters of ages only 2 or 3 years apart. But never before, in the Meanderer's knowledge, have clothes alike for big and little girls been so worth recommending. The patterns for such little clothes cost but 25 cents each and the materials from which to choose for gay little frocks are offered at ridiculously low prices.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

SEEING THE WORLD.

A MOTHER relates her experience with her 2-year-old runaway son.

Time and again soon after he had learned to walk she looked out of the window to find him gone from the yard where she had supposed him playing. Each time there was a frantic search of the neighborhood and each time the young delinquent was recovered not very far from home.

Scoldings and spankings for these adventures made absolutely no impression on him. He merely waited the next convenient opportunity and slipped off again. The only word of explanation he ever offered after such an escapade was, "Want to see!"

At last it dawned on his mother that this was probably the real reason for his running away, and with this realization she decided to attack the problem differently.

Hereafter she made it a point to go walking with the child. The walk went wherever he wanted to go, into side streets, vacant lots and down to the trolley line. He was allowed to stand still and look at whatever momentarily interested him.

These walks were distinctly his walks and he evidently enjoyed them. Each time after such an outing his mother explained that they would take such walks together often but that he must never go alone any more.

The repeated suggestion, coupled with the repeated real satisfaction, achieved what spanking had failed to achieve—there was an end to running away.

Some children seem to be naturally adventurous, as others are naturally clinging and timid.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A smrt and practical dress from the new collections is fashioned of black crepe and has gold metal nailheads for trimming. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie, Paris.)

THERE are just two things on which New York and Paris agree—prints and pleats! As for the Hollywood masculine mode—New York approves, but Paris scorns to even discuss it.

But prints, quite, quite new ones, seem to have found something besides "sappyness" for their appeal. The new prints at last merit being called chic! Whether this is due to their size or design, their coloring or whatever, I can't tell. True it is that their coloring is smarter—dull and elegant, and that their designs are really appealing and smart. I think I hit the nail on the head long ago, right here in this column, when I said, "where is the print going with the girl?" When the print is going somewhere with the girl—it is going—or already out—of the style picture. Now, prints have decided to be chic—to play second fiddle to the wearer and to thus take their rightful place as ornamentation for Miladi. Now can I be sure that they will no longer be a mere matter of style, but take their place in the mode as a staple!

I think it is rather unfair to condemn the artificial fabrics on one or two failures! 'Tis said in the "trade" that the increasing demand for pure silk on the part of the customers is due to the poor quality and bad weaving of the synthetic fabrics.

Now, synthetic fabrics are not uniformly perfect, as yet. But they are interesting, and many of them have qualities that no other fabric has. Anything in its early stages has to be carefully selected, and isn't it the customer's fault if she selects any kind of a fabric that proves not to wear well? I myself selected a whole bolt of gray and one of white pure silk crepe from one of the two biggest silk houses in the world a couple of years ago, had them made up into frocks—and then found that the seams stretched so that no thread or stitching would hold; and that the threads of the material pulled out at the seams leaving wide open spaces through which my light colored lingerie coyly peeped! So you see, it is not only synthetic fabrics that one has to be very careful about when buying. I am not pleading for them in the least, but in all fairness, they should not be obliged to bear the stigma of their early and often tottering footsteps. Any more than kasha, that lovely and wearable material that has given birth to an almost unlimited family of kasha-somethings or other. Lest we forget—the first kasha almost threw the Haute Couture into a panic—with its howls from indignant customers, ably illustrated by the return of the unsatisfactory merchandise made of the first and very feeble, kasha. Kasha of today is the proof of improvement, and so are synthetic materials.

Well, well! Now it's a relief from all that seriousness to geev-a-luk at today's illustration, and see that it is a charming and practical dress of black crepe, executed in the Bernard et Cie manner of wearable and lovely clothes. The high-lights are nailheads, and the skirt is interesting!

All that old dress of yours actually needs to make it quite the latest style now I'll bet you anything, is just a different sleeve! There are at least a dozen ways you can make another sleeve out of what it isn't, as it were.

In this week's illustrated leaflet are all the ways—new sleeves out of old, and that stands for new dresses from old! Just a stamped, self-addressed envelope will probably give you a new lease on your entire wardrobe, via the sleeve route. Don't you think the leaflet worth sending for?

• • • •

And as to ways for outlining the decolletage! One is sketched today, in petals—the other is a boa of massed petals finished with a big bow—and sewn right to the frock. Nice—and flattering, new, and interesting—and not at all expensive!

What Today Means

"ARIES"

IF March 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:45 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:30 a. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Influences operating on this March 27 should make for peace and serenity with the normal amount of business activity. Functions of a purely social nature should prove amusing and satisfying. She who is acting as hostess may feel assured of a successful party.

The child born on this March 27 will probably make a modest beginning in life, but should flourish in his middle years. Childhood friends retained through life will probably prove to be a powerful force throughout his career.

If March 27 is the date of your birth, you are quite probably a person who finds it difficult to "be himself." You are self-conscious and you are much too inclined to analyze yourself. It is difficult for you to meet freely and mix with new people. You will never make a salesman, nor are you the type of person to assume leadership under any circumstances.

Born on March 27, you will seek to spend as much time as possible at home with your family and small circle of friends. You are a well-liked person and you always try to please. If you are a woman, you are inclined to be the boss of your family; at times you can be very annoying and you are inclined to be a nagger. If you make up your mind to get something, you have the persistence to keep after it till you do get it and you are not above using most indirect methods.

Successful people born on March 27: George F. Baker, banker. Henry S. Carhart, electrician. Genevieve Ward, actress. Francis H. Storer, chemist. Nathaniel C. Bryant, naval officer. Adolphus W. Greely, Arctic explorer.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THERE are perhaps thousands of women in this grand country who have known the luxury of salon treatments and facials, but now have to content themselves with skin care at home. There are hundreds of thousands, no, millions who use creams and lotions in helter-skelter fashion. Judging by the thousands of letters (many from new readers perhaps) a great portion of the millions wisely wish to know the best method for applying such preparations and cosmetics at home. It is for the benefit of all of these women that this series is published. There is a right way to mold and knead and apply the preparations quickly, simply and efficiently.

What Do You Need?

Before we start the actual facial, let us see what every woman needs. First—a cleansing cream, skin tonic and emollient (called by various names such as skin-food, nourishing cream, tissue cream, suppling cream, &c.) To my mind these are the three essentials that form the basic treatment, a balanced regime for every skin, because every skin needs cleansing, toning and nourishing. To this fundamental treatment, an astringent should be added (and used by every woman over 25) and a finishing preparation; a cream if the skin is dry, or a lotion if the skin is oily.

Absorbent cotton and cleasing tissues are two accessories which every woman should have. And for every woman over 25 a roll of 2-inch bandage for the tie-up which is to follow the use of the astringent.

Cosmetics.

Cosmetics for make-up come next. Powder in a shade to harmonize with individual's coloring, cheek and lip rouge, an eyebrow brush—mascara or eyebrow pencil optional. Also have on hand, two small glass bowls.

Dressing Table.

Those fortunate enough to have a dressing table should arrange all the essentials conveniently. It makes for efficiency and saves time. And sitting down before the mirror'd table lends a note of prestige and luxury and undoubtedly makes a more perfect beauty rite of the home facial. If you do not have a dressing table, arrange your necessary preparations on a convenient shelf or in a large box or basket. But an unpainted dressing table can be purchased very reasonably today and painted at home to harmonize with bedroom or bathroom.

ILLUSION:
A "strong man" once gave public performances in which he stopped a 9 lb. cannon ball shot from a fully charged cannon. The audience gasped when the gun flashed and the human Gibraltar stepped forward out of the smoke uninjured, with the 9 lb. shot in his hands.

EXPLANATION:
The trick lay in the way an assistant prepared the cannon for the performance. He used the regulation amount of powder and wadding, but placed the greater part of the charge of powder ahead of the shot. The cannon ball was propelled only by the small charge behind it which was just sufficient to lob the 9 lb. ball over to the strong man.

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

A performance sometimes staged in cigarette advertising is the illusion that cigarettes are made easy on the throat by some special process of manufacture.

EXPLANATION: All cigarettes are made in almost exactly the same way. Manufacturing methods are standard and used by all. A cigarette is only as good as the tobaccos it contains.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

In costly tobaccos you will find mildness, good taste, throat-ease.

Smoke Camels critically, and give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction offered by the more expensive tobaccos. Other cigarettes, we believe, will taste flat and insipid to you forever after.

WITHIN THE CONSTITUTION.

It is curiously arresting to realize that such an unprecedented measure as the Tugwell-Wallace farm bill could have been debated in the House of Representatives for two days with no more than parenthetical reference to its constitutionality. Not until Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, raised the question only a few minutes before the final vote on the bill last Wednesday, was this aspect of the problem even considered; and this in the face of the President's own admonition that the measure, as sent down from the White House, contemplated experimentation along "a new and untrod path."

This hint alone, Mr. Beck suggested, required consideration of the constitutionality of the bill before any discussion whatever of its other provisions. He regarded it as very significant that up to the moment of its passage by the House there had been "no reference to any grant of power to the Congress by the Constitution, which would justify the passage of this legislation."

If the measure had followed well-defined legal principles or well-established national practices, the absence of Constitutional discussion might be explained, Mr. Beck said.

"But we are confronted with a bill about which we are unanimous in one respect, that it is probably the most extraordinary and unprecedented law ever proposed to the American Congress. Yet with that common consent as to its unprecedented features, no one has suggested any pertinent clause of the Constitution which grants to the Congress the power to pass this legislation."

Sponsors of the legislation may serve the national interest by making certain that the final draft is not in conflict with the basic principles of the Constitution.

The doctrine of national emergency is old and useful in times of imminent disaster. But attempts to apply that doctrine in lieu of Constitutional principles in the routine problems of state mark a dangerous course.

THE IMMIGRATION SERVICE.

Secretary Perkins is justified in reorganizing the Department of Labor in conformity with her own views. No official can be expected to carry on with an organization in which he has no faith. Efficiency demands that each member of the Cabinet should be free to reorganize bureaus, within the requirements of the civil service, and to put new policies into effect.

Nevertheless, Miss Perkins' revision of the immigration service is arousing a good deal of concern. She has dismissed 55 men in this bureau and furloughed 16 others. It is her purpose to "centralize and concentrate the immigration activities." Time alone can prove the effectiveness of this plan. The public hopes that in trying to eliminate "confusion" and what Miss Perkins calls "ballyhoo" from the immigration service she will not break down the bars which keep undesirable aliens out of the United States nor cripple the machinery for ousting undesirable aliens who are already here.

A rigid immigration policy has been followed since the depression began. President Hoover decided that one of the most positive contributions the Government could make toward relief of the unemployed would be to cut off the competition of foreign laborers who are accustomed to working for a pittance. That clause in the law forbidding the admittance of aliens likely to become public charges was invoked and the flow of immigrants was almost cut off. It is doubtless true that some hardships have been created by these regulations, but they are insignificant in comparison with the hardships that would have been imposed upon American labor if the regulations had not been set up.

Along with this policy went the movement to rid the country of criminal aliens and other foreigners illegally living in the United States. Congress and the Department of Labor have recognized that this is expensive work, but it is the only way in which the law may be enforced in the absence of a bill requiring the registration of aliens. Administration of the immigration laws can never be entirely satisfactory until Congress acquires sufficient courage to establish a roll for all individuals living in the United States who are not citizens.

The policy of rigid control over immigration and deportation of undesirable aliens has the unqualified approval of the public. The workingmen of America will not approve a weakening of the immigration service, not even on the grounds of economy. There could be no real economy in thus exposing unemployed Americans to competition with alien paupers. If Secretary Perkins intends to maintain the policy of rigid control over immigration, she would do well to make her plans known along with her reorganization program.

AIDING STATE BANKS.

One of the most difficult problems in connection with the emergency banking program has been the status of financial institutions outside of the Federal Reserve system. The necessity for extending aid to banks of this character was clearly recognized. Yet the Government is anxious to avoid any step that might weaken the Federal Reserve system or perpetuate an unsound banking structure.

The problem seems to have been worked out very well in the bill giving non-members of the Federal Reserve system the right to borrow funds from the central banks during the emergency. This right has been carefully circumscribed so that it is not open to abuse, yet no worthy State bank will be denied help. Congress rewrote and revised the bill several times, and as it was sent to the President it seems to be entirely constructive.

When a non-member bank goes to the Federal Reserve system for a loan it must comply with the same requirements as member banks. Such loans can be made only on adequate security. Banks obtaining loans must be certified as sound by State banking officials, and, what is still more important, they must undergo a full examination by Federal Reserve bank authorities.

A determined effort was made to eliminate the examination by Federal Reserve bank agents, but the Senate would not yield. The disposition was to open the Federal Reserve bank facilities only to institutions on a solid foundation. The effect of this measure is to throw a protecting ring around all banks that meet Federal Reserve requirements, and to leave the others to their fate.

Coupled with the emergency bank act passed a fortnight ago this measure is an important step toward unification of the banking structure. State banks that meet the requirements of the Federal Reserve system and find it advantageous to draw upon central bank facilities may decide to apply for membership. The privileges of this act remain in effect for only a year. To make them permanent, State banks must become members of the Federal Reserve system.

State institutions not able to take advantage of this act may be left in a precarious condition. But the Government would not be justified in lowering banking standards to meet the needs of unsound institutions. A coup de grace for banks of the bucket-shop variety will be of great benefit to future depositors.

FARM MORTGAGES.

It remains to be seen whether Speaker Rainey's talk about a $2,000,000,000 bond issue to refinance farm mortgages is a trial balloon. His statement was made after he attended a White House conference on farm mortgages. Undoubtedly the administration has in mind some program for relief of farm debtors. In view of the necessity for a vast bond issue to refinance the Government debt, however, it seems doubtful that President Roosevelt will recommend another bond issue for the purchase of farm mortgages.

Thousands of farmers are laboring under great difficulties in meeting their mortgages. Many are not able to pay, and it is generally conceded that a large number of farmers never can meet their present obligations. Relief is unquestionably urgent. Yet there are grave dangers in the proposal that the Government should take over the farm mortgage business. The farm debt is no less a dilemma than the overproduction of crops.

If the Government should finance farm mortgages because the mortgagors are unable to pay, there would be a move to dump all unsound mortgages upon the Treasury. One concession always leads to another where a politically powerful group is concerned. It is doubtful whether the most rigid precautions could save the Treasury from extensive losses once the Government had taken over the farm mortgage business.

Before such drastic action is undertaken more time should be allowed for the adjustment of mortgages between debtor and creditor. The bankruptcy act passed by the last Congress should be of substantial help in this regard. Congress might afford more help of this nature. Even the plan for Government purchase of mortgages contemplates adjustments between debtor and creditor before the Government takes over the obligation. If such adjustments can be made, why should the Government step in and take over the farm mortgaging business?

Secretary Woodin faces a grave responsibility in deciding whether the credit of the Government is in condition to stand the strain that would be imposed upon it by such a venture.

HYSTERIA ON THE HILL.

The ease with which President Roosevelt has pushed his emergency measures through the Senate has encouraged some of the men on Capitol Hill to bring forth patent remedies in the hope that Congress might seize upon them some dull day and rush them through the legislative process as part of the "new deal." One of the "progressive" proposals is a scheme to have the Federal Government control all corporations by a license system.

The general purpose of this plan is readily apparent. It is intended to bring all business and industry under the grip of bureaucracy. It is a direct outgrowth of the hysteria which is being diligently cultivated on Capitol Hill. Radicals think they see in the present situation a chance to convince the people that private enterprise has broken down and that it is necessary for the Government to take control over the functions of business and industry.

A period of depression always reveals an abnormal amount of wreckage and corruption. But at the bottom the business and industrial structure of the country is as sound as ever. Propaganda which is aimed at the destruction of public confidence in business in general, merely because fraud and corruption have been exposed in some high places, is pernicious in the extreme.

It is unfortunate that Congress must be the sounding board of fanatics who are beating the tom-toms of despair and trying to arouse the people to a frenzy. Failure of individuals to live up to the standards of business ethics and common honesty gives no excuse for revolutionary changes in the economic system. Nothing could be gained by penalizing all industry for the sins of a few dishonest executives.

The American people may be perturbed by the prolongation of hard times, but they are not ready to swallow socialism.

COUNT SZECHENYI.

The Minister of Hungary, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, is departing today to assume his new duties as Minister to London. He has served his country here since 1922, and during that long residence has made thousands of friends among Americans.

Although Hungary's interests require the presence in London of its most accomplished envoy, Count Szechenyi's friends regret the severance of the ties that have bound him and his family to Washington. His keen interest in American affairs and his broad knowledge of political economy have made his associations here not only delightful, but valuable. He has contributed much to the sympathetic understanding among governments by his contacts in the Diplomatic Corps.

Wishing him all success and happiness in his new field, Americans who know Count Szechenyi feel that he will always remain a steadfast friend of the United States.

Possibly President Roosevelt shrewdly concludes that the most effective means of disposing of college professor pipe-dreams is to submit them to a hard-boiled Congress which is answerable to the voters for balancing the budget.

Inflation of the public debt, for easy financing of extravagant plans for Government support of the people, threatens to supplant the old American rule of making the people support the Government.

German business sense quickly punctures the Hitler political agitation against the Jewish inhabitants of Germany. He is now explaining that Germany is a civilized country after all.

The cold snap in assets may keep a few banks from opening, but breweries are blossoming, and "sumer is a-cumin' in."

If the President will take the padlock off the pie counter Congress will gladly make every bill an emergency measure.

Fear is expressed that there will be a beer shortage. Brewers should make every effort to prevent a panic.

You Think Kreuger Dead?

By Maria Lagar in Prager Tagblat, Prague.

So you think Kreuger is dead? Well, so do most people. But not in Sweden. There only a few people think so. Virtually nobody. It is the talk of the country. And what are they saying? That, of course, he is alive. Where does he live? In hiding, of course. No one suspects it, and we shall say nothing more about it, but the fact is that he is living in the Ukraine.

A great man, a man of such stature, especially one who did everything in such style, doesn't commit suicide. It doesn't appeal to him.

Do you know the story about the nuns? Well, here it is. Two nuns were praying at his deathbed—which was most suspicious in itself. For why should a Protestant have French nuns praying over him when he is dead? But do you know how many nuns left his death chamber? Three.

Whoever saw his body? Count them—just two persons. Liturin, his most intimate companion, and Miss Bokmann, his secretary. And the doctor. But the doctor saw only a dead body; he had never seen Kreuger alive. Remember that. The doctor shrugged his shoulders whenever people talked to him about it. He saw a body, but what does a body amount to? You can buy one for 25 francs in the morgue.

Moreover, what they said about the body sounds suspicious. You know what the pallbearer in Stockholm said who carried Ivar Kreuger's casket? That he had never carried such a light one, and that he had never known there to be such a strong smell of wax at a cremation.

The pallbearer has a wide acquaintance that includes most of the people I know. He is a fine fellow, very affable. But what concerns me is that I know the woman who spoke to the doctor herself in person. You may not believe the pallbearer, but you must believe the doctor. No, not the doctor in Paris, the other doctor who is much more important, the doctor whom Ivar Kreuger has to thank for his new face.

The things you can do with operations nowadays! A new nose, new cheeks, a new forehead, a new chin, Ivar Kreuger can walk unconcerned along every street in the Ukraine. Nobody recognizes him, for the doctor is an artist and I know the woman who talked to him.

A big row over uniting the railroads may be avoided by drafting a Union Pacific man for the job.

A distinguished Oriental visitor thinks the United States does not understand Japan. A vote would disclose a unanimity of comprehension like that of the League of Nations.

The arguments for artificial boosting of farm prices to create industrial markets can be as readily reversed to favor subsidizing of industry so workers can buy more agricultural products.

A manufacturer of synthetic straws informs us that new delights are to be found by sipping beer from the bottle through a straw and really no danger of internal explosion.

Nonpartisan manifestations abound. From a Texas perspective Basc. Slemp says the slump has slunk before the executive onslaught.

It's all right now, that dollar a day is going to be handed to the city boys sojourning in the forests as a gratuity and not as wages.

Secretary Wallace says farm and bank troubles are closely interwoven and that agricultural solutions require the same authority as has been granted over financial matters. Some farmers are going to object to this Wall street contamination.

France and Poland must think the new administration can't recognize straw men set up to be knocked down in financial and economic conferences.

George Washington would be as astounded at the social functions of modern Government as he would be at how completely they can be supplied by radio, free lectures and household magazines.

If Congress had had as much trouble with beer for the whole U. S. A. as it is having to decide who in the D. C. shall imbibe and how, all would still have been thirsty next Christmas.

TALKING IT OVER.

Mother, what matters after all,
The changinig markets, rise or fall,
Or whether home is large or small?

What matters fortune? Let us face
With calmness all that's taking place
And try with faith each day to grace.

We have each other and our friends!
On them all happiness depends;
Without them all our dreaming ends.

We can be brave and kindly still,
Can carry comfort to the ill,
And all God's plans for us fulfill.

And rich or poor, high place or low,
We still have friendship to bestow
On all we neighbor with and know.

Life is not measured after all
By market's rise or market's fall,
But how we answer every call.

Many Will Want While One Is Praised For Taking More Than He Needs

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE blight of ignorance and the scourge of disease have been checked and controlled in some measure by the work of science. The one curse of mankind that the great and the strong still regard as the work of Providence is poverty.

To take away ignorance and leave poverty is to do more evil than good, for ignorance alone can make poverty endurable.

The river boatmen of China, rowing from daylight till dark to earn a few pennies—having no possession except a loin cloth, and no food except cabbage, soup and beans—still laugh to lighten their labor and ask no more of Fate. They are happy and content because their ignorance is an opiate that makes them insensible to life's injustice.

Before the coming of machinery, the poor in other lands were like the Chinese. They suffered as bees do when their hive is robbed.

The labor of all men was incapable of producing abundance for all. And when the few who had power claimed more than enough, the many who labored had less than they needed.

Machinery now produces more than all can use; and poverty is no longer an evidence of man's limitations, but an indictment of his indifference to pangs he does not share.

No boast of our civilization seems justified or decent while poverty remains. Any boast seems ghastly irony if the boaster is a leper.

Some people now make a virtue of living on little. They are foolish.

There is nothing but evil in poverty. Its rags bring the blight of shame to helpless children and break the spirits of men and women in their prime. Its environment is unclean and its equipment is ugly. It is a stranger to all that is lovely and graceful and beautiful. Its very atmosphere is depressing and degrading. It is gall and wormwood to the soul.

Have you ever gone tramping, empty of pocket, looking for a job? I have. And I have been driven outdoors like a pariah dog by men whose one point of superiority was a full stomach.

If you haven't felt the lash of poverty, lift your hat to those who endure it without moan or rebellion.

There is no excuse for our poverty. Other lands must endure it because they need more than they produce. America could end it in a day by changing the rules to enable every man to earn a just share of this land's abundance.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Government Aid in Jobs.

Kansas City Star.

President Roosevelt's plan to give employment to 250,000 men in a "civilian conservation corps" will help toward taking the sharp edge off the unemployment problem.

Such relief measures do not materially affect the general problem. Unemployment will fade as business recovers and men are set to the normal productive tasks of industry. It can not be cured by extensive spending on public works, which is merely disguised philanthropy, offered in such form as to help maintain the morale of those who receive it.

Yet while the Government is doing what it can to pave the way for the return of prosperity, it can help mitigate the distress from unemployment. That is what the President proposes in his latest plan.

"All Along the Line."

Minneapolis Journal.

Were every unemployed man put to work today at useful and gainful employment, the other economic troubles of the United States would disappear quickly.

Yet the return to normal conditions can not be attained over night, or in a few short weeks, by that route alone. Recovery must come all along the line, normal employment returning as normal buying and normal prices return, and the increased employment in turn stimulating industry and agriculture.

Does Not Go to the Bottom.

New York Journal of Commerce.

The surest way to create jobs is to relieve industry from the fear of excessive Government borrowing and burdensome taxes. Although Government money can be used to hire a small percentage of the army of unemployed men, such spending does not remove the conditions responsible for unemployment, and it leaves behind it a legacy of debts and taxes.

Liquid Coinage.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Added to the ever-mounting currency soon will be beer chips.

Beer Revenue.

Philadelphia Bulletin.

Whatever may have become of its champagne tastes, this country is looking forward to a beer income.

And What a Rousing Welcome!

Lexington Herald.

Indications on all sides are that when beer does start back it will not have to come far before it runs into the reception committee.

Senate Needs a Gavel.

Red Lake Falls (Minn.) Gazette.

The Congressional Record in recording the proceedings of the House frequently says, "Here the gavel fell," indicating that the Speaker's time had expired. The gavel never falls in the Senate, which is one of the things the matter with that venerable body.

Go Slow on the Farm Bill.

Boston Transcript.

New England congressmen's opposition to the farm relief bill speaks the voice of history. All experience in modern times has shown that under the existing economic system attempts to control the law of supply and demand are not successful. The country has learned and relearned the lesson, never more vividly—one would suppose—than during the past four years. Efforts of the Farm Board to lift a surplus supply of farm products artificially off the market led only to increase of their volume, further fall of their prices, and vast consequent cost to the Federal Treasury. No wonder the New England delegation, as it reads now the terms of a bill for agricultural price-control still more Utopian in its nature than anything which has been tried yet, cries out in alarm a most positive opposition.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Republican Stands by President Roosevelt, but Insists That Crisis Might Not Have Occurred if Congress Had Supported Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President has won the approval of all classes by his vigorous action in dealing with the financial crisis. Although the effect of this violent upheaval will be felt for a long time we may be thankful that the situation has been met and that the worst should soon be over. If ever there was an example of the evil results of foolish partisanship, I believe this banking crisis stands at the head of the list. Had 1932 not been an election year it never would have occurred, or at least its severity would have been much less.

About a year ago the Democratic majority in Congress rejected the President's tax program and devised a set of nuisance taxes of its own. Among these was a tax on bank checks. This was passed regardless of the objection of the President and the violent protests of every banker in the country. The result was that people started to use cash to avoid the tax on checks. Bank deposits dropped, bank failures increased. So far as I know this vicious legislation has not yet been repealed.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was formed with the intention that it should meet the crisis by freely supporting our sound banks and quasipublic institutions in much the same way as does the Bank of England and other central continental banks. However, Democrats in Congress under Mr. Garner's leadership felt that private individuals who happened to be hard up should also be aided directly by R. F. C. Being defeated on this point they obtained revenge by passing, against the protest of the President, the R. F. C. officials, and the bankers, the famous publicity clause, making public R. F. C. loan data. Thus did the R. F. C. become a political football and its usefulness practically suspended before it had dispersed half of its funds to banks that deserved help.

The early epidemic of bank failures washed out practically all the unsound banks. In September and October hoarding had just about ceased and bank failures were negligible. The situation was well in hand. But in the face of renewed political attacks, wild talk about "inflation," "$5,000,000,000 public works experiments," &c., it is no wonder that people became uneasy again. The wonder is that the present crisis did not occur sooner than it did.

Let not those who were in any way responsible for this undermining of the public confidence seek to stand in a halo of righteousness and cast stones at the past administration. The Democratic majority in the last session of Congress was either guilty of "boring from within" with the deliberate intention of frustrating every constructive measure, or they were and still are possessed of a degree of incompetence that will make it difficult for them to redeem themselves during this administration for the mistakes they made in the last one.

Many of us will stand behind our new President with the feeling that if his light fails us the resulting darkness may be black indeed.

Consuls Do Commercial Extension Work and Will Continue It; Wasteful Duplication.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in your issue of March 24, signed by J. Bernard McDonnell, contains certain inaccuracies which ought to be corrected.

The Consular Service has not been glad to get ride of the task which has been assumed by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. It has never gotten rid of any such task. Consulates have everywhere continued to do trade extension work, just as they did for 125 years before the Department of Commerce was created, and as they must continue to do, because such work is an inherent consular function.

Consular officers have no diplomatic status. Commercial attaches sent out by the Department of Commerce do have diplomatic status and corresponding social duties.

Of 53 foreign offices of the Department of Commerce, 51 exist alongside of consulates which do exactly the same work in exactly the same way. Formerly American exporters wrote direct to consuls for information and received it promptly. Now they are urged to write to the Department of Commerce, that department writes to the commercial attache, the commercial attache asks the consuls for the information, and then it takes the same roundabout road going back.

If this worse-than-useless, million-dollar duplication can not be abolished, it is absurd to talk about economy in Government.

FORMER COMMISSIONER.

Why New Expenditures When Retrenchment Is Necessary?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read your editorial in The Post of March 22, entitled "Jobs in Woods." There are a few things I don't understand. Why is it when we are making heroic retrenchments do we figure out new ways of expenditure? And if the Government is so heavily in debt, how come we have some "unobligated funds" in the Treasury? Now Prof. Tugwell says that the forests need the men and the men need the jobs. All right. Are we going to take that fat little nest egg which we providently stowed away in the Treasury when money was easy—stowed away labeled "Public Works, the Next Depression"—and use it now?

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK—In the history of this nation there has been, I am sure, no figure more heroic than the country doctor. Through blizzards and floods he has gone his way, ministering to the ailing and often without hope of remuneration. Often he has swept aside the sweets of ambition for the sake of humanity.

But in the city here I offer a character who should be given his due. He is the doctor of the tenements, the man with the healing touch who ministers to Hell's Kitchen and similar neighborhoods.

A few weeks ago, in the hour just after dawn, I accompanied a police doctor to the morgue. There I ran into the chief medical examiner, Dr. Norris. He was talking to a young man with weary but very eager eyes.

Afterwards I accompanied this young man. He had not been long out of medical college, but I gathered from his colleagues that he was brilliant. Instead of taking up a minor post in one of the fashionable hospitals in the vicinity of Park avenue, he has chosen to become a family doctor in that neighborhood bordering on Ninth and Tenth avenues, the very same lanes which, among their better offerings, have produced some of the city's toughest gangsters.

I went around with him: first, to a plump Irish woman who was suffering with rheumatism. Next, there was a maternity case, and then a young woman who soon must have an operation for appendicitis.

On and on we went, from one shabby tenement to another. Here were people who were ill, and people who had no money to pay for the attention of a physician.

Later we arrived at the office of this young doctor.

"How much," I asked, "is your income here?"

"Oh, I'm lucky," he answered, "if I can pull in two or three hundred dollars a month."

I thought: Here is a brilliant young physician in New York. He probably spends all his income on his patients, those who are unable to pay. He could go into a Park avenue hospital and earn five times as much, all clear profit. Instead, he lives in Hell's Kitchen, never getting ahead, never making money. What does he get out of it?

I was soon to learn. I learned in our ensuing conversations. Perhaps he doesn't earn money, doesn't win fame and medals and honors. But over in the tin alleys he is worshipped.

Your country doctor at the cross roads and your Hell's Kitchen doctor at Tenth avenue—they are the same.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

IS SULPHUR USELESS?

AT LAST a medicinal use of sulphur appears to have been found. It is being used for the purpose of inducing fever, and fever, our old-time enemy, is being harnessed and put to work.

When some authority breaks into print with a tale about the amount of the different ingredients going to make up the human body, sulphur is always found on his list. The total amount used in the making of a man is not large, but what is there is a part of protein, and this is the main ingredient of muscle and other very necessary structures. Therefore, a proper supply of sulphur is very necessary for human welfare. We eat it in eggs, meat and molasses, not to mention some other foods. When we try to give it in the form of a salt we do not appear to get very far. Several of the saline laxatives and of the purgative mineral waters contain a considerable proportion of sulphates and sulphides. But these are used for the purposes they are because of the fact that the organs of absorption will have none of them. They are rejected, and with considerable virulence. And that's why they are used. An old-fashioned spring medicine is sulphur and molasses. The sulphur is used in some form of sulphur powder, and it passes through as an inert material having no special therapeutic effect and exerting no physiological influence. Molasses is a fairly good laxative and it may be a pretty fair worm medicine. If the mixture has any action due to sulphur it may be that because of a fair amount of that element found in molasses.

All in all the taking of sulphur and molasses in the spring may be regarded as a disciplinary procedure, an obeisance children are required to make to superior authority. Maybe it is a spring-time penance and gratitude offered on the altar as one lands from the voyage through winter.

The new use of sulphur is one which recognizes the futility of trying to get inorganic sulphur by the liver gateway. The medicine is mixed with olive oil and injected into the muscles. In this way it gets to the brain and other organs through the back door or, at least, it by-passes the liver.

The result of the injection is a high fever lasting several hours. Injections are given once or twice a week and they are given in courses of twelve. It has long been known that persons with certain types of insanity are very much improved mentally following attacks of such febrile diseases as erysipelas and typhoid fever. Acting on this hint, physicians have been inoculating the insane with malaria, but to this practice there was the objection that malaria is a dangerous disease not always controllable and sometimes fatal.

Various substitutes for malaria injections have been tried. Killed bacteria is one; milk, another. Sulphur in olive oil is offered as safer and more effective than any other.

Nor is use limited to the treatment of insanity. It may have a field in arthritis and other joint diseases, and in some catatonic and other emotional disorders not due to insanity.

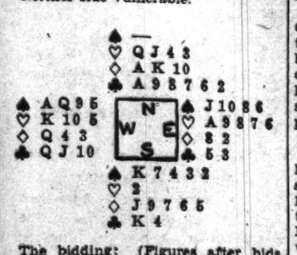
Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

ONE of the most frequent sayings of Bridge players is that "everything is wrong" when they play the cards and that "everything is right" when their opponents play them. Naturally, neither of these extreme views is correct. If we find our good plays or even our ordinary finesses succeeding, that, so far as we are concerned, is simply a tribute by the gods of luck to our manifold virtues. If these same gods then bestow their fickle favors upon our adversaries, we feel we have a perfect right to complain, but Mr. M. M. Phillips, of Melbourne, Australia, who played the hand below, found Luck in one of her most favorable moods when, in simply trying to induce his opponents to overbid, he found himself in a very difficult contract of his own.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠	2♣(1)	2♠
3◇(2)	Pass	5◇(3)	Pass
Pass	Pass(4)

1—Perhaps North feared to double because of his void in spades, which, of course, argued the possibility of length in that suit in his partner's hand and hence a chance that the Double might be left in for penalties.

2—Of course, South's bid here was very bad, based upon the cards that he held, but an opponent had bid spades, and after partner had overcalled, the other adversary supported the spade bid. South had a fond hope that if he bid, the tendency would be to force East and West into an unmakable contract.

3—North had a very fine hand, but in view of the fact that he had no spades, it is questionable that he did not overestimate the value of his trump holding.

4—Were it not for the fact that a Double would help in locating the diamond Queen, West had a very good Double for penalties.

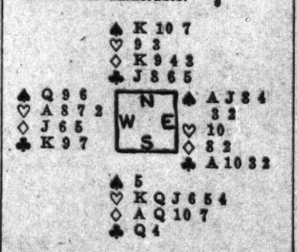
When the Dummy went down, South saw that a crossruff would not provide sufficient tricks to make game and that the only chance was to establish Dummy's club suit and successfully finesse the diamond. West's Opening lead was the spade Ace, and this South refused to ruff, discarding instead a small heart from Dummy. His chances of making the hand appeared remote, but he played it the only way that promised success.

West continued with another round of spades, which South won, then took one round of trumps, followed by two rounds of clubs and a third club, which he ruffed in his own hand. The trump finesse was then successfully taken, the last trump picked up and the contract made.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

Your partner, East (Second Hand), has opened the bidding with one spade. South has overcalled with two hearts. After two passes, East bids two spades and South three hearts. If you held the West hand, what would you now do?

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The answer will be given in tomorrow's article.

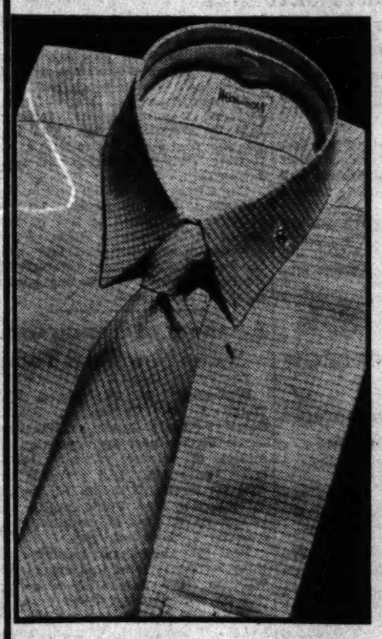
A GOOD SHIRT



Can be told by its Neckband

Special attention is called to the new Woodlothian shirt shown at left. Look at its splendid neckband construction—the well-fitting collar—and the tie which matches the shirt (a new note in men's Spring attire).

Shirt, $2 Tie, 65c

Only in GOOD shirts can you find the careful attention to fabric, cut, shape, and making that goes into our exclusive Woodlothian shirts.

The firm which makes them has been one of America's leading shirt makers for more than 65 years.

The neckbands are all shaped and made by hand in its factory—not purchased in open market from mass-production neckband factories, as makers of inferior shirts all too frequently do.

Only the best, pre-shrunken handkerchief cloth is used for their neckbands—buy the size you wear. It is unnecessary to allow for shrinkage.

The neckband of each Woodlothian shirt has a top and bottom—it is correctly cut, and shaped to fit.

Each band has two inner bands—making what the maker calls a "four-ply" band, believed to be the best neckband that can be made for shirts.

We invite you to see our new Woodlothian shirts for Spring. In plain and fancy madras, broadcloth, and cashmeres. Buy them—wear them—you will enthusiastically agree that they are worth every cent of their price.

JURYMEN MAY GET BALL CASE FRIDAY

R. B. Jordon and B. Agee Bowles Are Expected to Take Stand Today.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The case of E. Wade Ball, former treasurer of Arlington County, charged with failure to turn over county funds totaling $515,959.92 goes into its second week in Circuit Court at 10 a. m. today, with Judge Walter T. McCarthy on the bench.

Indications are that the case will reach the jury about Friday night. The prosecution is expected to rest its case sometime tomorrow.

Those who will take the stand for the State today, it is understood, will be State auditor Robert B. Jordon and B. Agee Bowles, vice president of the Potomac Savings Bank in Washington. C. H. Morrisette, State tax commissioner for Virginia, has been ordered to appear in court and bring with him the income tax returns of the defendant for 1928, 1929 1930 and 1931. Mr. Morrisette may be called to the stand today.

The jurymen, who were ordered locked up during the trial, which opened last Tuesday morning, spent a very quiet day yesterday. After having their breakfasts about 9 a. m. they returned to the courtroom, where they spent the day reading.

Chicago Concern Sells Three Lumber Plants

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—R. L. McClelland, vice president of the Chicago Mill & Lumber Co., today said his concern had sold plants located in Pine Bluff, Ark.; Alexandria, La., and Vicksburg, Miss., to the Arkansas Oak Flooring Co., of which C. C. Fulbright is president.

Transfer of property has taken place, McClelland said, and the Arkansas concern will begin operation of the plants tomorrow. The Chicago concern had 11 plants in the South.

Three, Marooned, Saved From Island

Brothers Suffering From Exposure; Returned to Homes.

Bloomfield, Ind., March 26 (A.P.).—Three brothers marooned on a temporary island in White River since Friday, when their boat capsized, were rescued today and returned to their homes here suffering from exposure.

Homer, Earl and Ray Flater were inspecting the area covered by flood waters when their rowboat struck a snag and overturned. All swam to a submerged tree and clung to the branches, but decided to attempt to swim to a shack nearby when they became numbed with cold.

The shack, on a slight eminence in the bottom land, contained food, fuel and bedclothing, left by John Branstetter, its owner, when he abandoned it as the river rose. The brothers wrapped themselves in blankets, ate, and placed an oil stove near a window. Its dim glow was seen early today by a neighbor who summoned aid and made the rescue by boat.

French February Taxes 37,655,000 Francs Off

Paris, March 26 (U.P.).—The finance ministry announced today that the February yield from taxes and monopolies was 37,655,000 francs under the estimated revenue.

The final 1933 budget measures will be presented to the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday and will demand additional economies and taxes of 1,600,000,000 francs in view of reduced receipts as shown by the February report.

Open Season for Trout In Virginia on April 15

According to an announcement yesterday by State Game Warden W. Harry Johnson the trout fishing season in Virginia opens April 15.

Soldier Arrested In Trio's Shooting

Coast Artilleryman Slain, Two Sisters Wounded in Kiss Quarrel.

Sausalito, Calif., March 26 (A.P.).—A Coast Artilleryman was shot to death and two Sausalito sisters were wounded today in an aftermath of a theater party here which led to the arrest of Private E. L. King, of Fort Barry, by Army authorities.

Katherine Talbott, 20, bruised by clubbing, testified before an Army board of inquiry her refusal to kiss King on a drive after the party last night caused the shooting. The dead man was private John Smith, 25, of Fort Scott.

The other wounded girl was Irma Talbott, 17-year-old high school student, shot three times in the body. King, captured by soldiers while driving off a military reservation with the body of Smith and the wounded Irma Talbott, told officers he remembered nothing of the incident. He said he had "had a couple of drinks."

Moslems of India Spurn British Plan

Delhi Board Feels Autonomy Program Does Not Go Far Enough.

New Delhi, India, March 26 (A.P.).—The Moslem conference executive board tonight adopted a resolution expressing profound dissatisfaction with the British government's White Paper proposals for giving India a greater measure of self-government.

The resolution said the scheme failed to meet demands of the conference and urged radical changes in order that the provinces of British India might be granted the greatest possible measure of fiscal administrative and legislative autonomy.

It demanded severe curtailment of powers of the governors and the governor general.

Moslems, it said, should be given effective representation and provision should be made for Indianization of the army within a fixed time.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THOSE who are keeping tabs on this business and wish to keep even with their home work should know that according to the Motion Picture Herald's compilation of box-office grosses in the key cities of the Nation, the box-office champions of the cinema for the month of February were, in the order named: "Cavalcade," the Fox picturization of the Noel Coward play, which closed its local "road show" engagement in the National Theater last night, with Diana Wynyard, Clive Brook, Herbert Mundin, Beryl Mercer, and Una O'Connor heading the cast; "The Sign of the Cross," Paramount's release of Cecil B. De Mille's picturization of the Wilson Barrett play, current at the Metropolitan, for the first time at popular prices, with Fredric March, Claudette Colbert, Charles Laughton and Elissa Landi featured; "State Fair," Fox production, starring Will Rogers, with Janet Gaynor, Lew Ayres and Sally Eilers; "The Kid from Spain," United Artists production, starring Eddie Cantor; "Hard to Handle," Warner Brothers' production, starring James Cagney, and "The King's Vacation," another Warner picture, starring George Arliss.

Claudette Colbert

The fact that there were no ties for any position in the ratings reduced the February champions to the apparently meager number of six. It will be noted that the choices are preponderantly serious in character, with two emphasizing the spectacular and two stressing comedy.

It is also noteworthy that not too many producing companies are represented in the list, four having been responsible for the half-dozen releases, Fox and the Warner Brothers having two each and Paramount and United Artists dividing the remaining two between them.

And if you are also keeping a check on local reviewers, there is no picture in the list but was given enthusiastic approval by the Washington critics. Not that it matters.

Mr. Barney McDevitt, long an avant courier of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, but now one of the familiar harbingers of Morton Downey, includes this desk in his Sabbath evening calls to say that Mr. Downey arrives in town on Wednesday to be present at the National Press Club's silver anniversary banquet, at which the President of the United States will be honor guest that evening.

Mr. Downey will remain in the Capital for his engagement at the Earle Theater, which begins Friday and continues through the ensuing week.

Mr. McDevitt, I shudder to announce, is rapidly becoming the proprietor of a very elegant and impressive waistline, which, of course, is a very bad sign—especially with beer just around the corner (saloon).

"King Kong," most audacious and terrifying of the screen fantasies, is breaking all-time attendance records at RKO-Keith's, just as everyone knew it would. Over the week-end—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—Manager Hardie Meakin reports a greater number of cash customers than ever before in the history of the theater, but not the greatest amount of cash, because the money record of the house was established during an engagement when holiday prices prevailed.

On Friday the crowds were so great that they had to be filtered into the auditorium via the huge basement lounge. Even the Thursday midnight preview was a sell-out.

Which only goes to show that even monkey business sometimes pays!

During a Saturday afternoon call, Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi disclosed that Maria Serrano, an American soprano whose principal triumphs have been in Italy, has been engaged to sing the soprano role opposite Nino Martini in his forthcoming production of "Rigoletto" at the Belasco. Following "Rigoletto," Sig. Salmaggi is undecided whether to put on "Il Trovatore," an old, familiar standby, or "La Forza del Destino," which, to the best of my recollection, has not been sung here in years, if at all in modern times. Which one would you prefer?

It just goes to show the pernicious power of example. I mean, so many people have called "Cavalcade" something that sounds like "Calvacade" these past two weeks that one almost acquires the habit unintentionally by ear. They are, as goes without saying, the same people who always refer to "cavalry" as "calvary"!

It hardly seems as if she had had time, but according to Mr. Ray Henderson, most helpful of the panegyricists, Katharine Cornell will give the fiftieth performance of "Alien Corn" in the Belasco Theater, New York, on Saturday night, April 1.

Contrary to report, she will not tour in this play this spring, but will continue until summer in New York, where she is attracting sold-out houses nightly. She will not act through the hot weather period, however, as her experience in doing so in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" forced her to close that drama for a six-weeks' rest in the autumn—a memorable hiatus in its run, by the way, since Miss Cornell paid her supporting company full salaries throughout the period of the respite.

It has since become fashionable to reverse the procedure!

Shoemaker Union Claims Strike Won

6,000 Go Back to Work at Haverhill Today on Higher Wages.

Haverhill, Mass., March 26 (A.P.).—Officials of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union claimed complete victory tonight as plans were concluded for the return to work tomorrow of 6,000 shoe workers in 30 factories which had been effected since March 6 by a strike for better wages and union recognition.

Under agreements reached late last night, workers will return to their benches under union conditions and with salary increases ranging from 5 to 30 per cent.

The new price list, which will be determined by experts at the expense of the State board of arbitration, will be based on the maximum prices prevailing prior to the strike.

Oakland Bay Bids Open Tomorrow

Yerba Buena Anchorages and Tunnel Contracts Ready to Be Let.

San Francisco, March 26 (A.P.).—Bids on two major contracts for the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, $62,500,000 project being constructed with money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will be opened here Tuesday.

The contracts will be for construction of the San Francisco and Yerba Buena cable anchorages and the double-decked vehicular tunnel.

The vehicular tunnel through the rock of Yerba Buena Island is to be 76 feet wide and 58 feet high—which will be the world's largest bore to date. It will be 540 feet long, and lined with steel.

Cunard Line Reports 927,261 Pounds Loss

London, March 26 (U.P.).—A net loss of 927,261 pounds sterling for the past year was shown in the annual report of the Cunard line, made public today.

Decrease in pasenger traffic continued during the year, the report said, in nearly all classes except tourist third, east bound.

France Decorates U. S. Sculptor.

Paris, March 26 (U.P.).—Frederic L. MacMonnies, sculptor, was elevated to the rank of commander in the Legion of Honor today for his work in designing the Marne War Memorial, erected by Americans, which was unveiled at Meaux last year.

First Tax Is Voted By Boulder, Utah

Survey of Town to Be Made and Residents Charged for Their Land.

Salt Lake City, March 26 (A.P.).—Utah's only tax-free town, has voted to write his name on the assessment books for taxation purposes.

The settlement's two score residents devote their time to stock raising. It grew upon a tract of land which was excluded from a national forest in 1923 by executive order. The tract was excluded when the settlers agreed to have the land surveyed and create a township.

The survey was not made, however, and the settlers, under the status of squatters, continued to live in their homes without paying taxes. A survey has been petitioned and when the Federal Government completes it, Boulder residents will be charged $15 a lot for their land.

Assailant of Young Girl Seeks New Trial Today

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 26.—Judge A. G. Hughes in Preston County Circuit Court at Kingwood tomorrow will hear arguments on the motion of defense attorneys to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial for Foster Wilhelm, 42, Preston farmer, who was found guilty yesterday by a jury of criminally assaulting a 10-year-old girl.

The jury made no recommendations for mercy, and this means that Wilhelm, if a new trial is denied, will be sentenced to death or a life term in the penitentiary, at the discretion of the judge. The indictment against Wilhelm, who is a married man and the father of five children, cited that he had been convicted of a similar offense in Preston County in 1924.

Bishop Hughes Weeps Over Beer Bill Signing

Buffalo, March 26 (A.P.).—Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Washington, D. C., head of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the Capital area, today told a Buffalo mass meeting of prohibition sympathizers that the prohibition forces of the country would battle to the last ditch to overthrow the beer bill and to foil ratification of the eighteenth amendment repealer.

"I shed tears," Bishop Hughes said, "over the spectacle of the President of the United States signing a beer bill. The only picture I have seen of him without a smile on his face was the picture last week representing him signing the beer bill with four pens. A smile would not have been a credit to him on that occasion."

Fitch, Y.M.C.A. Leader, Is Decorated by China

Shanghai, March 26 (A.P.).—George Fitch, general secretary of the Foreign Young Men's Christian Association of Shanghai, has been decorated by the Chinese government in recognition of his relief work among the Chapei refugees a year ago during fighting between Japanese and Chinese in Shanghai.

Mr. Fitch repeatedly risked his life by going into battle zones and leading to safety Chinese unable to escape.

Arlington Health Lecture.

The first of a series of lectures by county physicians before the Arlington County Bureau of Nursing and Hygiene will begin Wednesday at 8 p. m., in the Clarendon Health Center, Lawton avenue. Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, will speak on "Quarantine as Pertaining to Nurses." Residents of the county are invited to attend.

ALEXANDRIANS HEAR DR. WHITE TONIGHT

Officers of Tuberculosis Association to Be Named at Meeting.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dr. William Charles White, of Washington, chairman of the committee on medical research of the National Tuberculosis Association, will address a meeting of the Alexandria Tuberculosis Association at 8 p. m. today in the Westminster Building.

Other speakers will be Miss Leslie C. Foster, executive secretary of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association; Dr. H. A. Latane, president of the local medical association; and Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, city health officer.

Officers will be elected, and new members are invited to attend. Representatives of all service organizations in the city have been requested to be present and assist in perfecting an active organization. The Kiwanis Club will be represented by Dr. J. W. Love, R. Wendall Eaves and John H. Trimyer, and the Business and Professional Women's Club will be represented by Miss Catherine Johnson, the public relations chairman, and two members of her committee.

Robert Miller Reese, who was treasurer of the Christmas seal sale last December, will report on that work, showing receipts of $1,141.61. Alexandria has the distinction of being the only city in the State to show an increase in funds collected through the 1932 sale.

Knife Wound Fatal To Quartermaster

Kentucky Coast Guard Petty Officer Slain in Fight in Puerto Rico.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 26 (A.P.).—Elvin R. Davidson, son of Mrs. Susie Davidson, of Louisville, Ky., and quartermaster on the Coast Guard cutter Seneca, died last night from a knife wound through the heart.

Ricardo Vergara was charged with murder in connection with the death. Police said Davidson, who was 25 years old, went to the assistance of a friend who was being attacked.

Commander Stika of the Seneca today notified the mother. The inquest was set for Monday. The body will be sent to Louisville.

Silver and Joe Smith Boosted for Senator

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 26.—The names of Gray Silver, former State senator and former Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation and nationally known farm cooperative exponent, and Representative Joe L. Smith, of Beckley, of the Sixth West Virginia District, are being discussed by Democratic leaders in this State as the most likely candidates for the United States Senate at the 1934 primary. The contest will be for the seat now held by Senator Henry D. Hatfield, of Huntington, Republican.

The Democrats, in solid control of the State for the first time in 40 years, apparently are counting confidently on annexing the second United States senatorship next year.

Director's Wife Asks Separate Maintenance

Los Angeles, March 26 (A.P.).—Suit for separate maintenance has been filed by Mrs. Lena Halperin against Victor Halperin, motion picture director and producer.

The two were married in Chicago, August 20, 1923. Upon moving to New York, the wife asserts in her complaint, Halperin insisted his mother and brother live with them, despite her protests. She said she was forced to serve her mother-in-law's breakfast to her in bed and that she gave her husband $35,000 she had borrowed from a friend in order that he might finance a picture. Only a small portion of the loan has been repaid, she charged.

Two States Swap Antisaloon Chiefs

Rhode Island and Nebraska Trade Superintendents Next Month.

Lincoln, Nebr., March 26 (A.P.).—Transfer of two State Antisaloon League heads early next month was announced here today.

F. A. Higher, superintendent of the Nebraska league for more than thirteen years and active in the prohibitionists movement in this State twenty years, announced he had resigned here and would take a similar position in Rhode Island, effective April 10. R. P. Hutton, superintendent of the league in Rhode Island for nine years, will come to Nebraska. Higher said the presence of granddaughters near Providence affected his decision.

The Nebraskan began Antisaloon League work as superintendent of the Omaha district twenty years ago, and in January, 1920, became State superintendent.

Tall Office Buildings Opposed by London

London, March 26 (A.P.).—A proposal to construct a block of tall office buildings behind Parliament Square has met with opposition by the London County Council.

The council, fearful lest what it regards as the most familiar group of buildings in the world be overtopped, let it be known today that it would take immediate steps to stop the project if possible.

Gimbel Stores Show Loss of $4,459,058

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—Gimbel Brothers, Inc., operators of three department stores in New York and one in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee, reported today a net loss of $4,459,058 for the year ended January 31, 1933.

Net sales were $72,196,485, the total volume of sales showing a decrease of 26.31 per cent from last year.

$48 in Stamps and Cash Stolen.

Stamps and cash totaling $48 were included in the loot of a thief who early yesterday forced entrance into the store of Maurice Parks, 1032 Twentieth street northwest.

JUDGE WOOLLS SITS AT FAIRFAX TODAY

Takes Place of McCarthy, Who Presides in Ball Case in Arlington.

Judge William P. Woolls, of the Corporation Court of Alexandria, Va., will preside during the actual trial of cases during the March term of the Circuit Court of Fairfax County beginning this morning. Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Circuit Court, is unable to preside over the cases set for hearing because of the trial of E. Wade Ball in Arlington County and to keep the Fairfax docket from becoming crowded he asked Judge Woolls to preside.

Among the criminal cases set for hearing this morning are charges against Richard Rayburn, of Washington, for driving while drunk, and Charles B. Money for violation of the State prohibition law.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr, of Fairfax County, has announced that farmers seeking seed loans may apply at his office in Fairfax before noon each day prior to April 27. In making application a person must positively state he can do no farming without obtaining the loan and he will be liable for prosecution on charges of perjury for any misstatement.

A long list of questions that must be answered in detail accompanies the application. These loans must be repaid by October 31 this year.

Wilbert T. Woodson, divisional superintendent of schools, has compiled a complete list of annual salaries of the school teachers of the county. The salaries are as follows: One, $712.80; five, $757.35; 74, $801.90; two, $846.45; 26, $891; five, $980.10; two, $1,024.51, and nine, all principals of the larger schools, $1,212.85 to $1,737.45. There are 134 teachers and principals employed in the county schools.

There has been a movement to reduce these salaries, Superintendent Woodson, in his fight for the retention of the present scale, states that while the teachers are actually employed for only nine months, their salaries should be figured on the twelve-month basis as, he points out, they must live for twelve months on that salary. On the twelve-month basis, the lowest paid teacher receives only $59.40 and the 74 receiving the same yearly salary receive $66.82 a month. The average monthly pay of principals of the larger schools, including the high schools, is $100.23 to $144.78.

McIntire Services In Charlottesville

Wife of Philanthropist Was Miss Rhodes, of Louisa.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 26.—Mrs. Anna D. McIntire, wife of Paul Goodloe McIntire, local philanthropist who has made large benefactions to this city and the University of Virginia, died yesterday at University Hospital. The funeral was held at 4 p. m., today from the University Chapel, conducted by the Rev. Dwight M. Chalmers, of the Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. C. C. Bell, of the First Methodist Church, and the Rev. W. Kyle Smith, of the university. Interment was in University Cemetery.

Mrs. McIntire, the second wife of Mr. McIntire, was Miss Anna Deering Rhodes, of Louisa County, a daughter of the Rev. John Q. Rhodes. She was educated at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, and was for several years with the Albemarle school system as supervisor and board member.

Besides her husband, Mrs. McIntire is survived by one brother, John Q. Rhodes, jr., member of the House of Delegates from Louisa, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Oliver, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Hyde, wife of Dr. Duncan C. Hyde, associate professor of economics at the university.

MONDAY MARCH 27, 1933 SPORTS

NATIONALS ARE 3-1 VICTORS OVER BIRMINGHAM

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE deflation of the dollar is proving a blessing to golf and the duffers who comprise 90 per cent of the addicts of the game. The shortage of the coin of the realm is resulting in a back-to-the-clubhouse movement of the professionals best qualified to teach the game, and the great bulk of the golfers will derive the benefits of the instruction and knowledge they can impart.

The day of the gallivanting golf pro is nearing an end. Clubs no longer can afford to pay handsome salaries merely for the satisfaction of boasting big golf names as professionals. In the predepression era, it was the style to employ an outstanding pro to represent the club in the notable tournaments and an obscure professional to care for the teaching duties. But apparently those days are gone forever.

The pros themselves do not have the same urge to go traipsing about the country in search of the purse money that proved so attractive three and four years ago. Not only has the competition become keener along the golden trail, but the purses aren't what they used to be. In fact, the tournaments offering more than $1,000 first prize money can be counted on the fingers of either hand.

Even Break Called Lucky.

The pros who have been hitting the golden winter trail during the past two years admit that it is only the lucky golfer who is able to break even even on his travels. The great majority show a huge deficit, what with traveling expenses eating into the prize money. And if, by chance, there is no prize money won, they take it on the chin to a damaging extent.

Thus the big names of golf, barring Sarazen, Hagen, and the few who are fortunate enough to show a profit on the winter play, are eager to return to the shelter of the clubhouse and the steady income that teaching of deficient club members insures.

The instruction duties that have been left in the hands of less capable pros will be taken over by the real masters of the game, and club members who have been paying the salaries of the best teachers without benefit of their instruction will begin to reap some of the benefits they have long been entitled to.

Diegel Most Unorthodox Of Pros.

This department has often wondered how Leo Diegel progressed with his pupils. The Agua Caliente pro, admittedly in the select circle of paid performers and ranked only behind Sarazen and Hagen by many critics, has a golf form all his own that defies copy.

Diegel violates virtually every accepted principle of golf form, yet hits a tremendous tee shot, is a master of both wood and irons, and putts well enough to maintain a standing near the top. Yet it is difficult to conceive of Diegel giving golf lessons.

Diegel stands 6 inches farther away from the ball than most pros and the start and finish of his stroke resembles Babe Ruth's home run swing more than the accepted golf swing. His putter dangles like a pendulum from arms akimbo. Yet he was good enough to win the P. G. A. championship twice and the Canadian open four times in six years.

The only other sports star to defy accepted form to the same degree that Diegel does is Al Simmons, who can put his foot in the bucket and still lead the league in hitting while the best baseball minds look on askance.

Army Baseball Team Schedules 16 Contests

West Point, N. Y., March 26 (A.P.).—Army's 1933 baseball, opening April 10 with an exhibition tilt with the New York Yankees, lists sixteen games. One intersectional game against Washington and Lee will be played May 13, and the all-important struggle with the Navy is scheduled for May 27. The annual visit of the New York Giants has not yet been arranged, but the National Leaguers have promised to make their usual appearance here.

The Cadet team lost seven letter men from last year's team, which Coach "Moose" McCormick said was the best in twenty years. Only Fuqua, captain and right fielder; O'Neil, shortstop, and Brown, catcher, are left from the 1932 team.

April 10, New York Yankees; 12, Vermont; 15, Haverford; 19, Middlebury; 22, Swarthmore; 26, Lehigh; 29, Rutgers; May 3, Colgate; 6, Columbia; 10, New York University; 13, Washington and Lee; 20, Fordham; 24, Wesleyan; 27, Navy; 30, Union; June 3, Bucknell.

The Plebe schedule—April 22, MacKenzie School; 29, Poughkeepsie High School; May 6, New York Military Academy; 13, Mount Vernon High School; 20, New Rochelle High School.

Southwest's Fives Play Tonight

Mercury Seeks Titles in Two Classes of A. A. U. Play.

Typo Grays to Battle D. H. in Community Title Play-Off.

NOTED for the caliber of its athletes and teams, Southwest Washington sends forth new players in search of new laurels tonight at Tech High School where the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, sponsored by The Post, enters in upon its last full week. Opposing the Southwest courtmen will be representatives of the Northeast section of the city, just as eager and as determined to annex city titles. Mercury A. C. teams are involved in each instance. At 7 o'clock the 130-pounders engage Northeast Boys Club, and an hour later the 145-pound combination pairs off with Rhode Island Avenue.

But the best has been saved for the feature spot, 9 o'clock, when United Typewriter Grays endeavor to make it two in a row over Delaware and Hudson in the Community Center League play-off.

While the preliminary games will be packed with 40 minutes of old-fashioned action, the kind that brought the reserves hurrying to the scene in the past, the feature promises to eclipse both in this respect.

Delaware-Hudson Has Stars.

Delaware and Hudson, with its glittering array of talent, won the championship in Section B, Community Center League. In the play-off series it was pitted against the Grays, who finished second to the powerful Sholl's combination in Section A. Under the league rules, a runner-up must beat a winner twice, while the winner must down the former only once to enter the finals, the absolute finals.

Sholl's experienced little difficulty in stopping Griffith-Consumers, who were runner-up to D. and H., but the latter was surprised and trimmed by the Grays. True, D. and H. finished the fray with only four men, the result of strict enforcement of the four fouls rule. Nevertheless, they lost. The score was 36-33, and from the opening whistle until the last action was at a fast tempo.

D. and H. has Ted Cappelli, Don Garber, Heine Gubisch and Henry Weigel, among others, as outstanding threats to the security of the Grays. Opposing them will be Tony Latona, Bernie Phillips, Buddy Timmons and men of similar caliber.

Better known for their football teams and exponents of the manly art of fist-throwing, only in recent years have Southwest boys been converted to the goal-throwing pastime. But since taking up the game they have advanced to the front ranks.

Mercury Upset 1932 Champions.

The 130-pound Wingfeet sprang an upset last week when they swamped War Department A. G. O., 115-pound champs last season, by a score of 59-30. Walker, Taylor and Fitzgerald led the attack in that game and it is this trio that the Northeast lads must keep covered tomorrow night if they expect to win.

But Northeast has a few stars of its own. Kaplan, Miller, Shanks and Stastulli are on par with any in their class. In taking the bacon from the Western Flashes the quartet played superb basket ball.

The older Mercurians will find their time fully occupied in chasing Rhode Island avenue's standard bearers around. Bernie Reichhardt and Jimmy Reed, former Tech High regulars, are performnig with the Eastend group. Northern Preps, who bowed by a slim two-point margin, 38-36, represent the prize of the team's list of victims. This was one of the best games of the tournament.

Tomorrow night a plum awaits tourney-goers in the Sholl's Crop Production fray. The former is a slight favorite to retain its A. A. U. championship, but the pace the Farmers have been setting bodes no good for Dick Mothershead's prize collection of court performers.

Wick Parrick, former George Washington U. star, heads the list of Crop Production players.

Stagg Is Welcomed By Coaches on Coast

Stockton, Calif., March 26 (A.P.).—The Pacific Coast Football Coaching Fraternity was on record today with an official "welcome" to its new comrade in arms, Amos Alonzo Stagg.

The former University of Chicago tutor, who arrived here last Tuesday to become coach at the College of the Pacific, was honored at a reception given by the coaches and 700 other football enthusiasts last night.

Navy Bill Ingram, of California; Bill Spaulding, of University of California, at Los Angeles; Slip Madigan, of St. Mary's; John Bunn, of Stanford, and Clipper Smith, of Santa Clara, were among those who greeted Stagg.

"We coaches have a hard time and are on edge a great deal," Stagg said in response. "I hope that Californians are much fairer to coaches than people are back East in some places. I don't know—but I will in a short time.

"I don't know what the future holds, but we're going to give Slip Madigan and his squad all we've got."

College of Pacific plays St. Mary's here Armistice Day.

TECH RIFLEMEN TRIUMPH.

Tech High's rifle team returned from Lexington, Va., yesterday after taking the measure of V. M. I. freshmen Saturday night. The score was 1,323 to 1,253. The District shooters recently scored over the Navy Plebes.

Bonus Plan Assures Tribe Good Pitching From Ferrell

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 26 (A. P.).—If the cash register isn't jingling along about "dog days" next August and September it will be because Wesley Ferrell has lost some of the potency in that big right arm of his.

Wesley Ferrell.

It is the same arm that has counted up 20 or more victories for the Cleveland Indians for four consecutive years, and this year the North Carolina pitcher has a real motive, aside from his natural desire to win, to make it anywhere from 20 to 25.

When Ferrell struck his holdout colors and surrendered to General Manager Billy Evans' terms of a one-third salary cut, it was with the understanding that a bonus of $2,000 will be added to the $12,000 figure if he wins 20, and that another $3,000 will be forthcoming if he wins 25.

If Ferrell wins the $15,000 it will be just $3,000 less than for what he worked last year. The $6,000 cut made in his basic pay was the most severe tendered any Indian player.

Ferrell Says He Will Collect.

In Ferrell's mind, at least, there is no doubt of his ability to collect. In the salary argument he declared he would win 25 games, and that 30 victories was not beyond his powers.

He already has won 25 games in a season, in 1930. In 1929 he won 21; in 1931, 22; in 1932, 23.

But his managers stretched a point when they consented to the bonus feature. Evans, for one thing, says a bonus player is likely to feel that the gods are especially unkind if a rookie infielder chooses to boot a grounder or an outfielder loses one in the sun.

Not since 1927 when George Uhle had a bonus agreement has the device been used by the Cleveland club.

Nevertheless, there were some special features in Ferrell's case which may have had an effect. For one thing, Ferrell can not be accused of "soldiering"—and there were whispers last season.

Peck Has Reasons To Smile.

For another, there will be no suspicion that the quarrel between Manager Roger Peckinpaugh and Ferrell last year is having any effect on Ferrell's efforts.

Anyway, with Ferrell signed, Peckinpaugh has reasons to smile. All his stars are on the pay roll, despite reduced salaries given many of them.

And just as Ferrell was coming to terms, Peckinpaugh was making a discovery that maybe he has the left-handed pitcher for whom he has been looking ever since he has been the club manager.

Forest Twogood.

His name is Forest Twogood, former University of Iowa star athlete. Twogood, says Peck, is the best south-paw prospect to try out at the Indians' New Orleans proving grounds in six years.

FIGHT CARD THIS WEEK ORDINARY

Poreda-Heeney Clash Tonight in 10-Round Bout in New York.

NEW YORK, March 26 (A.P.).—The national boxing schedule slips back to mediocrity this week with not one outstanding match on the card.

New York offers two shows, one at the St. Nicholas Arena Monday night and another in Madison Square Garden Friday. Stanley Poreda, young Jersey City heavyweight, opens a comeback campaign against old Tom Heeney, of New Zealand, in a ten-rounder at St. Nicks, while Adolph Heuser, German light heavyweight who was beaten by Maxey Rosenbloom in a title match here two weeks ago, faces Harry Ebbets, of Freeport, N. Y., in the Garden, also over the ten-round route.

Heuser Beat Ebbets Last Meeting.

Heuser and Ebbets put up a sensational battle in one of the preliminaries of the recent Carnera-Schaaf show with the German gaining a close decision.

Johnny Risko, Cleveland's veteran heavyweight, meets Dick Daniels, of Minneapolis, at Cleveland, Tuesday, and on the same night, Baby Arizmendi, Mexican featherweight, tackles Pedro Masquera, of Ecuador, at Los Angeles.

BRAVES LAND FINAL FROM YANKEES

Rally to Cop, 4 to 3; Lucas, of Reds, Is Injured.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26 (A.P.).—After being held runless for seven innings, the Boston Braves landed on Jimmy Deshong in the eighth and scored four runs to defeat the New York Yankees, 4 to 3, in their final spring exhibition clash today. Bill Urbanski's triple with two on base drove in the tying runs and put the Boston shortstop in position to score the winning tally on Wally Berger's single.

The Yankees won the annual spring series, six games to three.

Tampa, Fla., March 26 (U.P.).—Red Lucas, ace pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, today strained a muscle in his right side while swinging a bat in practice. The injury will delay Red's first mound appearance this season by at least another week.

Clearwater, Fla., March 26 (A.P.). Limiting the Newark Bears to three hits, Bill Dietrich, and Sugar Cain, two of the Athletics' young hurlers, helped the A's to a 5-to-0 victory today.

Foxx and Johnson each whaled home runs over the right-field fence and while the Mackmen amassed only nine hits, no fewer than six were for extra bases.

The victory was the A's second straight over the Bears.

New Orleans, March 26 (A.P.).—The New Orleans Pelicans took advantage of a letdown by Bill Perrin today to win an exhibition game from the Cleveland Indians, 9 to 7. The Pelicans made eight hits and as many runs in the seventh inning, when Perrin's pitching faltered.

Willis Hudlin pitched the first five innings for the Tribe in near-pecfect style. A base on balls early in the fifth was the only flaw on Hudlin's record.

Pennant Seen For Phils by Shotton

Finn Rounds Out Best Infield in League, Says Manager.

Work of Pitchers Is Encouraging to Team Leader.

IT has taken Burt Shotton five long years, and added silver to his hair, lifting from his ball club the most disparaging nickname in baseball—the "Futile Phillies." Now he honestly believes that the haphazard team of yesterday has come on so far it is destined to be the next champion of the National League.

The trades of the winter season, while costing Shotton his regular center fielder, George Davis, and his best pitcher, Ray Benge, took strength that was hard to spare.

But the wisdom of these moves shines brighter each day of spring training as Mickey Finn, brought from Brooklyn to play second base, plugs a gap that has yawned in the Phillies infield ever since Fresco Thompson lost his punch.

Dugas Good Sub for Hurst.

Likewise, Gus Dugas, an inconsequential part of the three-cornered trade with the Giants and Pirates, is assuming a role of life-saving proportions as he subs for Don Hurst, clouting first baseman, who has carried his holdout campaign to the point of packing up and leaving the training camp at Winter Haven, Fla. Dugas, former Pirate, is a slashing hitter, but lacks polish. Chick Fullis, outfielder, traded from the Giants, looks so well to Shotton that he feels Davis never will be missed.

"My ball club has improved enough to win the National League pennant," Shotton told the Associated Press. "The team proved last season it could play winning baseball. The experience the team gained from being in the race was invaluable, though we finished only fourth.

"Even when we were going at our best last summer, I did not claim the pennant, although I hoped we could win. I could not have said we would finish first and have been sincere. This season I can say honestly we have the stuff."

Best Infield in League, Says Shotton.

Shotton claims he wouldn't trade his infield for any other in the National League. If Hurst, a .339 hitter and particularly savage with men on bases, returns to the fold at first base; Finn at second, Dick Bartell at short and Arthur (Pinkey) Whitney on third, he has plenty of reason for that assertion. Bartell hit .308 last season; Whitney, .298. Both rank with any infielders in the league.

The outfield, founded on the redoubtable "Chuck" Klein, considered even above Babe Ruth as baseball's greatest right fielder, is young, swift and powerful. Hal Lee, a .302 belter last season, is in left field, with either Fullis or Fred Brickell, who hit .333, in center.

"Much of our success," Shotton admits, "will depend on our pitching. The showing of our pitchers this spring has been highly encouraging. Flint Rhem and Jim Elliott appear to be coming along in especially good shape. Elliott won nineteen games for us in 1931, but was handicapped last year by illness and a back injury. He seems to be in better health this year than at any time since joining the team.

Shotton likes the looks of one rookie pitcher, Frank Pearce, from Nashville, a right-hander, up for the first time, but equipped with a cool head and nice control. Cy Moore, from Brooklyn, is another promising youngster, but his big five again will be Rhem, Elliott, Phil Collins, Ed Holley and Roy (Snipe) Hansen, like Elliott, a southpaw.

Virgil Davis, a .335 hitter, heads the catching staff, with Al Todd, a rookie last year, offering admirable support. The reserves are stronger than at any previous time in Shotton's reign. Ed Delker, Les Mallon and Jackie Warner are available for infield duty and the veteran Cliff Heathcote is still able to step occasionally into the outfield.

High-Priced Rookie Is Gone Forever, Says Clark Griffith

Nats' Owner Recalls Bargains; Once Bid for Ty Cobb.

Special to The Washington Post.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 26.—Clark Griffith's 43 years in baseball, and his perennial willingness to shuffle players with about as little emotion as shuffling cards, lends importance to his prophesy that the day of the high-priced rookie was gone forever.

Getting a new molar hold on an already well-bitten cigar, Griffith based his contention on the fact that (1) the depression has bitten deeply into the innards of every big league club, making them all extremely careful about the once prevalent habit of paying out king's ransoms for raw green rooks; (2) that more and more the magnates are beginning to realize that the best things in life are free, and the greatest players practically so, and (3) that there hasn't been a $1,000,000 rookie whose play justified his high cost in ever so long.

"Fifteen thousand dollars will be an exceptional purchase price on bush leaguers hereafter," Griff mouthed, and then amended, "at least for a deuce of a long time. The clubs just don't have the money to throw away any more, and they can't point out any high price rook who ever did them much good. The greatest players the game ever had combined did not cost as much as Strand, for whom the Athletics paid $75,000; Cissell, for whom Chicago departed with $120,000; Kamm, who set Chicago back another $100,000, or John McGraw's long list of high price duds, chiefly Koenicke."

Ruth Cost Red Sox Only $5,000.

"You can't get away from the fact that Babe Ruth cost Boston only $5,000. That Jim Bottomley didn't cost the Cardinals much. Look at Rogers Hornsby—Miller Huggins, when he was manager of the Cards, picked him up for $400 as an understudy. And take Ty Cobb. It cost Detroit $800 to buy his contract from Augusta, and Eddie Collins and Lou Gehrig came right from Columbia.

"Tris Speaker (Griff continued) just walked into the Red Sox park one day and asked for a trial. He didn't cost a penny. Funny about Sisler, too. Barney Dreyfuss signed him up when he was a freshman at Michigan. Only 16 years old. But Branch Rickey, of St. Louis, came along and persuaded Sisler's people to break the contract on the grounds that George was a minor—and then signed him up himself.

"Washington's no different. Best ball players I ever had cost me next to nothing. Call up the Union Station and ask 'em how much a railroad ticket from Coffeyville, Kans., cost in 1907, and you'll know how much Johnson cost. A guy gave me Sam Rice. The fellow had charge of the old Petersburg Team, down in Virginia and owned me $300. He couldn't pay me. All he had, he said, was a young pitcher named Rice. I said, 'Well, send him along then.'

Harris and Bluege Bargains.

"Bucky Harris set me back $2,500 and Ossie Bluege cost $3,500. Funny how I got Goose, too. Hank Shanks had written me about Goslin, saying that he looked pretty good for a 21-year-old kid, but I didn't pay much attention. Finally he wrote so much that I told Joe Engel to take a look at him. Joe was down that way with a bunch of big league scouts, all doing the bushes in that region together. For some reason or other Joe didn't take a look at Goose, but wired me that he had asked the other boys and none of them could see him. I remember Joe's telegram. It said: 'Nobody down here worth talking about.'

"Well, I happened to go over to Baltimore a couple of weeks after that to play some golf with Jack Dunn and just offhanded he says to me that he's buying a kid named Goslin who Shanks had recommended. 'How much?' I said. 'Seven thousand,' said Jack. 'Have you closed with Hank?' I asked and when Jack said no, I said, 'Jack, let's play nine holes.' I grabbed the next train, took a look at Goose the next day and whittled Hank down to $5,000 for him."

It so happens that Joe Cronin happened to dash into the lobby at this point of the story and Griff cocked a thumb at him and lifted one expressive eyebrow.

Kuhel Griffith's Top Price.

Griffith admits that he has had good luck with the men he has paid a lot of money for in his time. His top mark is $65,000, for Joe Kuhel, an investment that hasn't begun to pay dividends as yet but gives every promise of a boom. Roger Peckinpaugh cost Griff $50,000, as did Earl McNeely, but they did much to bring to Washington its only world's championship and Griff stretches the point a bit and lists them as bargains. His greatest boner, he says, was the $17,500 he paid for Carlin Moore, the late Birmingham flash, who proved a flash in the pan here a few years ago.

In 1912 Griffith walked into the office of Frank Navin in Detroit and wrote out a check for $100,000 and tossed it across the desk at Navin. "I want to buy Ty Cobb." Navin indulged in a big stomach laugh. The papers reprinted the check and everybody laughed at the preposterously large price, except Griff and the many stockholders of the near-bankrupt Washington Ball Club, all of whom wired him demanding that he call off all negotiations. The fact of the matter is that Griffith was deadly in earnest. Washington was in second place at the time, four games behind Boston. Cobb would have meant a pennant, Griffith believes to this day, if Navin had not laughed (a laugh partially sponsored by knowledge of the fact that the Washington baseball treasury had about $3,800 in it) and had said "Sold." Griffith was prepared to rush back to Washington to give the stockholders a pep talk and send them scooting to the banks to borrow the money. But nobody would take him seriously.—R. B. C.

Indianapolis Quintet Wins Catholic Crown

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—A ten-year Indiana campaign to land the national Catholic high school basket ball championship ended tonight as the yellow-shirted Cathedrals, of Indianapolis, scored a crushing 31-to-10 victory over St. Rita, Chicago, in the tournament finals.

Throwing up defense so impregnable that the Chicagoans took 22 minutes to score their first field goal, the Hoosiers rolled up an 18-to-2 lead at half time and breezed home with the title. Big Charles Shipp, 6 feet 3 inches of basket ball star, led the attack that completely baffled the Chicago team.

Ruth Denies Report 1933 Is Last Season

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, New York Yankees' slugger, tonight denied reports that he planned to retire from baseball at the end of the 1933 season.

"There is nothing to it," said Ruth when advised that reports were current he was being urged by Mrs. Ruth to retire and that they were planning a tour of Europe next winter.

"You can say for Mrs. Ruth and myself that there is no foundation to the reports of my retirement at the conclusion of this season, as neither of us has made any statements to that effect. And besides, it is a long time before the end of the baseball season," the Babe added.

Ruth recently signed a contract with the Yankees for $52,000 after the longest holdout of his career.

Mid-Atlantic Baseball League Is Reorganized

Zanesville, Ohio, March 26 (A.P.).—The Mid-Atlantic Baseball League was reorganized here today. Four West Virginia, one Pennsylvania and one Ohio club were granted franchises, and the door was left open for two additional teams if they apply before Monday, April 3.

Teams represented at today's meeting were Huntington, Wheeling, Charleston and Beckley, W. Va., Johnstown, Pa., and Zanesville, Ohio. Beckley was represented by proxy, having wired that the league secretary would represent that club.

The league adopted a 130-game schedule, opening May 4 and closing September 6. Officials of the clubs were optimistic at the outlook for the season and expressed the belief that they would get sufficient support.

Morales Takes Cuban Tennis Championship

Havana, March 26 (A.P.).—Ricardo Morales defeated Gustavo Vollmer, 6—8, 6—2, 6—2, 0—6, 6—4, in the final round of the Cuban national amateur tennis tournament today.

Runner-up to Vollmer in many tournaments for several years, Morales recently ended the German-born youth's strangle hold on Cuban tennis honors by defeating him in the finals of the Guggenheim Cup tourney.

Germany's Gymnasts Seek Olympic Ban

Dresden, Germany, March — (A.P.).—The Turnerschaft of the State of Saxony adopted a resolution today in which the Deutsche Turnerschaft (the National Gymnastic Association), was asked to use pressure to bar the 1936 Olympics from Berlin if "Germany is not granted political equality."

The resolution also demanded that the national association introduce sports of a military character and exclude "Marxists and non-Aryans."

The Deutsche Turnerschaft, with 1,500,000 members, has been nonpartisan in the past.

Risky Miss Is Winner In Mexico Futurity

Agua Caliente, Mexico, March 26 (A.P.).—A trim little filly, Risky Miss, owned by T. C. Worden, won the Agua Caliente Futurity here today from a select field of 2-year-olds, making it five straight victories and no defeats since she began running in January. The race was run at 4½ furlongs and paid the winner $2,425.

Thoughtful, an Oak Tree Stable gelding, was second, a length and a half behind Risky Miss, with Secluded, a stablemate of the winner, taking third. Bonsall, owned by Alexander Pantages, was fourth.

Ten youngsters went to the post for the biggest race for beginners sponsored by the Agua Caliente Jockey Club. It took them nearly fifteen minutes to line up.

BEN JEBY WEDS.

New York, March 26 (U.P.).—Ben Jeby, recognized in New York State as middleweight champion of the world, today was married to Miss Evelyn Siedman, of New York. The boxer gave his civilan name of Benjamin Jebaltosky at the ceremony which was performed by Rabbi Harry Guzik in the congregation synogogue. They went to Lakewood, N. J., for their honeymoon.

Stewart and Crowder in Fine Form

Former Grants But One Hit in Four-Inning Shift.

Nats Get But 6 Safeties as Sewell's Triple Helps.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 26.—A gentle, zephyr-like uprising, in keeping with the cultural background of the team, gave the Washingtonians a 3-to-1 ball game here today against the Birmingham Barons, who are managed by wrinkled Clyde Milan, center fielder for Washington during the last millennium.

Several outstanding acts of treason against the proud flag of Alabama marked the chilly afternoon. A sixth-inning triple by Luke Sewell, late of the State's enterprising football factory, the University of Alabama, was the crowning blow of the game. And then there were the cases of Al Crowder and Walter Stewart, both of whom once wore the mangy Montgomery uniform. Crowder gave his former colleagues four well-scattered hits and Stewart only one.

In deference to old Montgomery, it must be said that until the sixth inning it looked like Washington would have to wire Judge Landis to suspend Clay Touchstone, Baron flinger, if the Nationals were going to win the ball game.

Nats Can't Touch Touchstone.

The calculating minor leaguer, who won sixteen games for the home team last year in Southern League competition, allowed Washington just one miserable safety in the five innings he worked, that being collected by Ossie Bluege in the third inning.

Touchstone set Washington down in tit-tat-toe order in the first, fourth and fifth. In the third, Bluege, after getting to first, succumbed on a double play. In the second, he walked Joe Cronin, but Joe was caught sneaking down second. Other than that he had the Nats biting their cuticles.

To start the sixth inning, Manager Milan took compassion on his erstwhile pals and put in a kid named Abie White to pitch. He was made to order. Bluege walked. Sewell banged one against the fence in right center, scoring Bluege and was himself scored when the Rev. Dr. Abernathy, first baseman, began a juggling act with Buddy Myer's roller. Manush doubled before the inning subsided. Two runs.

Barons Take Lead In First.

Until Cousin White came in, the Barons had been coasting along on a narrow 1-to-0 advantage, engineered in the first inning, when the boys were very disrespectful to Al Crowder. Bancroft banged the first pitched ball for a single over Buddy Myer's head. Winetraub moved him to third on a single to left and Abernathy batted a looper off his knuckles over Bluege's head to score Bancroft.

After that, the General bore down beautifully. In one, two, three order the Barons went down in the second, third and fourth. In the fifth, Moore, one of the impoverished

GALLANT SIR IS STANDOUT IN AGUA CALIENTE HANDICAP

Horse Rated Best in U.S. At Route

Prerace Odds Drop to New Low; Sire Has Been Success.

Little Regarded Candidates Draw Play in Derby Book.

GALLANT SIR, son of Sir Gallahad III and the Omar Khayyam mare, Sun Spot, seems to have the Agua Caliente Handicap nailed down, says Vernon Sanders, Louisville turf authority. In his present condition he probably could beat any horse in America over the mile and a quarter route. Gallant Sir's victory over the invader Pillow Fight last Saturday in a sprint affair leaves few doubters as to his prowess. His price in Gen' Koch's future book has drifted as low as Eddie Cantor's stocks. His odds are so prohibitive that one would have to wager a perfectly good $2 note to get enough to buy a cheese sandwich.

Sir Gallahad III Sired Stars.

Sir Gallahad III furnished the winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1930 with Gallant Fox. That good horse won that year about every worthwhile stake for 3-year-olds hung up, East and West. He had a rival in Gallant Knight, but always managed to get the decision over that fast horse. Whether it was the marvelous jockeyship of Earl Sande which enabled the Belair champion to carry on has been the subject of debate for several years. Anyhow, there are a couple of Sir Gallahad III's sons which are being pointed for the Kentucky Derby, to be run on May 6, that will have a big following for the honors. These are Col. E. R. Bradley's Fingal and F. A. Griffith's Sarada.

Derby Candidates Workout.

Roscoe Goose had Flying Cadet and Shepherd Boy, the Laffoon and Yeiser Derby candidates going through their paces in the mud at Churchill Downs recently. Some punter must think pretty well of their chances for Derby honors, as they have evidently been substantially backed in the future books. Colonel Hatfield, which seems to be the best of the 3-year-old division at New Orleans, was formerly a stablemate of both these 3-year-olds. Goose lost Colonel Hatfield via the claiming route for $2,500 at Lincoln Fields last fall. He evidently think that either Shepherd Boy or Flying Cadet can beat Colonel Hatfield from one jump to the Rocky Mountains. Over a deep and holding track Goose is not so sure present charges can whip Colonel Hatfield, as he has great respect for his soft-track form.

Washington Park Optimistic.

C. W. Hay, general manager of the Washington Park Jockey Club, Chicago, and proprietor of Scotland Stud, near Frankfort, Ky., where he has the imported horse Palcines at court, was a visitor at Churchill Downs the other day. Mr. Hay has a band of promising 2-year-olds by Palcines and his son, Sir Peter, which he plans to campaign this season. He has an abiding faith in Palcines and believes he will yet send a champion to the races. Mr. Hay is optimistic about the coming meeting at Washington Park. "Why with the Century of Progress Exposition opening on June 1 the meeting will attract many visitors to the world's greatest show. The American Derby, which will be decided during the Washington Park meeting, is sure to draw the largest crowd that ever saw a horse race in America. All the best 3-year-olds in America have been nominated for the American Derby," said Mr. Hay.

DEAR AL: TROPICAL PARK, MARCH 26.

Broadway Lights is crying to run—Pardon me, friend, for harking back to Saturday's comment but I just can't help feeling proud over the fact that I put over another feature winner on the so-called experts. Broadway Lights showed them plenty and at a $14.10 mutuel. Thus encouraged, I spent the day deep in the books in an effort to boost my average. Mike left last night for a stud poker game and failed to return. I have no one to blame but myself if I fail to make the grade tomorrow. BILL.

FIRST RACE — WAYWARD LAD failed me the other day but has excuses. Was away slowly and came from far back to miss. Gets in tomorrow with a steadying impost and may draw Leyland as the rider. I expect no mistakes. NOAH'S PRIDE appears the one to beat. TREMENDOUS gets in light and may be dangerous.

SECOND RACE—BUBBLING WAYS, one that I chased home recently on the boys, goes again tomorrow for the Bennings dough. Remillard will ride. FLAGHORN did very well last out and may take the place ahead of the speedy, but faint-hearted, HER HERO.

THIRD RACE—BLACK WATCH has only been fooling here and I expect him to show a dash of his real speed in this. Appears to be the class of the party. GOLDEN EFFORT has plenty of speed but is not a stayer. However, may stick long enough for the place. ADELAIDE A is a show possibility.

FOURTH RACE — STARBOARD LIGHT takes off 9 pounds and seems ideally placed. Ran a game second to Boscobel the other day. HONEY LOCUST, with only 94 pounds, might be troublesome after that recent wake-up. BANDERLOG for the show end.

FIFTH RACE—CAPTAIN RED packs too much punch for this field and as I see it he will take this heat and pay about $4.20. BROWN MOLASSES won and then bucked a tough spot last up. Likely to figure high tomorrow. GRACIAS to make a money appearance.

SIXTH RACE—YANCEY is nursed around the tracks for such races as this one. Understand the reliable little Kneesi will climb in the saddle for a hustling ride. CLEAN PLAY picks up weight. PAN for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—This may be the the one that GABBO is waiting for. MODERN TIMES is on the improve. OATEN, fit and ready, drops some weight and may figure

16-1 Shot Wins French Steeplechase Feature

Auteuil, France, March 26 (A.P.).—Juan Fernandez's Pour Quoi Pas II today won the Frand Prix du Printemps, a steeplechase handicap at 4,800 meters.

Pour Quoi Pas II won by half a length from Simon Guthmann's Roi de Trefle to earn the major share of a purse of 100,000 francs (about $4,000). Roi de Trefle won the place by four lengths from Roche Filippi's Premier Empire.

The winner paid 16 francs 50 centimes for 1 franc in the betting.

Sacramento, March 26 (A.P.).—Chicago's hustling Cubs, behind the airtight pitching of Guy Bush and Lonnie Warneke, wrested a double-header from the Sacramento Senators here today, 5 to 1 and 3 to 1.

Kiki Cuyler, the Cubs' center fielder, iced the first game for Bush when he cracked out a homer in the first inning, with English on base. Hartnett homered in the seventh over the left center field fence, one of the longest hits ever seen at Moreing Field.

In the second contest, Ed Bryan pitched on even terms with Lonnie Warneke until a three-run rally in the seventh on Vince Barton's double cinched the contest.

El Paso, Tex., March 26 (A.P.).—Taking a four-run lead in the first inning by virtue of two safe blows from the bats of Ott and Ryan, and three El Paso errors, the New York Giants coasted through an exhibition game here this afternoon and defeated an El Paso all-star team, 7 to 2.

Luque, veteran giant twirler, allowed four hits in five innings, while his successor on the mound, Bell, was touched for three safe blows. The Giants failed to score again until the ninth, when Matin's home run scored Leslie and Ryan ahead of him. The Giants departed tonight for San Antonio.

Tampa, Fla., March 26 (A.P.).—A variety of slugging which included two home runs, four doubles and a triple, helped the Phillies to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4, in an exhibition game today.

Larry Benton held the Phillies to two runs in the first five innings, but they broke loose against Bob Smith in the seventh. Pinkie Whitney and Chick Fullis got the homers.

Houston, Tex., March 26 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers defeated the Houston Buffs, 8 to 1 today, to make a clean sweep of their series with the Texas Leaguers.

Carl Fischer and Elon Hogsett, two southpaws, were sent to the mound by Manager Harris, each allowing six hits. Fischer pitched the first five innings, during which Houston got its lone run. The Tiger runs were brought in by Walker, Fox, White, Gehringer and Rogell. Fox got two runs as well as leading his teammates in individual hitting honors, getting three hits. Walker also scored two runs.

Baron outfielders, doubled, but the wily old veteran out on the mound nipped him off second just for spite. Walter Stewart took right up where Crowder left off, rolling the boys down in succession in the sixth and seventh and almost in the eighth, the exception being a hit by an infielder, Mike Cortazzo, who looks like Able Coleman, only lower slung.

Single, Triple Net Nats Nothing.

The third Washington run leaked over in the seventh inning, which was a screwy one indeed. Goose Goslin hit the ball on the nose for a change to start the inning, a clean single to right, and was thrown out by about 714 feet trying to double his dividends. Then Fred Schulte drove a ball that hit the 490-foot center field wall on the second bounce, but he was caught at the home plate by about the length of the Leviathan. Bluege scored the run. He singled over third base, stole second and came all the way home when the Baron catcher, Atwood, let a ball dribble through his legs and stood there behind the plate snapping his fingers at a bat boy to run back and pick it up.

Washington fielded visibly better than to date, and all in all appeared to be more alive than it was against Cleveland. Buddy Myer turned in the two fielding features of the game, going into right field and taking one of Goose Goslin's flies away from him, and later making one of those swan dive stops and throws.

Cronin saw no need tonight to regret his decision of yesterday to change the batting order of the team, although Joe Kuhel did nothing today to substantiate his claim to fame as a deuce spot hitter. However, few occasions arose to give him a chance to prove anything.

For tomorrow's engagement with the Barons, Cronin has called upon Monte Weaver and Earl Whitehill. Earl, by the way, went to Detroit in 1923 from the Barons.

About 1,200 saw today's game. You see, the steel plants here have called a moratorium on work.

San Francisco, March 26 (A.P.).—With 7 runs off 12 hits, including one home run, the Missions Reds, of the Pacific Coast League, downed the American League Chicago White Sox, 7 to 6, here today after the Sox had tied Oakland, also of the Coast League, 5-all in a morning exhibition game.

Almada, Blakely, and Hoffmann, of the Missions hit two baggers, as did Hayes and Swanson, of the Sox. The Missions kept potential Chicago scores down by working three double plays, and Chicago completed one to balk a Mission scoring threat. Walters, Mission second baseman, hit for the circuit.

Sarron-Gelb To Weigh-in Tomorrow

Former Choice to Win Portner's Boxing Feature.

MIKI GELB, Hungary's featherweight and lightweight champion, determined to upset the title aspirations of Pete Sarron in their eight-round feature match tomorrow night at Portner's Arena, in Alexandria, will breeze into Washington this morning, accompanied by one of his manager's advance agents, Al Greenwald. He plans to do a bit of road work this afternoon provided the weather is favorable. Yesterday, under the protective eye of Manager Jimmy Bronson, the sharpshooting Hungarian, winner of 328 amateur fights before turning professional, wound up his indoor training at his New York gym.

Tomorrow afternoon Gelb will go to Riggs Baths to proceed with the customary weighing in. He has promised to come in at 128 pounds. The swarthy Sarron, who has been installed as the favorite to win, also will be present. He is expected to tip the scales at 127.

Sarron Ready for Battle.

Sarron completed his training yesterday at Portner's, topping off his work in the pink of physical condition. The Birmingham boy, former member of the United States Olympic Boxing Team, revealed that he had lost but two fights since becoming a professional. One defeat came at the hands of Emil Paluso, whom he later conquered in a return match; the other was administered by Fidal Labarba last April in Detroit. This latter decision was roundly booed.

Gelb's outstanding fight last season was with Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, who was given many anxious moments before winning the ten-round verdict. If Gelb flashes any of the form he displayed against Miller his backers feel confident he will decision the aggressive Sarron. However, should Sarron break through Gelb as he did against Frankie DeAngelo and Benny Schwartz—he stopped both and won every round from each—his chances of winning will be greatly enhanced.

Even if the main go fails to live up to expectations, fight fans will warm up to what smacks of being a strong supporting line-up. The program, consisting of five bouts, will offer 30 rounds, provided there are no knockouts.

Londers-Dougan in Semifinal.

Leroy Dougan, the vest pocket edition of Mickey Walker, clashes with Billy Landers, of Norfolk, in the six-round semiwindup. Landers, always a main go fighter, has scrapped underneath the feature boys on his past two bouts at Portner's. Recently he knocked out Tommy Horn and Sammy Romano.

Dougan completed his training yesterday at the Terminal Y. M. C. A., stepping a few rounds with Johnny Gallo, French-Arabian boxer, and Spike Kelly, Southern middleweight, both of whom recently drifted into this way, and have been taken over by Ralph Murdock, Dougan's manager. Dougan boxed gingerly with both. He forced Gallo to quit. He looked good against Kelly, showing an especially strong left.

Arthur DeBeve, French veteran, who is anxious to cut off enough weight to challenge Pete Sarron, will meet Jackie Levinson in the main six-round preliminary. Levinson is the Norfolk battler who arrested Bob Lowry's winning streak recently at Portner's. He is a lad of promise, but faces a crafty boxer in DeBeve.

Billy Strickler, the Terminal Bulldog, rushes out against Joe Brennan, of Norfolk, in another six-rounder, while Johnny Bullock, of North Carolina, and Tommy Bonds, of Baltimore, open the card with a four-rounder.

Dusek and Dusek Will Battle Grobmier and Kampfer Here

As if we didn't know it by this time, Joe Turner, the mat mastermind, sends a brief note announcing that Rudy and Ernie Dusek will be co-featured Thursday night at the Auditorium when the wrestlers turn out to earn their quota of the daily bread.

We are reminded that Rudy holds decisions over Ray Steele, George Saharias, Jim McMillan and Paul Jones and is considered one of the leading contenders for Jim Londos' title claims. But Rudy isn't traveling the path that leads to a return match with Londos. The big fellow is content to play around with the smaller fish, as long as the pay check doesn't go on a diet.

But coming along the trail of the champion is Rudy's little brother, Ernie, whose 205 pounds have been helpful thus far in his wrestling career. Little Ernie was obliged to work two hours, with no overtime pay, with Abe Coleman last week, and then it was called a draw.

At the moment Ernie is one of the ring's goody-goodys. He can't approach the older member of the family in roughness. A kick in the stomach, perhaps, or maybe a slap in the mush, but it ends there. Ernie has to be careful lest he lose that match with Londos. After that, well, the bridge is still a good distance in the offing.

Hans Kampfer, who will be in the ring with Rudy, and Lega Grobmier, who also has known better days, although these can not be called evil ones, will pair off with Ernie. We have been reliably informed that both matches will be lively and chock full of interesting tricks.

Working in the supporting role will be Tom Alley, a stranger to these parts, whose mettle will be tested in a bout with Califlornia's Marshall Blackstock. Jean Ledeux, a French-Canadian, who majored in half-Nelsons while in school, will wrestle Everett Marshall. Karl Davis and Frank Brunogicz will stroll into the ring at one time or another and exchange greetings.

Renaissance Seeking 78th Victory in Row

Basketball fans who journey to the Washington Auditorium Wednesday night to see the Renaissance team, colored champions, do battle with the original Celtics, will focus their glimmers on a team that has established what is believed to be a record for winning games.

The team is the Renaissance, which has run up a string of 77 straight victories. Renaissance has not lost a game since December 10 when Yonkers won by a point. Since then, the Rens have played through the South and Middlewest, sweeping aside all opposition. To date their record is 101 games won and 3 lost.

Cherry Time, at 6-1, Wins at Fair Grounds

New Orleans, March 26 (A.P.).—M. B. Cohen's Cherry Time, an outsider in the betting, won the feature event of today's final racing program at the Fair Grounds Track.

The season officially closed yesterday with the running of the Louisiana Handicap, but today's program was the final of the Sunday charity races for New Orleans' unemployed.

Cherry Time, ridden by C. Meyer, broke fast and easily held off J. J. Robinson's Dessner, which was second. On $2 mutuel tickets Cherry Time paid $14 to win, $4.80 to place and $4 to show. Hildur Prince, third in the race, paid $11.80 to show.

BALTIMORE HOCKEYISTS LOSE

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—The Atlantic City Sea Gulls, already assured of their second succesive title, vanquished the Baltimore Orioles, 8 to 3, before a crowd of 7,000 persons in Madison Square Garden today in the final game of the National Amateur Hockey Championship tournament.

Georgetown Lists Army And Navy

Hoyas Add Service Fives to List of January Games.

GAMES with the United States Military Academy and United States Naval Academy have been added to the 1933-34 basket ball schedule of Georgetown University, it was announced yesterday. Both will be played on the service team's courts.

Now in the process of compilation, Georgetown's schedule shapes up as one of the best ever arranged for a local school. All the leading universities of the East are represented.

Army to Be Met January 31.

West Point will be played Wednesday, January 31, and the Navy game will be January 17. It will be Georgetown's third meeting with the Cadets in as many years. Two years ago it dropped a 31-30 decision and last season it bowed by a 24-20 count.

The game with Navy marks a resumption of athletic relations with the Tars after a lapse of three years. The future admirals were represented on the court by one of their greatest teams during the past season in which they encountered defeat only twice.

Mrs. Hill, Miss Orcutt Defeat English Stars

Richmond, Va., March 26 (A.P.).—The American combination of Mrs. Opal S. Hill and Maureen Orcutt today defeated England's, Kathleen Garnham and Betty Dix Perkin, three ways in the best ball international women's foursome over the James River course of the Country Club of Virginia.

Getting distance on her drives from a closed stance, Miss Orcutt, fresh from her North and South triumph at Pinehurst, caught the imagination of a Sunday afternoon gallery. It was the beautiful short game of her partner, however, that paced the play.

Mrs. Hill went out in 42 and came home in 41 for a medal 83. Maureen Orcutt carded a 43 and 41.

Decidedly off her game to the turn, and throwing the burden for the first nine on Kathleen Garnham, Betty Perkin strengthened on the way in to score a 42 and finish with an

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ALTHOUGH every safeguard of secrecy has been thrown about the preliminary meetings to frame up the United States' recommendations to the North American Radio Conference, the impression seems to be that the commercial broadcasts and those occupying the mobile band are far from reaching an agreement as yet. The mobile band comprises the long and short wave frequencies occupied by the Navy and the governmental services, commercial point-to-point transmission, ship to shore, airplane radio and other services.

The broadcasters are seeking additional frequencies to accommodate Mexican, Cuban and possibly Canadian stations and desire to secure a portion of the mobile band for this purpose. Those in the mobile band contend that there are already enough stations for ample radio entertainment in the band at present allotted to them and that superfluous stations should be weeded out and a place made for the foreign stations.

The broadcasters hope to secure some of the desirable long wave channels below the present 550 kilocycle limit in preference to channels above 1,500 kilocycles.

The final decision as to recommendations will be made by Senator White, of Maine; Commissioner Eugene O. Sykes and the American delegation but possibly not until the Mexican and other requirements are developed at the conference in Mexico City. A definite date has not been set for the conference. However, it may be held as early as next month.

The purpose of the meetings in Washington has been to determine the viewpoints of the different American interests. The final course of action will have to depend to some extent on the foreign requirements. These are at present unknown.

There is a definite feeling in the Capital that the American broadcasters will have to give up some channels, but how many, and where they will come from, remains to be seen.

PRINCIPAL speeches at a protest meeting to he held under the auspices of the American Jewish Conference will be broadcast over WJSV and WMAL tonight from Madison Square Garden.

The meeting has been called by the conference as a protest against the treatment of Jews in Germany uhder the Nazi regime of Chancellor Adolph Hitler. Representatives of the three major faiths, as well as of Government and labor, will be heard during the meeting which is scheduled to begin at 8 p. m. The broadcast will begin at 10 p. m.

Bishop William T. Manning and Dr. Stephen S. Wise are among those who will be heard. It is also expected that addresses by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be included in the broadcast.

Casual passers-by on the streets of New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington will be asked by announcers wearing lapel microphones to give their views on current conditions for a symposium on "What Is America Thinking?" to be broadcast over WJSV at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Robert Trout will stand on the steps of the Capitol for his portion of the broadcast. In addition to interviewing private citizens, he will query senators, representatives and other Government officials who may happen by.

"The Roosevelt Farm Bill," over which bitter battles are raging in Congress at present, will be interpreted over WRC by Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, chairman of the powerful Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Senator Smith will speak at 10:30 p. m., during the National Radio Forum.

AS construed by Senator Dill, of Washington, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, there are no restrictions on radio advertising in the new beer act. Senator Dill offered an amendment which would have barred radio advertising of beer in dry States, but this was beaten by two votes.

Asked if it were true no advertising of beer by radio could originate in the dry States, Senator Dill said:

"I have not heard of that. As I see it, the bill contains no restrictions whatsoever with regard to radio advertising."

Selecting from two talking pictures in which he starred, Lawrence Tibbett will sing "The Peanut Vendor," from "The Cuban Love Song," and "Without a Song," from "The Prodigal," during the Voice of Firestone program at 8:30 p. m., over WRC, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Shortnin' Bread" and the "Toreador Song," from "Carmen," complete his half-hour recital.

Maeterlinck's drama of the search for happiness, "The Blue Bird," will be presented by the Radio Guild in its regular program over WMAL at 4 o'clock.

"PANTS for women? Why not?" queries Nancy Garner, cousin of Vice President Garner. "Down Texas way we girls wear them all the time when we are playing around. But then it's a habit, a riding habit, I suppose. At home around McAllen, along the Rio Grande, we wouldn't dream of frightening the natives and horses with skirts. I think that when in Manhattan it ought to be 'Do as the man does.'"

Miss Garner likes her radio singing work immensely, but her first love is painting—oils and pastels. She is happiest when she can put a gorgeous Lone Star landscape on canvas, showing acres of bluebonnets, the State flower of Texas. She sent one home recently for Ma Ferguson.

Her histrionic abilities are not of recent development, Nancy reminded her interviewer at the WOR studio in New York at rehearsal for the Wednesday night weekly performance, referring to the highlight of her stage career as Carmen in "Rio Rita," and a series of movie shorts.

However, her folks tried to nip the career in the bud, but the combined objections of her immediate family and in-laws couldn't keep her home on the ranch. Not even the persuasiveness of her distinguished cousin, John Nance Garner, could keep her from an assault on the citadels of the footlights and the microphone. He has followed her career with considerable amusement, she said, because he once admitted that Garners usually finish what they start. Nancy came to Washington for the inauguration and is coming again soon to show the Vice President her book of clippings. "Just to show him that he was right."

The WOR soprano is planning to go home for the summer, and may do a little broadcasting around Dallas just to keep in practice.

Dallas Resident Made Special Texas Ranger

Dallas, Tex., March 26 (A.P.).—With a former Canadian Northwest Mounted Policeman in the family, Fred Fletchner wanted to have the Southwest's prototype of that service represented, so he has become a special Texas Ranger.

Fletchner, a deputy district clerk here, has received notice his appointment has been approved by the governor. A brother-in-law of Fletchner, Keith Todd of Baltimore, is a former member of the Canadian force.

Bishop Seabury's Memory Honored.

Woodbury, Conn., March 26 (A.P.).—High Episcopal prelates from New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island, joined with townspeople here and visitors from a wide area in a celebration today of the 150th anniversary of the choosing of Samuel Seabury to be the first American bishop.

Post Model Home Attracts Visitors

Cloudy Weather Fails to Keep Throng From 1334 Locust.

Chilly and cloudy weather did not interrupt visitors seeing the latest Washington Post model home yesterday.

This model home is located at 1334 Locust road northwest in the beautiful Northgate subdivision. This most desirable dwellin, built by Paul T. Stone, Inc., and furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., with draperies by John F. Ligon, is presented by J. Wesley Buchanan, Inc., realtors, with offices at 1427 I street northwest.

Architecturally and structurally, this distinguished center-hall brick residence is a contribution of unusual merit to the better class homes of the National Capital. It will be open daily and Sunday until 9 p. m.. To visit it, drive out Sixteenth street northwest to Locust road, one block north of Kalmia road.

DICK TRACY—Link by Link

CIRCLING OVER THE FIELD WHERE THE CROWD WAS SEEN STANDING AROUND THE BODY OF THE MAIL MAN-TRACY ORDERED THE PILOT TO LAND AND THEN HASTENED OVER TO INVESTIGATE . . . .
WHO IS THAT GUY, CLEM?
SAYS HE'S A DETECTIVE AND HE FOUND A PIECE OF A POSTAL CARD THAT HE SAYS MAY BE A CLEW TO THE MURDER.
MISTER - I'M POSTMASTER IN THIS TOWN-DID I UNDERSTAND RIGHT THAT YOU'VE FOUND A CLEW TO THE ROBBERY AND MURDER?
YES. I FOUND A PORTION OF A TORN POSTAL CARD-THAT WAS WRITTEN AND MAILED BY A BOY I'VE BEEN SEARCHING FOR FOR SEVERAL DAYS.
AS I SEE IT, THE ROBBERY WAS COMMITTED FOR THE SOLE PURPOSE OF DESTROYING THIS CARD-
MM-M-IT SAYS - "TAKING ME WEST ..WHEN WE GET.. WILL LET YOU KNOW ..JUNIOR"..I CAN'T MAKE MUCH OF IT.
THE SIGNATURE, 'JUNIOR' IS THAT OF A NINE YEAR OLD SANDY-HAIRED KID WITH BLUE EYES YOU DON'T REMEMBER SELLIN' HIM A POSTAL CARD, DO YOU?
LAND SAKES, YES! WHY, HE DIDN'T HAVE NO MONEY-SO HE TRIED TO TRADE ME HIS POCKET KNIFE FOR A POST CARD-BUT I GAVE HIM THE CARD.
WELL, TRACY, YOU'VE GOT A CLEW!

Post Model Home Is Visited by 3,000

Residence in Forty-ninth Street Is One of City's Interesting Spots.

More than 3,000 persons have visited The Washington Post model home in Spring Valley.

This home at 3641 Forty-ninth street northwest, is one of the city's interesting places. Many have been delighted with its charming individuality, its pleasing arrangement and substantial construction.

Designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller, creators of the beautiful residential subdivisions of Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, the display residence has been opened to the public as a demonstration of the finer art in home building and interior decoration. The latter is by Charles Gallery, Inc. The home boasts of an ultramodern General Electric kitchen, made possible by the cooperation of the National Electrical Supply and Potomac Electric Power companies with the exhibitors. The home will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

LEGAL NOTICES

MAX H. ARONSON, Attorney.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia. In the matter of Rexford's, Inc., bankrupt. Bankruptcy No. 2809. Notice is hereby given, as follows: On January 24, 1933, the Court made an order in the above-entitled cause, appointing Max H. Aronson ancillary receiver to take charge of the assets of Rexford's, Inc., located at 1333 F street northwest, Washington, D. C., and thereafter said ancillary receiver, under the authority and direction of the Court, sold said assets for the sum of $2,100.00 net cash. On March 1, 1933, the Court referred said cause to the auditor "to state the account of the ancillary receiver, consider claims which may be proved before him of creditors in the District of Columbia, allow reasonable compensation to the ancillary receiver, and expenses of administration of the estate of Rexford's, Inc., in the District of Columbia, and report his findings and recommendations to the Court." In pursuance of this reference, I have fixed and appointed WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1933, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the time and the auditor's office in the Court-house, Washington, D. C., as the place for a hearing and the taking of testimony, at which time and place all persons having claims against said Rexford's, Inc., are hereby warned to appear and prove the same. A. LEFTWICH SINCLAIR, Auditor of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. 20.27.3

PEELLE & LESH, Attorneys.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE undersigned, Grayson M.-P. Murphy, Otis A. Glazebrook, jr., P. Erskine Wood, Edward O. McDonnell, John G. Pennypacker, James D. Sawyer, Charles S. Sargent, William P. T. Preston, J. S. Wilson, jr., Charles H. Baetjer, Frederick Osborn and Alfonso P. Villa, having formed a limited partnership pursuant to the laws of the State of New York, and desiring to do business in the District of Columbia as a limited partnership, have this day filed a certificate of limited partnership in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; that the firm name of said partnership is G. M.-P. Murphy & Company; that the business intended to be transacted by said partnership is buying or otherwise acquiring, selling or otherwise disposing of in any manner or deal, whether on behalf of the copartnership or for others, stocks, bonds or other securities and property, transacting a general securities and brokerage business such as is ordinarily conducted by New York Stock Exchange firms, conforming to the constitution and rules of the New York stock exchange, and underwriting or subscribing for or assisting to procure underwritings or subscriptions for stocks, bonds or other securities and/or otherwise financing or assisting to procure the financing of corporate or other enterprises; that the said Grayson M.-P. Murphy, Otis A. Glazebrook, jr., P. Erskine Wood, Edward O. McDonnell, John G. Pennypacker, James D. Sawyer, Charles S. Sargent, William P. T. Preston, J. S. Wilson, jr., and Charles H. Baetjer are general partners; that the said Frederick Osborn and Alfonso P. Villa are special partners; that the said special partners have contributed as capital to the common stock of said partnership, the following amounts in cash, namely: Frederick Osborn and Alfonso P. Villa, $357,500.00, and have also made additional contributions of capital to said common stock consisting in each case of securities and/or other property having the actual and agreed value hereinafter specified, to wit: Frederick Osborn, $112,500.00, and Alfonso P. Villa, $42,500.00; and that the term for which the said partnership is to exist commenced on December 14, 1932, and is to end at the close of business on December 31, 1934, subject to earlier termination at the option of any partner, in the event of a material breach of the articles of copartnership. Dated this 2nd day of March, 1933. (Signed) Grayson M.-P. Murphy, Otis A. Glazebrook, jr., P. Erskine Wood, Edward O. McDonnell, John G. Pennypacker, James D. Sawyer, Charles S. Sargent, William P. T. Preston, J. S. Wilson, jr., Charles H. Baetjer, Frederick Osborn and Alfonso P. Villa.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

REACTION TO LEGALIZED DRINKING.

FIRST CITIZEN (tearfully)—It's going to be very tough, Steve. Learning to drink on the ground floor and all that sort of thing!

Second Citizen (very sadly)—No grilled iron doors! No peepholes! No membership cards! No anything!

First Citizen—They oughtn't to take away the peepholes; not all at once, anyhow.

Second Citizen—It's the membership cards that I hate to see go. I had one of the finest collections of membership cards in this country, Edgar.

First Citizen—So did I. I've got some of the earliest cards issued . . . One of 'em's a genuine October, 1919, issue . . . Very rare now and quite priceless to a collector.

Second Citizen—I've got three authentic membership cards in the first "two flights up and ask for Giuseppe" series. They're out of print, you know.

First Citizen—That's nothing. I've got a genuine Brownstone Fronter, Social Register Series of 1921.

* * * *

Second Citizen (weeping)—Ah, those fine old residences! It was nice to know you were drinking in the very building where some of the community's most illustrious citizens once lived!

First Citizen (swallowing hard)—I know it. There was a satisfaction in ordering a drink in the room where the late Senator Thaddeus Z. Hummingbird was married to Dottie Sears, the most beautiful showgirl of her generation.

* * * *

Second Citizen—Yes, indeed. And how nice it seemed to munch pretzels in the master's bedroom where the Hon. Luke W. Spoofingdale, the old horsecar magnate, slept!

First Citizen—When I rang the bell of a drinking place it was nice to know that I was to enter the building in which Jason Idgetts, member of one of the town's first families, spent his boyhood.

* * * *

Second Citizen—And now they monkey with prohibition and make all such exquisite pleasure matters of the past. Do you realize, my boy, what it means?

First Citizen (quite broken up)—I think so.

Second citizen—It means that hereafter we may have to do our drinking in buildings with no family traditions.

First citizen—We may have to drink in places always meant to be drinking places!

BABE RUTH'S REASON.

Maybe Babe Ruth insisted on that extra $2,000 because he plans to drive by motor from St. Petersburg to Jacksonville and has heard about the Florida gasoline tax.

Elmer Twitchell had the worst nightmare of his life last night. He dreamed he was Adolf Hitler.

A flower exhibited at the Flower Show in New York was named for Mrs. Roosevelt. How about naming a new "dealhia" for the President?

SPEAKING OF SAGAS.

Clarence Derwent thinks that what America needs is somebody to write the story of the past decade in a series of books to be called "The Lack of Forsyte Saga."

Car Overturns 3 Times, Severely Injuring Man

Severely injured when his automobile overturned three times following a collision at North Capitol and D streets last night, John J. Dagastino, of 1030 Third street northeast, was taken to Casualty Hospital, where it was found he suffered a fractured skull and other hurts.

Dagastino's car was in collision with the machine of William H. Smith, of 2114 Fourteenth street southeast. Smith was not injured. Dagastino was taken from the wreckage of his car by passers-by. Physicians said he also suffered concussion of the brain and lacerations to his head, face, body and hands. His condition is critical.

Circus Rehearsals Near Completion

Many Good Seats Are Still Available for Friday Fort Myer Event.

Final rehearsals of the Fort Myer Circus will begin today in preparation for the grand opening parade of the annual show at 2:30 p. m. Friday.

Among the new features of the circus this year will be the scenic decorations on the walls of the riding hall. All of the stunts presented at past performances as well as new ones are scheduled.

Although there have been a number of tickets sold in advance there are many good seats available. Proceeds will be donated to worthy charities of the District and vicinity.

GUGGENHEIM AWARD FOR ACHIEVEMENTS GIVEN TO TWO HERE

Memorial Foundation Announces Recipients of 38 Fellowships.

Two Washingtonians are included in the 1933-34 award of fellowships made by the trustees of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation announced yesterday. In all, 38 fellowships were awarded to scholars and writers by the foundation, which is a memorial to a son of former Senator and Mrs. Simon Guggenheim.

Dr. Lowell Ragatz, associate professor of history at George Washington University, and Dr. Charles Frederick Roos, permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, are local men to receive fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation.

Total Reaches 455.

The former is awarded a fellowship for a study of the social and economic structure of the French Antilles during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and the latter for the writing of a book on dynamical economics, in consultation with European scholars.

The fellowships announced yesterday bring to 455 the number of persons assisted since the foundation was established in 1925 by former Senator and Mrs. Guggenheim.

Recipients of fellowships this year also include Dr. Thomas Charles Poulter, of Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa; Arthur Loveridge, associate curator of herpetology in the museum of comparative zoology, Harvard University; Miguel Covar-Rubias, noted Mexican caricaturist now living in New York; Mrs. Gwen Lux, New York sculptor;

Painters Rewarded.

Mrs. Georgina Klitgaard, painter, of Bearsville, N. Y.; Emil Gansoard Arnold and Lucille Blanch, of Woodstock, N. Y., painters; E. E. Cummings, New York author; George Dillon, Chicago poet; Matthew Josephson, writer, of Gaylordsville, Conn.; Glenway Wescott, novelist, of Ripon, Wis.; Dr. Henry Schultz, professor of economics at the University of Chicago; Dr. Kenneth Scott, of Western Reserve University, Cleveland; Dr. Carl Robert Noller, of Stanford University, California; Dr. Herrick Lee Johnston, of Ohio State University; Dr. Kenneth Tompkins Bainbridge, research physicist of the Bartol Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, Swarthmore, Pa.;

Dr. Francis Bitter, research physicist, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; George Anthell, composer, of Trenton, N. J., and Paul Nordoff, Philadelphia composer.

Parked-Car Beer Sale Is Assailed by Union

Opposition to the suggested amendment to the District beer bill, which would permit the sale of beer to persons parked in vehicles on premises where beer sales are permitted, was voiced yesterday by the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, Local No. 781.

In a letter to Senator Tydings, of Maryland, the opposition to the amendment was made by Charles E. Sands, secretary of the local union.

Prophets Promise Spring Conditions

Fair Skies and Rising Mercury Is Forecast of Bureau for Today.

Elbowed to a rear seat by a stubborn winter that refused to concede spring's official debut in the Capital, weather prophets last night promised that the time for crop-seeding, lovers and poets would come closer to its own today.

Fair skies were predicted for today by Weather Bureau seers, with "rising temperature, diminishing west and northwest winds, becoming southerly Monday."

Traces of Saturday's snowfall had disappeared yesterday. The low temperature in the belated attack by winter was 33 degrees, reached at 8 p. m. Saturday, after which the temperature rose slowly until 2 p. m. yesterday, when it stood at 43 degrees.

Police Still Seek Missing Plaintiff

Alleged Blackmail Victim Disappeared After Man's Arrest.

Police continued to search yesterday for Edward B. Burleigh, 938 New York avenue northwest, supposed victim in a reported extortion case, who disappeared last Tuesday shortly after police arrested Slusher James Howell, who is being held at the District Jail on a charge of blackmail.

According to police reports, Burleigh, who has been married about three months, has paid more than $1,000 in an effort to prevent the reporting of a charge that the woman Burleigh had married had been married before and never divorced. Rather than have the marriage annuled, Burleigh, who recently confessed to a friend that he was "really happy for the first time in his life," gradually paid out his life savings so he might retain that happiness.

In Police Court Saturday, Howell pleaded not guilty to a charge of blackmail.

St. Elizabeths Patients Want Jig-Saw Puzzles

The jig-saw puzzle craze has reached St. Elizabeths Hospital.

At the request of patients, the District chapter of the Red Cross has been asked to appeal to the public for a supply of discarded puzzles.

MISS SADE STYRON,

local authority on mid-Victorian music, will direct an Elizabethan program, presented at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow by 20 local musicians at the Washington Club. The presentation is the fourth in a series of concerts sponsored by the Ten o'Clock Club for the benefit of needy musicians. Among the instruments which will be used in the concert will be the clavichord and recorder, both peculiar to the Elizabethan period.

FRIENDSHIP GOSPEL CALLED FIRST DUTY

Nation and Church Ought to Strive for Confidence, Dr. Zabriskie Says.

A teacher from the cloister of dogma and doctrine came to Washington yesterday and shattered a popular belief that theologians spend their time solely in fine-spun disputaties having little of substance or interest to the average layman.

The Rev. Alexander C. Zabriskie, professor in the Virginia Theological Seminary, guest preacher at the 11 a. m. service yesterday at Rock Creek Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Church road and Webster street, preaching on America and foreign missions, announced his text, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."

Emphasizing that in this day of advanced communication and transportation neither the Nation nor the church can live to itself alone, and that each must inevitably perish of its very aloofness if it persists in that course, Dr. Zabriskie declared that the duty of both in the present crisis is to spread the gospel of friendship and understanding throughout the stricken world. "Not the dollars and cents gospel which takes thought only of selfish profit," he said, "but that gospel of selfless service to all men, in which we but follow the will of the Master that we share with others the gracious benefactions granted unto us."

Feeling of Confidence.

"If we are to be of any lasting service to our fellowmen we must first instill in them a feeling of confidence in us; and, secondly, we must convince them of our sincerity in a language they will understand," he declared, citing as his greatest proof of his belief in that regard the fact that Christ was sent into the world in human form that He might mingle with all men on a basis of friendly understanding, insuring their conviction of the truth by the simplicity and straightforwardness of His words and actions.

"Every true Christian is at heart a missionary," said Dr. Zabriskie. "But you may ask me why, in this hour of retrenchment on every hand, I should urge the sending of missionaries into the far-off places of the world." Dr. Zabriskie answered, in the fashion of the teacher, by citing the example of two of his pupils in the theological seminary, talented men equipped for successful service in the United States yet who forsook their opportunities at home under the urge to bring to less fortunate men in other places a new faith and hope in life.

Many Difficulties.

These young clergymen, he stated, had selected South America as their field of endeavor, and his recounting of the trials before them was reminiscent of the many difficulties encountered by the church, as related by the Right Rev. W. M. M. Thomas, Bishop of Southern Brazil, in an interview in The Washington Post on November 9, 1931.

Dr. Zabriskie declared that the association for profit, only tactics of some American business men in South America had done much to alienate the affection and good will of the southern republics toward the United States and American citizens, and that missionaries of character and education, sympathy and understanding, such as the clergymen he mentioned, could in time dispel the feeling of distrust and suspicion and "bring our southern neighbors to a realization that they are our brothers in Christ and not merely a means to a profit, whether it be of any benefit to them or not." This bread-cast-upon-the-water angle to the situation but served to emphasize Dr. Zabriskie's description of the role of selfless service a missionary plays in the life of a far-away community, not only in the realm of spiritual matters, but equally in the spheres of literature, education, good manners and the related finer things of life.

Lyon Park Residence Is Damaged by Blaze

Fire of unknown origin threatened the home of W. Thomas French, 140 Beech street, Lyon Park, yesterday morning.

Noticing smoke coming from the roof, a neighbor called Mr. French, who rushed to the telephone and soon had both the Clarendon and Ballston fire departments on the scene. The fire was confined to the second floor causing $400 damage which, Mr. French reports, is covered by insurance.

GIRL BLAMES THEFT ON 'THRILL' SEEKING

Former Western High Student Accused of Taking Coats From Lockers.

An 18-year-old girl, former student at Western High School, who is alleged to have told police she was seeking a thrill, faces charges of grand larceny in connection with the theft of valuable clothing from two former school chums.

The girl, Miss Virginia E. Turner, of 3337 P street northwest, was arrested yesterday by Detective Sergt. A. M. Tolson. She is being held at the Women's Bureau under two charges of grand larceny. A charge of housebreaking is being investigated.

Police allege Miss Turner took a fur coat from the locker of Miss June A. Coe, daughter of Col. Henry C. Coe, U. S. A., in Western High School. She then, according to police, telephoned the school and asked if anyone had lost the coat, and if so if there was a reward for its return.

A school official is said to have given Miss Coe's address in the Westchester Apartments, 3900 Cathedral avenue northwest. Miss Turner, after finding a key in the coat pocket, is alleged to have gone to the Coe apartment, entered with the key and made off with more of Miss Coe's clothing valued at $200.

Another count charges her with the theft of a fur coat from the school locker of Miss Marion H. Volkman, 4345 Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Questioned as to why she took the clothing, Miss Turner is alleged to have told Sergt. Tolman she did it for a "thrill."

Gifts Dedicated At Hebrew Home

Care of Aged Is Duty, Says Rabbi Solomon Metz at Exercises.

Care and honor of the aged was said to be the duty of all civilized races by Rabbi Solomon Metz, leader of the Adas Israel Congregation, at dedication exercises last night of two memorial cabinets at the Hebrew Home for the Aged.

The cabinets were donated by Simon Hirshman, Samuel Hirshman and Mrs. Wolpoff in memory of their parents, Rachel and Joseph Hirshman, and Nathan Fanaroff and his sister, Mrs. Helen L. Milobsky, in memory of their parents, Ida Mary and Hyman Leon Fanaroff.

Others who addressed the exercises were Rabbi G. Silverstone, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Rabbi Jacob Dubrof, Representative Herman P. Kopplemann, of Connecticut, and Maurice Maser, director of the institution. Rabbi J. T. Loeb delivered the invocation.

PROTEST MEETING SET HERE TONIGHT ON PLIGHT OF JEWS

Opposition to Despotism Is Cause of Treatment, Rabbi Loeb Says.

Rabbi J. T. Loeb, prominent Jewish clergyman and a member of the committee arranging the protest meeting with regard to reported anti-Semitic "atrocities" in Germany, issued a statement yesterday explaining the purpose of the meeting which will be held at 8 p. m. tonight at the Belasco Theater.

It said in part:

"The voice of Washington will be heard amid the world-wide protestations against Nazi outrages against the Jews of Germany. Outstanding personalities and leaders of all sections and creeds in the National Capital will join in public demonstration at the Belasco Theater tomorrow, and present resolutions asking the United States Government to intercede on behalf of the victims of persecution at the hands of the Hitlerites.

"This meeting is arranged under the auspices of the local committee of the American Jewish Congress, in line with similar public gatherings and demonstrations in many important cities in the United States and other civilized countries.

Indignation Aroused.

"The cruel tortures inflicted upon the Jews by irresponsible and uncontrollable Hitler forces have aroused the indignation of the entire civilized world. Reports of the atrocities are so persistent and so firmly attested as to leave no doubt behind.

"In spite of attempted denials and flimsy excuses by 'Propaganda Minister Goering of Germany,' the tragic effects speak for themselves. It is the old 'yellow badge' once more. The 'Hip Hep' call of anti-Semitic hordes in a new polished modernistic guise. A reveration to medieval tactics of persecution and banishment of the Jews.

"It is plainly evident that the Nazis composing the present government of Germany are bent upon stamping out every vestige of Jewish life in that land, in which the Jews have lived and worked and proved themselves a life-giving and cultural bearing element to the "Fatherland" for over 1,000 years.

Universal Right Ideal.

"Why should the Jews be so cruelly mistreated in Germany, is a question asked by many: The answer is: The Jews constituting an international entity carry with them an ideal of universal right and democratic principle, diametrically opposed to absolute monarchy and despotism. The Nazi government in Germany today would therefore have to get rid of the Jews and their broad conception of human right and liberty, before they would bring back the old terror of imperialism and world conquest.

"It is to be hoped the indignation meeting here and elsewhere will bring about the desired result: The one mighty protest by America and the world will have its telling effect upon those in authority to stay the hand of the oppressor, to curb the beastly passion and barbaric onslaught of Hitlerite agents of destruction. And Germany, with the rest of the world, shall see a new era of peace and tranquillity within its gates."

The list of speakers for tonight follow: Senator William H. King, Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, Father John A. Ryan, Charles Edward Russell, Bishop James E. Freeman, Bishop William F. McDowell, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy and Representative Emanuel Celler.

D. C. Water Menaced By Tons of Coal Tar

Reservoir Officials Take Steps to Neutralize Presence of Substance Spilled Into Potomac When Freight Car Tumbled In.

A warning against contamination of the District water supply by a large quantity of coal tar which is floating in the Potomac River toward the Dalecarlia Reservoir, has been given by Abel Wolman, chief engineer of the Maryland State Board of Health.

Chemists at the District filtration plant have been advised to be on the alert for the substance which found its way into the supply stream when a tank car, carrying 150,000 pounds of the coal tar, tumbled into the river near Antietam, Md.

There is no way of preventing the tar from flowing through the reservoir intake, engineers said, but the disagreeable taste which would be caused by the mingling of the tar and water, will be almost neutralized by chemicals. At present, the river is high, and this will serve to dilute the tar content, water experts said.

The tar fell into the river Saturday, according to reports, and today should reach the reservoir's intake above Great Falls. J. Eugene Curtis, senior engineer at the Dalecarlia plant, received the warning Saturday. He immediately ordered filtration plant employes to be on the watch for the substance and take necessary steps.

DEEDS, NOT WEALTH, TERMED TRUE VALUE

Standard of Action Declared by Father Ryder to Be Supreme Test.

The Rev. Thomas F. Ryder, noted Paulist preacher, in the fourth of his six Lenten sermons on "Certain Influences," in the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday declared that men should be valued not for ancestry or wealth, but by actions by which they benefit mankind. Father Ryder's subject was "The Influence of Certain Views of Life." The Rev. Francis J. Hurney presided and was assisted by the Rev. S. A. Czyz, the Rev. J. Kelly Reese, and the Friars of the Atonement. The music, under direction of Harry Wheaton Howard, included Miss Florence Yocum, soprano; Miss Kathryn Bowers, contralto; Miss Ann Arlen, violinist; and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir.

Father Ryder said in part:

"Every man, deserving the name of man, wishes to make something of his life. Before he struts off the stage, he hopes he will have made a distinct impress in the world. Whatever be the field of his endeavor, accomplishment is every man's ambition.

Was Supreme Test.

"Among the ancients, citizenship, nationality, was the supreme test. If a man was a Roman or a Greek he enjoyed a passport into the best of society, for with his nationality went honor, entertainment and pleasure. However, as mighty nations grew in number, so that no one nation was the master of the world, there appeared a new criterion of a man's worth. It was no longer Persian, Greek or Roman nationality, but ancestry. Intellectual ability or moral standards did not figure in the estimate but rather ancestors, the family tree. The servant in the hall, the serf in the field, may be greater in character and ability, but they were esteemed insignificant for lack of proper background. They did not meet the standard of the times; so greatness was not in them. Ancestry, nobility, blood—they were the requisites, not accomplishments.

"Has this standard of worth entirely passed away? Not by any means! Though we live under no feudal system, though we have no slaves, though in this country we have no nobility of caste, yet there still survives the standard of blood, of ancestry. People make much of it; people are judged by it; admission into so-called society depends upon it. Yes, in these democratic times, capital is made of it; journals make copy of it; and many men even ape it. It is regarded as a mark of superiority even by those who have no baron's blood in them, or the tang of the Mayflower in their family history. For they think more of nobility of origin than nobility of life. It's a view that has not passed out, and probably never will.

Wealth of Man.

"However, there is a more generally applied standard, not based on nationality, or on titles, or ancestry, but in wealth. It is not a coat of arms; it is not the record of stalwart pioneers, but rather the amount of money a man has made. This is the passport into the best of society. This brings power, this makes a man acceptable. Perhaps in the acquisition of this wealth a small competitor has been reduced to poverty, perhaps unjust methods have been employed, perhaps employes have not received a just living wage, perhaps these have been the stepping stones on which some men rose to power of wealth. But that does not matter. The rich are accepted in the public mind. They are referred to as great geniuses and master minds, they are held up as ideals by the press for the inspiration of the public. And, strange to say, the public emulates, the public admires, and even would imitate. Therefore, both in high places and low places, wealth is the standard of human success.

"There is a higher standard by which men survive or perish, by which they are remembered or forgotten, by which they are admired or despised—a standard applied to men of title or of blood, to men of noble ancestry or of material gain, to the scholar or educated and to the unlettered, to the men in high places and in low, to rich and poor alike—the standard of action. What has a man done of real value? What has he accomplished? What does he show for having lived? Is the world better? Is humanity benefited? This is the criterion by which all men are judged. Actions, deeds, not mere words; not monuments or mansions, but actions in terms of uplifting, of benefiting mankind? By it men rise or fall in the esteem of men—aye, of God."

Shoe Shortage Hampers Salvation Army's Work

A serious shortage of shoes for distribution among the needy exists at the social service branch of the Salvation Army, Brig. John G. McGee, director, announced yesterday.

The shoe repair factory at the social service branch is operated on only a part-time basis because of the shortage, which became acute following discontinuance of the Old Woman in the Shoe, Brig. McGee said. Trucks will be sent to collect all contributions, he said.

$200 Loot in Laundry Theft.

PRIESTLEY LAUDED IN PIERCE SERMON

Discoverer of Oxygen Was Man With Wide Range of Talents.

Lauding Joseph Priestley, the founder of the Unitarian movement in America, Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls Unitarian Church, said yesterday in his sermon that Priestley possessed the characteristics of both a saint and a heretic.

Joseph Priestley, perhaps best known as the discoverer of oxygen, was a clergyman, teacher, writer and chemist and, above all, a liberal.

"Born of poor, but honest parents, he knew the meaning of hardship," Dr. Pierce said. "An injury received from a fall from a horse, and a slight impediment in his speech were his handicaps, but, nevertheless, like many men of his time, he was interested in and followed various pursuits. It was he who told us what we breathe, and it was he who first compounded carbonated water; and every boy who drinks a carbonated beverage at the corner drugstore is paying a tribute to Priestley.

Used Plain Words.

"His whole life, from beginning to end, was overshadowed by the suffocating influence of an established religion, but he was not afraid of getting in 'hot water' and loved to engage in controversies. He was unwilling to allow his beliefs to die of strangulation, and though he had an unpopular way of calling a spade a spade, he seldom lost his temper. 'If a statement was a lie, why call it a prevarication,' was his attitude."

"Probably the most joyous period of his life was when he was associated with Dr. John Taylor as a professor at the Warrington Academy, one of the first schools to break away from the tradional English pedagogy. Later he went to Leeds, where he became a preacher. It was while at Leeds that he was asked by Benjamin Franklin to write a history of electricity.

Mob Sacked Home.

"From Leeds Priestly moved to Birmingham, which was to become his Calvary, for here it was that a drunken mob sacked and pillaged his home, destroying his many documents. Who knows, perhaps many other priceless scientific discoveries perished with his works.

"Discouraged and full of despair Priestly left England and came to America, where his denial of the Trinity again caused him to be called a blasphemer. He left New York and sought refuge with the Quakers in Pennsylvania, where he declined to accept the professorship of chemistry in the University at Philadelphia. He headed for the wilderness and finally settled at Northumberland, Pa., where he found peace, serenity and liberty to do his work."

Services Attended By Harris in Jail

Convicted Slayer of Milsie Henry Is Philosophical Over His Plight.

Awaiting sentence after conviction on a charge of the murder of Milton (Milsie) Henry, Charles Harris, Philadelphia gangster, yesterday passed his first Sunday in the large death cell at District Jail along with eleven Negroes, also convicted of murders.

Harris, according to jail attendants, is accepting his incarceration philosophically. His relations with the jail attaches are friendly, it was said. Yesterday he attended mass, and in the evening was present at Protestant services.

For conversation with a member of his own race, Harris has held several talks with Gaston B. Means, held in the jail pending his appeal from conviction on embezzlement charges. The two shout to each other from their respective cells, some distance apart.

Cab Driver Robbed of $4.50.

Vivian E. Harler, a cab driver of 927 K street northeast, yesterday reported that he was held up and robbed of $4.50 by two colored men who hired his taxi at Fifteenth and Swann streets northwest. The men, he said, used force and carried no guns.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

The speed limit, unless otherwise designated, is 22 miles per hour in the District of Columbia.

Those who happen to be driving in the early morning hours are apt to increase their speed beyond the limit because of the light traffic. Keep within the limit, no matter what the hour. The regulation has no exception.

The accident figures are:

	1932.	1933.
Deaths	25	14
Injuries	810	790
Accidents	1,818	1,811

"Be Careful"

ASSUMPTION CHURCH CORNER STONE IS SET BY CATHOLIC BISHOP

300 Brave Windy Weather at Rites; Address Given by Father Cavanagh.

Standing with bared heads in the cold sharp wind that whipped up over Congress Heights yesterday, more than 300 persons witnessed the colorful ceremony of the corner stone laying of the Church of the Assumption, 3411 Nichols avenue southeast.

The stone was cemented in place by the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore.

Delivering the principal address from a platform on the partially completed structure, the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, pastor of the church said, "The corner stone which we lay today signifies Christ Jesus who ever was and must be the chief corner stone of God."

Traces Church History.

He paid tribute to members of the parish who have made possible the construction of the church, and to those members who lent their services but who have passed away in the interim.

Father Cavanagh concluded his address with a brief history of the Catholic Church and a history of the parish, established 17 years ago.

The solemn ceremonies were begun by a procession led by members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus in full regalia. This was followed by the selection "America," by the Holy Comforter Boys Band, the Rev. Joseph Denges, director, and hymns by the church choir and congregation.

Mrs. Dean Sings.

Following an address by the Rev. Joseph V. Buckley, pastor of the Church of St. Francis Xavier, the ceremonies were concluded with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," by Mrs. Estelle Hunt Dean. She was accompanied by the boys' band.

The following prominent organizations were represented: Holy Name Society of the Church of the Assumption, Sodality of B. V. M. of the church, Assumption Girls Club, Cavanagh Club of the church, Children of the church, Catholic Daughters of America, Curley Club, Ladies Auxiliary, Knights of St. John and the Altar Boys of the church.

Two Motorists Hurt When Auto Hits Pole

Two persons were injured, one seriously, early yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into an electric light pole at Thirty-second and Patterson streets northwest.

Neal S. Brown, 20, of 5627 Rock Creek Ford road northwest, who police said was driving the machine, apparently lost control and struck the pole. He suffered severe lacerations to his head and face and was treated at Georgetown Hospital. Robert Shotwell, 18, a passenger, was taken to Emergency Hospital, where it was found he had received a possible fracture of the skull.

Mrs. Poole Fights Prison-Made Goods

Clubwoman Scores "Unfair Competition With Free Labor."

(Associated Press.)

In a statement yesterday supporting her organization's stand on prison labor, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Club, said that "by 1935 we hope to have ended for all time the sale of prison goods on the open market in unfair competition with free labor."

She said she was answering an "attack in the public press by a few prison administrators on the federation's support of the Federal Hawes-Cooper convict labor act."

"The federation's attitude on the prison labor problem has been maintained consistently since 1910, when we were appealed to by working women thrown out of jobs by the unfair competition of prison-made goods sold on the open market at prices which made even sweatshop competition impossible," Mrs. Poole said. "The effect of this unfair competition is felt today just as keenly as it was 23 years ago."
